DNR Responds To Edwards, Hafer On Bear Concerns

After meeting with Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer at their request regarding concerns over the increasing black bear population in Western Maryland, Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin responded this week in writing to the two legislators and the members of the Black Bear Task Force.

In January Edwards and Hafer announced that they had drafted a bill to implement a limited black bear hunting season in Garrett County as a response to increased reports of agricultural damage over the past year. The concept of a limited bear hunt was one of the recommendations of the Black Bear Task Force report of two years ago, and Edwards' and Hafer's proposed bill would mandate that all the recommendations of the Task Force be implemented by June 1, 2000. Edwards further stated that if DNR does not deal with the bear problem, he would recommend that Garrett County bears be relocated throughout every county in the state.

In his response, Griffin reiterated that DNR "does not support a hunting season at this time," but he did "propose that the DNR revisit the state's black bear management efforts in light of increases in property complaints and other human/bear conflicts." Griffin went on to outline a plan of action that encompassed exploring options and identifying a recommended approach to the management of Maryland's bear population, to be completed this year.

Griffin also said that DNR will develop a more effective mechanism for addressing citizens' bear-relat-

Family Left Homeless By Tuesday Fire

An Oakland area family was left homeless Tuesday afternoon when an accidental fire gutted their manufactured one-story house, located at 195 Underwood Road, about four miles south of Oakland.

Volunteer fire fighters from the Oakland, Deer Park, Terra Alta, and Gorman fire departments were summoned to the residence at 1:11 p.m., after Sarah L. Rhodes, who was babysitting her 2-year-old grandson, discovered fire in a rear bedroom. According to Steve Wendling, deputy fire marshal who investigated the incident, the cause of the fire was initially believed to be "an open flame," such as a cigarette lighter or matches. However, Mrs. Rhodes said that the child had been sleeping on the bed and there were no such items in the bedroom. Wendling's investigation is now considering what may have been an electrical problem involving a clock radio that was beside the bed.

Mrs. Rhodes told Wendling that she saw her grandson come out of the bedroom into the hallway and point back toward the bedroom. She then looked in the bedroom, saw that the bed was on fire, called 911, and then picked up the child and fled the structure.

Mrs. Rhodes told Wendling that the smoke detectors in the wood-frame house with a block construction basement did not function.

Commissioners Seeking Local Control Of Lake; Advisory Group Appointed

Twelve local men have been appointed by the county commissioners as members of the Garrett County/Deep Creek Lake Advisory Committee. This newly formed group met for the first time Monday evening to begin discussions about GPU Energy's intention to sell its Deep Creek Lake interests.

The committee has been charged to advise the commissioners on the possibility of gaining local control of the lake and the power plant. According to a press release issued Tuesday, "it is the objective of local Garrett County interests to acquire from GPU the lake and generation facility to maintain stability."

The commissioners have stated that in consideration of the "vital importance" of the lake to the state, county, local economy, property owners, and others, it is "imperative that control of the entire facility be with those most directly impacted. That control can best be accomplished through direct ownership."

Judge Fred Thayer (retired) has been chosen as the chairperson of the group. He said yesterday in a telephone interview that the committee got organized Monday evening and found that they have "a lot of studying to do."

"We have lots of information to gather before we can give our best advice as to what to do," Thayer said. "We know somebody is going to buy the lake. We must formulate our suggestion as to what role, if any, the county commissioners should assume in acquiring it."

The other members of the group and their Garrett County affiliation are, as follows: Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator; John Nelson, director of planning and zoning; Jim Hinebaugh, director of economic development; Paul Durham, lake manager at Deep Creek Lake State Park (DNR);

Convicted Child Abuser, Thief Sentenced To 85 Years In Jail

A Baltimore man convicted of abusing a baby and robbing several homes in Garrett County has been sentenced to 85 years in the Maryland Department of Corrections. Jerry Adam Helms Jr., 28, was handed the prison term by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge James Sherbin in proceedings last Friday.

The baby in this case, now approximately 14 months old, is reportedly on medication twice a day as a complication of a skull fracture inflicted by Helms. She also reportedly contends with a deformed arm, a result of a fracture caused by the defendant. Helms allegedly abused the child between July 17 and Aug. 4, 1997, during a time when he was dating the 8-month-old's mother. The baby was flown to Ruby Memorial Hospital on Aug. 7, at which time the examining physician alerted authorities to her severe injuries, which were life-threatening, according to the report. The doctor also apparently found other older injuries that had not been treated.

In addition to causin the fractures and severe bruising, Helms is also alleged to have sexually abused the baby on at least one occasion.

The incidents apparently took place in a mobile home camper located along Sale Barn Road in the Bear Creek Forest development, just northwest of Accident. The defendant was staying periodically at the camper, where the mother and child visited him.

The defendant was also

London TV Crew In County To Tape Adventure Show Segment

Garrett County will be featured on international television in April, as crews from the London News Network are on the mountaintop this week taping a segment for a program called "Five Star Adventure." The focus of the 30-minute segment will be on Garrett Community College's Adventuresports Institute, and the show will reportedly be seen by approximately 55 million Europeans.

The taping of the program in the county is the result of a Maryland Office of Tourism Development meeting with the producers of the show in London last March.

The television show features outdoor adventures and travel locations around the world. This segment will include taping of survival training, mountain biking, and whitewater rafting, as well as interviews with the institute's instructors and students at GCC. The program will also highlight the county's outdoor sites, such as the Savage River State Forest, New Germany State Park, Penn Alps, and the Spruce Forest Artisan Village.

Mike Logsdon, the director of the adventuresports program at GCC, reported this morning that the film crew has been taping footage this week of mountain biking and survival training, and today they hope to find sufficient ice for climbing.

"They have shot about six hours of tape so far and somehow they have to pare it down to about 15 minutes for this part of the show," Logsdon said. "It's been great — a lot of fun. And it's going to be seen by millions of people."

This is the second year for the Five Star Adventure series. Other locations shot have been South Africa, Zimbabwe, the Caribbean, and Switzerland. The Garrett County program is to air in late April on NBC Europe. It will also be aired in Hong Kong, Malaysia, and Singapore. Logsdon said his staff will most likely get a copy of the tape, and that the Travel Channel may also broadcast it.

GCC Among Small Colleges Hoping State Action Will Supplement Funds

Garrett Community College's small size, one of its drawing cards in comparison to some of the mega-campuses of other community colleges elsewhere in the state, can be a double-edged sword in terms of balancing the school's finances. "It costs less overall to run a small college like GCC," college president Dr. Steve Herman said recently, "but more per student."

As the full effects of a relatively new state funding formula for community colleges are increasingly felt, Garrett Community College finds its finances squeezed even more than usual, according to Dr. Herman. Help may be on the way, however, in the form of state legislation that would result in GCC and six other of the state's smallest community colleges dividing up $2 million in additional funding. If House of Delegates Bill 258 and State Senate Bill 170 are enacted, GCC would receive $300,000 each year for the next three years.

The legislative action passed the House on Friday and is currently in the Senate. Del. George Edwards and Sen. John Hafer among its sponsors, and Governor Parris Glendening supports it, according to Dr. Herman.

"When the funding formula changed two years ago, we found ourselves

Board of Ed. Approves Budget, Changes School Calendar Dates

The budget for the next school year was approved by the Garrett County Board of Education at its monthly meeting Tuesday night, and dates were set for various school events including high school graduation, adding an instructional day, and holding an open house at Yough Glades Elementary. The date of the next board meeting was also changed.

Budget

First introduced last month by Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of schools, and Al Coviello, assistant superintendent, the budget has been reviewed and discussed by the board members in work sessions during the interceding weeks.

The budget developed by the administration in consort with members of the board reflects an increase in the amount of local funding. This increase is about three percent. "The lion's share of the increases are for salary. We are giving a two percent raise," stated Dale Carpenter, board member.

The funding request also includes construction costs for upgrades to several school facilities. As a rec-

U.S. Senator Mikulski Pledges Her Support For County, Highway Funds

Over 20 business and governmental representatives from Garrett County met with United States Senator Barbara Mikulski (D-Md.) Tuesday afternoon in her Washington, D.C., office requesting her support for U.S. Route 219 in the current Congressional highway appropriations debate. The group specifically requested her support for the development of Rt. 219 as an interstate highway and part of an international trade and travel corridor from Toronto, Canada, to Miami.

The lobbying trip was jointly sponsored by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce and the Garrett County Development Corporation. Heading the delegation was Garrett County Commissioner Gary Fratz, representing the position of the Garrett County Board of Commissioners. The delegation also included Mayor Fred Holliday of Grantsville, Mayor Dale Rodeheaver of Accident, and Mayor Asa McCain of Oakland, representing the positions of their respective municipalities along with a cross-section of business interests from mortgage bankers, restaurateurs, manufacturers, real estate professionals, bed and breakfast owners, and distribution companies.

"I see the potential of a 219 international corridor. Instead of being by-passed, Garrett County would be a major destination," Sen. Mikulski said.

"Garrett County is rugged and remote; it's one of the things we love about it. It's Maryland's little Switzerland. The 219 development would mean that Garrett County would still be rugged, but it would no longer be remote. An international highway would bring pluses and minuses,

ICE ON WINDSHIELD LEADS TO ACCIDENT - Police reported that ice on the windshield of this 1984 Ford limited visibility and was a leading factor in this accident last week on Chestnut Ridge Road. The driver, Wilda M. Bicker, 46, Salisbury, Pa., was critically injured when her vehicle struck the rear axle of a tractor trailer. She was flown to the shock/trauma unit of University of Maryland Hospital, Baltimore, for treatment. See story.

Children, Youth, Family Office Awarded Grant

The Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families (GC OCYF) has been awarded an Employer Involvement Fund (EIF) planning grant to increase Career to Work opportunities in Garrett County. This grant will enable participating employers to play an integral role in promoting student workforce readiness by providing students with opportunities to gain on-the-job experience in applications of information technology (IT). Specifically, the GC OCYF is exploring the use of information technology to enhance the business operations of health and human service agencies.

The GC OCYF School to Work project will encourage an increase of student information technology skills. Students will be equipped with skills that the Maryland Business Roundtable for Education views as necessary for the world of work. This project is part of a more global GC OCYF information technology (IT) agenda, which encompasses a pilot interagency management information system, collection of county-wide results and indicators, utilizing IT as a tool to enhance service delivery and increasing community access to IT through the Garrett Information Center(s) projects.

Susan Athey-Oxford, GC OCYF School to Work project director, recently presented GC OCYF technology plans at a statewide Career Connections seminar sponsored by the Maryland Chamber of Commerce and the Maryland State Department of Education. According to Ms. Athey-Oxford, employers throughout Maryland "expressed a vital need for skilled, qualified workers and view public education as the venue to prepare students, utilizing core learning goals."

Katharine M. Oliver, assistant state superintendent of Division of Career Technology and Adult Learning, added, "A strong education system and a competitive business climate go hand in hand." Career Connections builds upon an education-business partnership to create a system of employer involvement and investment that links relevant school-based instruction with quality work-based learning experiences for all students.

Highlighted during the seminar was the Maryland Employers' Workforce Skills Development and Workforce Preparedness Survey, a study of 970 Maryland employers conducted by the Maryland Business Research Partnership. Thirty-eight percent of survey respondents reported that a lack of skilled workers has negatively impacted their firm's ability to do business in Maryland over the past year.

The study also asked how the need for workers with different educational attainment levels is expected to change over the next five to ten years. Sixty-two percent of respondents said that their company's need for workers with a technical college or university degree will increase, and 50% thought that their firm's need for community college graduates would increase. Fifty-six percent of respondents reported their firm's need for workers with less than a high school education will decrease. Additionally, respondents reported difficulty in hiring workers in high technology-related occupations.

Participants at the recent Garrett Technology Futures Forum expressed similar concerns related to workplace readiness and the impact that worker shortages have upon their business.

The GC OCYF will utilize the information gleaned from the recent technology forum and will collect information through a key informant study conducted by Frostburg State University to prepare the implementation component of Planning for Student Career Development Initiatives: Use of Information Technologies to Enhance Human Services Delivery. The project will be developed in such a way that it may be replicated in other jurisdictions. Anyone interested in either the key informant study or in offering a work-site placement may contact Ms. Athey-Oxford at 301-334-1139 or e-mail ocyf@gcnet.net.

TOY BEARS DONATED TO HOSPITAL ER - On a continuing basis, the ladies of the Oakland Church of Christ handcraft and donate stuffed toy bears, called "Love Bears," to Garrett County Memorial Hospital's emergency room. According to Kathy Hinebaugh, RN, emergency room staff nurse, the bears are a comfort to small children, providing them with a "bear hug" at a time when they may be frightened, upset or hurt. "We appreciate the creative abilities and generosity of the ladies of the Oakland Church of Christ. The bears are so helpful in easing the minds of our young patients when they are required to come to the emergency room for medical attention," said Hinebaugh, who is pictured with emergency room patient Scott Bittinger and his "Love Bear."

Search For "Fred" Nets Oakland Man PBJ In Court

An Oakland man who walked uninvited into a Bethlehem Road residence late one January night and announced that he was "looking for Fred" received a probation before judgment (PBJ) in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings.

Randall Eugene King, 46, was arrested and charged with fourth-degree burglary by sheriff's deputies, who had been called to the home by the owner who had awakened from a nap on the couch to find King standing in his living room asking for Fred. As the homeowner was not named Fred, nor familiar with anyone in the area named Fred, he requested that King leave the premises. King allegedly grew belligerent and refused to leave until the homeowner picked up the phone to summon the police. King was apprehended walking on Bethlehem Road a short time after the deputies arrived, reportedly in an intoxicated state.

King was placed on six months' supervised probation and ordered to have no contact with the victim.

In other district court news, Francis Wade Hinebaugh, 49, Oakland, was found not guilty of contempt of court. The charge stemmed from his February arrest by sheriff's deputies for allegedly violating an exparte order.

Billy Duckworth, 20, Elk Garden, W.Va., was not prosecuted on a charge of felony theft.

DWI & DUI Hearings

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) cases were heard in district court recently.

Eugene Patrick Merrbach Jr., 55, Cumberland, was sentenced for a DWI conviction and handed a PBJ, fined $155, given a 60-day suspended sentence, placed on six months of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Paul Michael Kessel, 24, McHenry, was found to be in violation of DWI probation, with a 28-day sentence reimposed and probation revoked.

Stephen Harold Kitzmiller, 37, Mtn. Lake Park, was found to be in violation of DWI probation and handed a 10-day work release sentence, with probation continued.

The following revisions to previous DWI convictions were granted by the court: Charles Thomas Warnick, 57, Mtn. Lake Park, to reflect a PBJ with unsupervised probation; Bruce Tresher Bagewell, 42, Oakland, to reflect a DUI conviction; John Michael Harkins, 37, Swanton, to reflect unsupervised probation; Joel Daniel Taylor Sr., 36, Md., to reflect a PBJ; Todd Allen Whitacre, 28, Kitzmiller, to reflect a PBJ; and Shane Patrick Davis, 24, Oakland, to reflect a PBJ.

Garrett County residents have been alerted to a possibly false cancer campaign currently being conducted by the Pacific West Cancer Fund, based in Topeka, Kan., and Seattle, Wash. The campaign callers are requesting residents to conduct a door-to-door drive in their areas.

Kevin Tephabock, community specialist of the Allegany/Garrett Unit of the American Cancer Society, has issued the warning following several calls to the office in Cumberland. According to Tephabock, the Pacific West Cancer Fund is not affiliated with the American Cancer Society and does not meet the basic guidelines of the Better Business Bureau.

Residents are urged to call the American Cancer Society office in Cumberland at 301-722-2145 if they have questions about the false campaign.

Results Noted For Oakland Town Elections

Oakland voters went to the polls on Monday to elect town officials. On the ballot were names of one candidate for mayor, six for council members, and one for treasurer.

Incumbent Asa McCain received 167 votes for mayor, returning him to office for a seventh term. One vote went to each of the following write-in candidates: Von Johnson, Rudy Cvetnick, Eugene D. Helbig, and Monty Pagenhardt.

Critical Injuries Send Driver To Shock/Trauma

An accident last Thursday on Chestnut Ridge Road, Grantsville, resulted in serious injuries to one driver. She was sent to Baltimore for treatment at the shock/trauma unit of the University of Maryland Hospital.

According to report filed with the Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, Wilda M. Bicker, 45, Salisbury, Pa., was northbound on Chestnut Ridge Road around 9:30 p.m. She had allegedly failed to clear ice from her windshield and was unable to see. She traveled into the southbound lane and struck the rear axle of a tractor trailer driven by Steven J. Zook, 39, Canton, Ohio.

Bicker was ejected from her car in the collision and flown to the shock/trauma unit in Baltimore, where she is currently under treatment.

A passenger in the Bicker vehicle, Lisa Housel, 30, Salisbury, was treated at the scene. Zook was not injured in the accident.

Northern Rescue Squad and Grantsville VFD responded to the scene. Police report that charges are pending.

Social Studies Program Draft Set For Review

The draft of the program of studies for the social studies course for grades 6-8 is available for public review at the Oakland office of the Garrett County Board of Education.

Presented at the Tuesday night meeting of the board of education by Dr. Brenda McCartney, director of curriculum Pre-K-8, this draft was initiated in 1996. The contents of the outline were developed through a cooperative effort of administration and teaching staff representing Northern and Southern middle schools and Swan Meadows School, McCartney explained.

In constructing this program outline, the group used resources that included state by-laws, outlines used by other Maryland counties, and programs followed in other states, Dr. McCartney said. "We considered the needs of our community and the goals of this board," she noted.

The outline, once developed, was introduced to the members ACE (Advisory Committee on Education). "They had a positive response to it," she stated.

Once developed, the draft was available for public review and comment during the school year.

Following this procedure, and with additional staff input, the original draft was revised by a team of eight county teachers.

It is this revised edition of the program of studies that is currently on review.

Anyone wishing to take the opportunity to review and/or comment on the document may do so on weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at the board offices, South Fourth Street, Oakland.

Police Report Local Cases Of Animal Cruelty

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported two separate cases of animal cruelty in the county. Both incidents occurred on March 8.

One report stated that between 9 and 9:30 a.m. a 3-year-old female Lab/shepherd dog belonging to Betty Jo Cosner, Friendsville, wandered onto the property of Robin Lynn Funk and headed toward her chickens.

Funk, reportedly, then shot the dog in the neck with a Marlin 22 rifle. The dog died the following day.

Charges of animal cruelty, mutilating a animal, and malicious destruction of property under $300 were filed against Funk, who was later released on signature.

In a separate report police stated that at approximately 4:30 p.m., also on Sunday, an unknown suspect(s) shot and killed a 13-year-old male shepherd/collie mix dog with a weapon of unknown caliber.

The incident occurred on Fairview Road north of the home of the owner of the dog, Mike Dean.

Investigation continues. Anyone with information on this case is asked to call the McHenry barrack at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

Giving to Strangers...

There are scores of examples of outstanding charitable work in Garrett County, of people helping people, any one of which could provide good fodder for this column. However, there are two programs we wish to highlight this week, both of which have a rather unique characteristic which perhaps makes them even more special. We refer to the Blind Skier Program, sponsored for many years by the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club, and the Maryland Winter Special Olympics, held each year at the Wisp and cosponsored locally by a number of organizations, particularly the American Legion.

What makes these programs somewhat different from many others is the fact that the beneficiaries of much effort and giving by Garrett County residents are people from outside the county. While many people tend to restrict their giving to one's friends and neighbors, the folks who run these programs know that true giving should also reach out to total strangers, and that it doesn't matter where they reside, or what their names are, or what color their skin might be.

Literally thousands of children and adults, the great majority of whom are not in any way connected to Garrett County, have been afforded the wonderful opportunity to ski and enjoy other winter sports at the Wisp Ski Area. Local residents have helped these people overcome some of the fears and difficulties caused by their blindness and/or various other developmental disabilities to enjoy skiing, and at the same time build confidence in themselves that can be employed in all facets of their lives. Indeed, many lives have truly been changed by the experience.

The blind skiers and the special olympians are, of course, not the only beneficiaries of these programs, as the organizers and the many local volunteers who get involved and make them possible also receive priceless benefits, those that always result from selfless acts of giving. For example, among the volunteers in the Blind Skier Program are many local high school students who serve as guides and instructors. What an incredible learning experience for our young people! It's a win-win situation.

We will have photos and additional coverage of the recent Special Olympics in next week's issue, which will identify some of Garrett County's finest. Also, the DCL Lions Club will hold its annual Winterfest Kickoff Friday evening at Will O' the Wisp and its Las Vegas Night on Saturday at Silver Tree Inn, which are the primary fund-raisers for the Blind Skier Program. We hope many people will participate in these events to help the Lions continue this extremely worthwhile, but expensive, program of giving.

To all who are in any way involved in these efforts, you make us proud to be residents of Garrett County, as you reach out not only to our neighbors next door, but also to those fellow human beings from well beyond our county's boundaries.

Correction: Last week's editorial stated that Garrett County's real estate assessable base totaled $775 million, $410 million of which was Deep Creek Lake properties. In fact, the total real estate assessable base for the county is just under $600 million, of which $268 million is lake property. We thank county supervisor of assessments Jim Margroff for this correction.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

"...The success of Newport has been fantastic during the past few years. The base of our business is the high school student...." from a recently uncovered Lorillard Tobacco Co. document.

"Today's teenager is tomorrow's potential regular customer, and the overwhelming majority of smokers first began to smoke while in their teens. At least part of the success of the Marlboro Red during its most rapid growth period was because it became the brand of choice among teenagers who then stuck with it as they grew older," noted a 1981 Philip Morris corporate memo.

The Garrett County Commission for Women (GCCW) and the Garrett County Tobacco-Free Coalition have signed on as supporters of the Maryland Children's Initiative: Tobacco Tax for Children's Health and Learning (SB 614/HB 1073). Over 191 local and state organizations have endorsed the Maryland Children's Initiative to increase the tax over the next two years (50 cents per pack in FY 1999 and 50 cents per pack in FY 2000). Significantly raising the tobacco tax is the single most effective way to reduce tobacco use, according to the Institute of Medicine. If the implementation of the increase in '99 and 2000 does not curb teen smoking by 35%, then an additional increase of 50 cents per pack will go into effect. It also extends a comparable tax (25% of the wholesale price) to other tobacco products such as chewing tobacco.

Tobacco use is our state's most prominent killer. It claims over 7,000 citizens and costs the state economy at least $1.5 billion each year. According the Smoke Free Maryland, "children, not adults, are the only new smokers. In fact, about 60 Maryland children become addicted to tobacco each day." The trends in Garrett County are substantially higher and recent studies indicate our kids drink and drug some 9.5 percentage points higher than the state average.

The collected revenues would be directed to pro-child programs: a campaign to discourage children from using drugs and alcohol; to improve reading among Maryland's public school students by reducing class size; high quality and affordable before/after school-hour programs; and community-wide plans that focus on measurable results and increased opportunity for children.

GCCW will coordinate and convene a local press conference with local and state officials and organizational leaders in late April. Anyone interested in more information about the Maryland Children's Initiative may contact the GCCW at P.O. Box 623, Oakland, MD 21550.

Sincerely,
Phyllis Trickett,
Legislative Chair

To the Editor,

Regarding Mr. Wilson's "View" on Presidents' Day, I was relieved to find the words "if" and "alleged" half-way through his column while writing of Mr. Clinton's dilemma. These are two important words that are often missing in the news reporting these days. I would have been even happier if Mr. Wilson had written his entire piece in this important tone. The time for a discussion of unethical and illegal behavior can wait until "if" and "alleged" no longer apply.

So far Bill Clinton's behavior seems to be in keeping with what the electorate would allow. There was a time when we would not have been comfortable with calling our president by his first name. There was a time when we would not have been expected to vote for a disabled person (Franklin Roosevelt) or a Catholic (John Kennedy) or a divorced person (Ronald Reagan). There was a time when a 21-year-old woman could leave college to go to work in Washington, and be considered to be naive and innocent. There was a time when the American people would not have voted for a man who had the baggage of rumor and innuendo that Mr. Clinton did. I think Mr. Wilson and a lot of other people should become more circumspect and less brazen with their use of the news media.

And, regarding the editorial concerning the attacks on Kenneth Starr, after all these many months of really intelligent and enlightened editorials, I was surprised that this is your approach to the mess he has made in Washington. I would have expected you to be more concerned with the first amendment rights that he is threatening. The Grand Jury System has many built-in dangers which have been argued for years. Here it is with all its negative potential in full view, and you're worried about Starr getting criticized.

View From My Window

PATRICK AND OTHER SAINTS

Paper shamrocks abound. When the hearts of St. Valentine's Day are taken down, the shamrocks and leprechaun go up. In our increasingly atheistic age, when controversy is stirred by a judge hanging the Ten Commandments in his courtroom, how is it that certain saints achieve cultural acceptance?

Adding to my puzzlement is that the veneration of saints is largely a Catholic thing. To the degree that any religious expression can be said to underlie American society, it is Protestantism, and especially Puritan Protestantism.

St. Valentine's Day is universally celebrated and St. Patrick's Day nearly so. True enough, St. Valentine's Day has been appropriated in a way that can hardly be recognized as veneration of a saint, but how did it happen?

It is easier to understand St. Patrick's Day becoming a widespread cultural phenomenon because of the influence of the Irish. The Maryland General Assembly has upped the ante of the role of the Irish in American culture. The legislature is currently giving consideration to making instruction on the Irish potato famine obligatory in Maryland public schools.

If Irish-Americans have that kind of clout, it is not surprising that the patron saint of Ireland has ranking status as a saint in the USA.

If the Italians had had the influence of the Irish, everybody would be celebrating St. Joseph's Day (March 19). That is one example of how national groups of immigrants have and have not influenced our country—even with regard to the celebration of saints' days.

The calendar I carry in my pocket to keep track of my life is a Catholic liturgical calendar. It helps me keep abreast of what my Catholic brothers and sisters are doing. I note that St. Patrick's Day is listed as an optional saint's day observance, whereas the day honoring St. Joseph, as the husband of the blessed Virgin Mary, is of higher status. It is a full solemnity of the Catholic Church.

I point this out because it shows how the religious importance of a saint and the cultural importance can get well out of balance.

Don't get me wrong, I like St. Patrick. Had it not been for him, Christianity would have died out in Ireland and western Britain during the 400s, and would have had to have been re-introduced centuries later. Thanks to St. Patrick, Catholic Christianity remained strong in Celtic Britain all through the period of barbarian invasions,which extinguished Christianity for a time in many other parts of Europe.

For my money though, I would like to put in a good word for Pope St. Gregory the Great, whose feast day happens to be today (March 12). At least, it was today. I have a couple of old calendars which list his day as today. Several years ago there was a big shake-up in Catholic saints' days, and I don't know what happened to Pope St. Gregory the Great.

He did some pretty cool stuff, like establishing the calendar we use today. If you know that this year is 1998 A.D. (Anno Domini—in the year of the Lord), you can thank St. Gregory. He also regularized the celebration of Christ's birth as December 25. He made a number of other important decisions which have had profound effects on the history of the world, too.

No national group claimed him as their own, however. And he did not capture the modern, popular imagination through some other means. Which brings me back to my original question: how come some saints' days make it to the top-40 charts of holidays and others don't?

I don't pretend to have the answer to this question, but I'm sure it does us good to ponder it. After all, there may be a holiday in the making even now. I know I don't want to miss out on a happening saint's day.

Sweating the Small Stuff
by Mary Sincell McEwen

Yeah, I know, I know, we aren't supposed to worry about the "small stuff" in life, but I have come to realize that the small stuff builds up to big stuff, and big stuff can really gum up the works. As rational people, I assume we are to understand this reasonable correlation: when one's life becomes busier, one's ability to handle the Small Stuff lessens; therefore, the Small Stuff begins to seize control. Lots of little things become wrenches in my life these days. Here are a few:

Every time I try to blindly plug in an electrical cord, it is just a given that I will have the larger prong going in the wrong slot. It happens every time, even if I'm sure I'm aiming right. This wouldn't be so bad if I weren't always virtually doing a backbend at the time in my constant attempt to do seven or eight things at once. "Let's see, I think I can just stretch over here and plug in the vacuum cleaner . . . ugh! UGH!" — "Whadareya doin' on the floor, Mom?"

Ever try to pitch a used dryer sheet into the garbage can from just a few feet away? How about from just a few inches away? I am convinced that they are manufactured to leap to the outside of any trash receptacle, no matter how close the thrower is. I think I could sit in the trash can and still miss it.

How about that thing of simply trying to pick something up? Your brain doesn't even consider it a moderate task to reach down and grab, say, a kid's shirt off the floor. However, for some reason, more and more frequently, when I attempt to pick a thing up, my fingers just miss it. I try again, and inevitably I miss it again. Sometimes I even miss it a third time and by this point I'm looking around for someone to yell at. Pity those who are in the vicinity.

And then there's the Crying Wolf Syndrome. That's when one or three of my sons claim there is Something Wrong, whether it be with their food, their shirts, their tongues, anything. And I say, "Oh, there's nothing wrong, just hush up." It goes like this: they persist until I check it out. If I check it out early in the Syndrome, I am always right — nothing is Wrong. But if I ignore them, sticking to my belief that they are simply deceiving me for the sake of making my hair hurt, then they turn out to be right. Case in point: "Mommy," Alex complains. "My shoe hurts." "No, it doesn't. Where the heck is your little bow tie?" I'm now tearing up the house looking for his bow tie — the Sunday School class that I teach has started three minutes ago. "My shoe hurts." "Be quiet — the heck with the tie — get in the car!" We get to Sunday School and, after more complaints, I relent and check his shoe. No wonder it hurt. There was a bow tie in there. (True story)

There is, of course, the regular morning circus of getting Rob ready for school and the other two for day care. It doesn't seem to matter how matter planning we've done, i.e., laying out clothes, packing Rob's lunch, placing trampolines at strategic points around the house, etc. It's just hard to herd three boys up and out. The Small Stuff that makes it so much harder includes Alex's general aversion to clothes, Michael's inevitable diaper episode just as we are heading out the door, and Rob's sudden recollection that he is supposed to have a veritable pile of Things That Begin With H for his kindergarten homework. Yikes!

How about laundry? It is truly a pile of Small Things that lead to pure irritation. I can rarely get it all finished in one day, so it regularly stretches out over several days, until I'm back at the original day, one week later, and I still have the darks to do. And if I do actually get finished and put everything away, leaving just one sock down in the basement — just one — rest assured that this Small Thing will be the sock I want to wear that day. It's my only purple pair.

Oh, well, once again I am reminded of the good Small Stuff — an unexpected "I love you, Mommy" from one of the boys, a spill-less meal, quiet time with the cat, a hug from John, finding both gloves at first glance, and a crocus blooming through the snow. These things shall keep me sane. At least we hope.

"For The Glory Of God..."

Alta Schrock: Preserving History, Culture, Health, And Sprituality

by Peggy Santamaria

A profusion of books, photographs and written materials are everywhere. Fresh off the press, a volume of stories and pictures of generations past lies on the table. The room itself expresses volumes about the soft-spoken woman with joy-filled blue eyes who lives here.

This is the Grantsville home of Dr. Alta Schrock, where she is surrounded by evidence of a life so productive it dizzies the beholder. A scholar, educator, and minister, she has built organizations, preserved culture, and tended to the needs of others.

Dr. Schrock points out the freshly printed text of stories about the people who carved out lives and brought their traditions and cultures to this mountain area. "The stories are so important. They need to be preserved. They must be passed down to the young people, who need roots, who need to be connected," she explains.

Many others have found rich resources in the Appalachian Mountains. They have come to find the teaming wildlife of the forests and the plentiful fish of the waterways; they have come to build railroads, to cut timber, and to mine the earth's minerals. Most have long since moved on.

But for Alta Schrock the greatest resource of the Appalachian region is the people.

Dr. Schrock has dedicated her life to ministering to the needs of the people of this region and helping them find solutions to problems and to overcome adversities.

A graduate of the Yoder School, Grantsville, she attended Waynesburg College in Pennsylvania, where she earned a degree in biology. Continuing her studies, she completed work for a master's degree at Kent State University, Ohio, later earning a doctorate in biology at the University of Pittsburgh in Pennsylvania.

It was while Dr. Schrock was professor of biology at Goshen College in Indiana that she realized her mission. "I felt the need to come home and help my people," she explains. "When I say my people, I'm not speaking just of the Mennonites or my family; I'm speaking of all the people of the Appalachian region," she points out.

"Our goal is to minister to people physically, emotionally, and spiritually," she says. She speaks of a concern for the natural environment and the ability of individuals to maintain health within this natural structure. But she speaks also in broader terms. "When I say physically I'm including both health and economics."

Dr. Schrock realizes that the spirit of a person can be stifled when the need to feed a child or mend a roof cannot be met. She also realizes that such problems are not solved by simply carrying in a bag of groceries and sending someone to mend broken shingles. These are temporary solutions. "We want to help people to help themselves," she says.

Being able to care for oneself is the goal. Finding the way to do that is one mission that Dr. Schrock has taken on with the dynamism of a backhoe moving earth.

Penn Alps in Grantsville, 40 years old this year, was organized by Dr. Schrock to address the economic problems faced by many people in these mountains. Through this organization she would be able to preserve cultural heritage and provide an economic base.

Her vision was to seek out those in need, discover the individual gift which each had to offer and facilitate development of these gifts into income-earning skills.

Dr. Schrock went out into the mountains and identified potential weavers, quilters, and other artisans. She rounded up the equipment needed, and field workers followed to provide training. The outlet for the rural home arts produced by these workers was Penn Alps.

Dr. Schrock did not work alone, she is quick to point out. She praises the value of co-workers and their contributions. "Myron Livengood was the first president of Penn Alps. He shared the vision with me," she notes.

Members of the board of directors at Penn Alps recently honored Dr. Schrock for her vision, dedication, and determined efforts. They named her to an honorary seat on the board.

Penn Alps is just one on a long list of organizations founded by Dr. Schrock or for which she served as a director. Among them are the Springs Historical Society, The Springs Museum of Early Settlers, the Council of the Alleghenies, the Highland Association, Garrett County Community Action, Churchwide Child Welfare Committee of the Mennonite Church, and Friedensheim Inc.

It is notable that when asked about accomplishments, Dr. Schrock speaks of the achievements of others, and when talking about initiatives undertaken, she uses the plural pronoun. She works always within a community.

The work she is about requires energy and focus. How does she maintain the pace? Dr. Schrock notes the five main sources of her strength and inspiration: "Divine imperative, divine enablement, genetic inheritance, loving nurture, and strong community."

Approaching her 87th birthday, Dr. Schrock seems to be as busy as ever and as interested in learning. "I'm seriously pursuing the study of alternative medicine," she says and begins to speak about natural immune systems, reflexology, aromatherapy, and traditional herbal medicine. She indicates many books on health topics lining her shelves; they deal with spiritual and physical health, she points out.

If she were to be allotted another 100 years for her works, what would she pursue? "Oh, my," she laughs gently at the prospect. "Well, I wouldn't start any more organizations. I would spend the time finishing what I have started," she answers.

At the top of her list is the project Friedensheim, House of Peace. It is a non-profit organization founded by Dr. Schrock in 1991. In a turn-of-the-century farm house near Grantsville, those in need of spiritual and physical renewal are offered the time and space for centering, discernment, and revitalization.

This place for nurturing of spirit was one of Dr. Schrock's first visions of ministry. "It was in 1940 or '41 that I started thinking about it. It's been a dream for a long time," she says. Why did she not undertake this project first? "I was not mature enough. God knew that," she explains simply.

Besides work on Friedensheim, and alternative medicine studies, Dr. Schrock lists two more projects. "I want to organize and catalogue the things I have here," she says, gesturing widely toward the amassed documentation of a lifetime. "I have also promised to write my memoirs," she adds, to complete her syllabus.

Considering what this woman has undertaken and achieved in the last 87 years, she may indeed need that allotment of 100 more years just to write the memoirs, one might think. But to Alta Schrock what she has accomplished so far is easily summarized. "I have tried to follow where God was leading me, in the context of community, not for private gain but for the glory of God."

LEARNING, SHARING, MINISTERING fill the life of Dr. Alta Schrock. Actively taking the role of student today, she pursues learning as a part of daily life and has done so since childhood. Today in her Grantsville home, pictured above, she can be found deeply involved in the study of health issues and alternative medicine. The photo at right was taken of Dr. Schrock in 1937 when she was at Waynesburg College in Pennsylvania studying for her undergraduate degree in biology. Dr. Schrock has always found ways to use her knowledge to help others in her community.

Food For Thought

Cooked chicken breasts turn salad into a meal! Combine one package of ready-to-use spinach, the sliced breast, chopped cooked bacon and a little grated parmesan. Toss with vinaigrette, then heat the whole salad in a big pot until warm and slightly wilted.

Parmesan toasts are wonderful with soup or salad. Thin-slice a dense sourdough bread and bake at 300 degrees until toasted. Make a paste of parmesan cheese and a little olive oil, spread on toasts and bake at 400 until melted. Cool overnight.

White bean salad is a snap when you start with canned cannellini beans, rinsed and drained. Add a small diced tomato, a small minced shallot, minced garlic to taste and basil, preferably fresh. Season with salt and pepper, red vinegar and olive oil.

Flavor secret: one New York pastry chef places a chocolate truffle into each chocolate souffle he makes. As the souffle rises, the truffle melts to add extra richness and depth of flavor.

High School Mock Trial Competition Develops "Doers"

The 1998 mock trial season is drawing to a close with all participants coming out winners. Student team members have exercised their minds both in and out of the courtroom, much in the same way student athletes may have to exercise their bodies on and off the playing field. Many hours went into preparation for the legal battles, and once the trial was underway the courtroom manuverings challenged each individual to think quickly on his or her feet to contribute to the team effort.

"High school athletic programs certainly develop qualities of courage and perseverance," John Toston, one of the mock trial judges, observed. "These same qualities are both needed and developed through mock trial. The students face challenges, often unexpected, and work to meet them — not always successfully. Adjustments are made and growth occurs. This is education," he said.

The local mock trial circuit has seven teams, from Northern, Southern, Westmar, Bishop Walsh, Fort Hill, Allegany, and Flintstone high schools.

The NHS mock trial team was very young this year, with two juniors and 14 freshmen making up its roster. The big turnout of interested students required a split into two teams. The NHS #1 team pulled off a season highlight with a stunning upset of previously unbeaten Fort Hill in an Oakland courtroom.

"This year's group of young people were exciting to work with," commented NHS team coach and advisor Tom Ables, who was assisted by Rosalind Wiserman and attorney advisor Mary Louise Walcek. "They were focused and the most motivated group we have ever had here at Northern. We expect good things from them in the future," Ables said.

The SHS mock trial team, with eight active members, has had a tough year, but coach and advisor Matt Novak is proud of its hard work and gritty determination. "Our losing record reflects a lack of experience but not a lack of effort," said Novak. "Hopefully the hard work and valuable lessons learned this year will result in a better record next year." Attorney Leonard Eiswert assisted Novak in preparing the team for trial.

Mock trial judge Ralph Burnett had high praise for both Garrett County teams. "I'm impressed the most by the kids' thinking and speaking abilities, and could see personal confidence grow over the course of the competitions. It's no surprise that the percentage of students who go on to college is higher for mock trial competitors than it is for many other high school activities.

"People can sometimes make the mistake of thinking that mock trial competition is geared to producing lawyers, but this just isn't so," Burnett continued. "It's a process that develops clear thinkers and clear speakers — the people who become doers. You can see the light bulbs go on over their heads when they 'get it' right there in the courtroom," said the judge. "I love it when that happens."

Board Increases Estimates For General Fund

The Maryland Board of Revenue Estimates, consisting of State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein (chairman), State Treasurer Richard N. Dixon, and Budget Secretary Frederick W. Puddester, this week increased its estimates of state General Fund Revenue by $69.7 million for the current fiscal year (1998) and by $73.2 million for fiscal year 1999, which begins July 1, 1998. The revised estimates total $7.9 billion for fiscal year 1998 and $8.2 billion for fiscal year 1999.

The board increased its estimate of personal income tax revenue for the remainder of fiscal year 1998 by $61.7 million, to $4.1 billion. "Maryland employment gains of 2.3% in 1997 matched the national performance, with the strongest job gains in the state coming in construction, communications, finance, wholesale trade, and business services," said Goldstein. Employment is expected to increase a further 2% in 1998.

"With a tight labor market pushing up wages, average wages in Maryland increased an estimated 4.2% in 1997, the strongest rise in six years. As a result of continued job and wage growth, income tax withholding has increased 8.1% during the first seven months of fiscal year 1998. Estimated tax payments are also strong, due to taxpayers taking advantage of both a booming stock market and a cut in the federal capital gains rate," the board wrote Governor Glendening. Recent data indicate that capital gains reported by Maryland taxpayers rose 42% in 1996 and 46% in 1997.

For fiscal year 1999, which begins July 1, 1998, the board increased personal income tax estimates $73.2 million, to $4.2 billion. "With taxpayers taking advantage of the capital gains rate cut for tax year 1997, it's likely that the growth in reported capital gains won't be quite as strong the following year," Goldstein said.

The board said the large growth in nonwage income, such as bonuses, stock options, and capital gains, should not be viewed as permanent. "Increases in wage income generally remain in the income tax base and permanently increase income tax collection," the board said. "In contrast, the board recognizes that a substantial portion of the recent rapid growth in the personal income tax is related to nonwage income that may grow more slowly or decline in future years."

Estimates of estate tax collections were increased $6 million for the current fiscal year, 1998, to $124.3 million. "Recent collections have run higher than estimates because of a larger than normal number of large estates settled this year. The strong stock market has also increased the value of estates," Goldstein said.

Miscellaneous state revenues for the current fiscal year, 1998, have been increased by $2 million, to $181.2 million, reflecting a one-time franchise tax settlement.

The Board of Revenue Estimates said all other revenues are performing largely as expected and warrant no further revisions. The board will continue to monitor the revenue situation closely and advise the governor of any changes in Maryland's economic outlook.

Vajo Receives Award From U.S, Canadian Space Agencies

Tammy Vajo has been named a recipient of an Allied Signal Recognition Award by her employer, Allied Signal Technical Services Corporation, for providing outstanding customer satisfaction to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Canadian Space Agency. The award was bestowed in recognition of her noted achievements in spaceflight operations support for the two space agencies over the past year.

The daughter of Jarryl and Betty Wolford of Mtn. Lake Park and a graduate of Southern High School, Vajo has worked at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center for six years since her graduation from Frostburg State University with a degree in physics. Last year she was requested to provide spacecraft flight operations support to the Canadian Space Agency's RADARSAT spacecraft in Montreal, Canada. NASA has a contract with the Canadian Space Agency to provide spacecraft support to the RADARSAT project.

Vajo worked with a team of Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) scientists to conduct science planning on the Antarctica Mapping Mission. This involved using the spacecraft to map the entire continent of Antarctica, something never done before. During the three week mission, the spacecraft suffered four anomalies, resulting in the loss of some data. Vajo's team worked to successfully recover the lost data, and as a result of its efforts 100% of the continent was mapped. The data collected over Antarctica are being analyzed by the JPL in California and the Byrd Polar Research Institute at Ohio State University.

Vajo currently resides in Sykesville.

Meriam Brode Earns Statewide Recognition For Work In The Arts

Meriam Brode, resident spinner and basket weaver at Spruce Forest Artisan Village, Grantsville, will be honored next week for her accomplishments in the arts.

The Maryland Commission for Women and the Maryland State Department of Education have released the names of 26 women to be recognized through "Maryland Women in the Arts."

Selected for their artistic achievements, the women represent a broad spectrum of arts including puppetry opera, drama, and pottery. The baskets woven by Brode are of two types, she explained. "There are the traditional Appalachian baskets and one-of-a-kind baskets. These I make with bits of local wood woven into it,' she said.

A reception to honor the 26 artists has been scheduled in Baltimore as part of Maryland's Women History Celebration. Brode is pleased to be included in this event, she said. "Things have changed a lot in the arts. This recognition shows the younger people that they do not need to be limited," Brode said.

In a journey marked by coincidences, Brode moved from her role teaching foreign language in a suburb of Washington, D.C. to her life of spinning and basketry in the mountains.

A small but catalytic event for her was a shopping trip to the newly opened mall in Cumberland. She was looking for yarn to make sweaters for her children, she said. Before she was able to find the yarn, she saw a woman demonstrating the home-art of spinning wool. Brode said her attention was captured.

Right after watching the spinner she saw an ad for a spinning wheel that someone was selling. She bought it. Next, she said, she went to the library where she found only one book on spinning.

These coincidences were leading Brode in a direction that set a course she has maintained. "That all happened about 17 or 18 years ago. I used that book and taught myself to spin and knit. It took two years to make those sweaters for my children," she said.

It was the yarn that led to the baskets. "I was making so much wool and it was all over the place. I started to make baskets to store it in," she explained. The baskets were used in her studio at Spruce Forest. "People would come in and ask me about the baskets. They wanted to buy them," she said. So basketry was for Brode an outgrowth of spinning.

Using natural materials for her work allows her to spend time in the woods. "You learn to be patient. You learn to be in tune with the seasons. You get in the rhythm of the seasons."

Working as an artisan has brought her into contact with very interest people, she said, and she has learned skills from some and taught skills to others. "My teaching has never really ended. It has just changed," she concluded.

The event honoring Brode and the other women artists will be held at the Maryland State Department of Education on March 19.

LOCAL ARTIST HONORED - Basket weaver and spinner Meriam Brode, whose studio is in Spruce Forest Artisan Village, Grantsville, will be honored next week along with other artists at the "Maryland Women in the Arts" celebration sponsored by the Maryland Commission for Women and the Maryland State Department of Education.

Lakers Open Baseball Season With A Doubleheader Split

The Garrett Community College baseball team, which is the defending Maryland JUCO Conference regular season champion and returns 17 of 19 players, opened its 1998 season Saturday by splitting a doubleheader with host Bridgewater College. The Lakers lost the first game, 4-2, and won the second, 10-7.

Accounting for the Lakers' runs in game one were Dave Collins with an RBI double in the first inning and Chris Powell with a run-producing single in the fifth.

Chip Woody had a double and a single among Bridgewater's seven hits, while Sean Woody, Richie Anderson, and Gene Crawford each rapped a double. Shannon Kite earned the win on the mound over Garrett's Mike Johnston.

At Bridgewater, Va.
Game One

Bridgewater	002	101 000-47	1
Garrett	100	010 000-25	1

Mike Johnston, Jeremy Fitzwater (4) and Jason Davis; Shannon Kite and Chip Woody.

Game Two

Chad Ord, Mike Maravich (5) and Lee Pennington, Jason Davis (5); Josh Whitley and Gene Crawford. HR - Sionn Fitzgerald (Bridgewater), Chris Powell (Garrett), 3.

Powell, a freshman for the Lakers, went wild with his bat in the second game, as he blasted three home runs in four at-bats, including one grand slam, and drove home six runs. Teammate Matt DiAngelo went 2-for-4 with a pair of singles and two RBI, while Joe Cusato added a double.

Combining for 10 strikeouts and the victory for the Lakers were Chad Ord, who pitched the first four innings, and reliever Mike Maravich. The two allowed six hits, three of which were by Simon Fitzgerald, including a homer and two singles for two RBI.

GCC Coach Ed Wildesen was pleased that his Lakers committed only two errors in the season-opening twinbill.

SEASON OUTLOOK

With 17 of 19 players back from last year, including All-Region, All-JUCO selection Denny Rulli, Coach Wildesen is deservedly excited about his team's prospects this season. The Lakers finished with a 25-9 record last year, set a school-record 14 consecutive victories, won the JUCO title, and at one time during the season was the eighth ranked hitting team in the nation.

COACH ED WILDESEN

DENNY RULLI

JASON DAVIS

BRIAN HAYS

Rulli, a sophomore from Canfield, Ohio, was at one time the nation's fourth best hitter among all Division I junior college players. He finished the season with a .437 average, having hit 10 home runs and recording 43 RBI.

Another outstanding player back this year is sophomore Brian Hays, who hit .324 last season with four homers, 43 RBI, and 26 steals. Hays was drafted by the Anaheim Angels last year.

Highly regarded newcomers to the Laker squad include: catcher/shortstop Jason Davis, a transfer from Fort Scott, Kan.; middle infielder Matt DiAngelo, a transfer from Polk, Fla.; freshman left-handed pitcher Mike Johnston of Penn Wood, Pa.; and transfer sophomore Mike Maravich from the University of Louisville.

Davis, described by Wildesen as the best all-around athlete he's coached at GCC, batted .330 at Fort Scott last year and was drafted out of high school by the Houston Astros.

"We should be better both offensively and defensively than last year," Wildesen said, "not only because of our experience, but in terms of the versatility of our athletes. A lot of our players are capable of playing several different positions."

Wildesen believes that the Lakers' pitching should be at least as good as last season's, with Johnston as the number one starter. "We should have more depth than last year, and our number three, four, and five pitchers should be stronger," he said.

Former Southern High standout Jeremy Fitzwater is currently number two in the Laker rotation, followed by Maravich and freshman Chad Ord. Other returnees are Rulli, Gene Sethman, and Matt Stollings, while lefthander Rick Swanger is a newcomer.

The Lakers' shared last season's JUCO title with Allegany College, as the Lakers finished 18-4 in conference play and the Trojans earned a 19-5 mark.

The baseball tradition at GCC is a winning one, even though Garrett is the seventh smallest junior college in the nation, with just 350 students. The Lakers' diamond is also one of only two in the 24-team Region XX Conference that is equipped with lighting.

A single game scheduled for Tuesday against CCAC South was postponed because of snow. The Lakers are slated to play a doubleheader at Catonsville CC on Friday, a single game against Baltimore at Joe Cannon Stadium on Saturday, and single games against Mercer CC at Coastal Carolina next Tuesday and Wednesday.

W.VA. GOVERNOR'S CUP WINNERS FROM GARRETT COUNTY - Several local skiers distinguished themselves in last weekend's West Virginia Governor's Cup competition at Canaan Valley. Above, left to right, is the full contingent of Garrett County trophy winners, all hailing from the Deep Creek Lake area: Shane Myers, who placed third overall and second in both events; Todd Gibson, overall runner-up, who has won the overall title on two previous occasions; Amy Sutton, who took first in both events for her age group and second overall in the women's division; behind Sutton is Beau Gibson, this year's overall winner; and Eric Anderson, who placed third in the giant slalom for his age group. Beau Gibson, below, is shown with the trophies he earned by putting together the best giant slalom and slalom times, thereby edging out his own brother Todd for the overall title.

SCOFIELD WINS CUP - The 1998 Governor's Cup Ski Race was held recently at the Wisp Ski Area in McHenry, and a local youth turned in the best two-day combined time to capture the coveted cup. Billy Scofield of McHenry, 17, pictured above right, finished second in the Saturday race, but was fast enough on Sunday to finish with a combined time of 141.8 seconds. Scott Collins, pictured center, placed second with a time of 142.07, while Adam Frampton, left, was third with a combined time of 143.05 seconds. The top female finisher was Andrea Dearborn, who recorded at time of 156.69, followed by Bonnie Gray (163.30) and Amy Sutton (166.36). The top three finishers in the women's snowboard race were Holly Kuhn (222.28), Lisa Tempesta (281.61), and Raychelle Harris (309.17).

for all they did this year to help us."

The Rams finished with an overall record of 15-9 and a ninth place ranking in the state 1A poll.

Senator Pledges

but I'm sure you would rather deal with the minuses than be by-passed in this growing economy. To the extent that I can lay the groundwork, I would like to do what I can to see that Garrett County is not by-passed in the future," she said.

Mikulski is currently embroiled in efforts to establish more equitable highway funding for the state of Maryland. Both Maryland and Virginia face a joint 1.8-billion dollar rebuilding effort to replace the Woodrow Wilson Bridge if federal funds are not forthcoming. If state funding is required, it would seriously hamper funding for other highway needs in the state, and this is of major concern, according to the senator.

"In spite of these immediate efforts and demands, she pledged support for the 219 concept with special commitment to work with Maryland Secretary of Transportation David Winstead on funding for the development of the 2½-mile segment of 219 between Interstate 68 and the Pennsylvania line," said David Moe, Garrett County Chamber of Commerce co-president.

"We presented the Senator with a gallon of Garrett County maple syrup and asked her to visit Garrett County more often," Commissioner Fratz said.

Condoerr Tops Ready Mix In League Finale

Tom Stem scored 10 points in the final quarter and led five members of his team who finished in double figures, as Condoerr defeated Deep Creek Ready Mix, 91-70, to capture the Mountaintop Basketball League championship Monday evening at Garrett Community College.

Stem recorded a game-high 24 points for the winners, while Poke Winters netted 21, Dennis Gibson scored 17, Pete Brosnihan contributed 12, and Buddy Fauber chipped in with 10. Condoerr, sponsored by Doerr Construction and Concept Associates, was the defending league champion.

It was the third meeting of the season between the two teams, who split the two regular-season games.

Ready Mix took the momentum early and opened up a 25-14 lead by the end of the first quarter. However, Condoerr responded by going on a 28-10 spurt in the second quarter, behind eight-point efforts by both Gibson and Winters, to give Condoerr the lead for good and a 42-35 advantage at halftime.

Condoerr increased its lead to 10 by the end of the third stanza and led 66-56 going into the final period.

Jason Brenneman led Deep Creek with 21 points, Greg Inglese netted 14, Chad Reese hit 12, and C.J. Getson contributed 11.

Pete Brosnihan was credited with containing point guard Inglese, while Fauber handed the fulicourt pressure of Deep Creek Ready Mix's defense.

Gutsy Lakers' Comeback Falls Short To Hagerstown, 59-58

Sixth-seeded Garrett Community College's women's basketball team came within one point of pulling off an upset against third seed Hagerstown Junior College in the quarterfinals of the Region XX Tournament.

The hard-fought 59-58 loss, which included a gutsy Lakers comeback, was even more impressive in that underdog GCC played on Hagerstown's home court without Andrea Barrick for most of the first half. The starter had fallen into foul trouble early in the contest, but still managed to score nine points in her limited playing time.

The Lakers never gave up, battling back from a 14-point deficit at one point. They knotted the score at 58 with six seconds remaining, and, after a Hagerstown free throw, had one last-ditch chance for a miracle win. A perfectly executed full-court play got the ball into Marika Washington's hands at GCC's basket, but her attempt at the winning basket missed.

Chrissy Lambert and Erica McBride each scored 12 points to lead the Lakers in scoring, and Lambert worked the boards for 11 rebounds, sharing game-high honors with Hagerstown's Molly Shoneberg and Eleanor Baker. Guard Mary Walters added 11 points and dished out six assists to her fellow Lakers, while taking away five steals. Washington played a fine all-around game, with nine points, four assists, and a whopping eight steals. Shoneberg led all scorers with 14 points for Hagerstown.

The Lakers' 1997-98 final season record stands at 15-10. "I'm very proud of their play," commented head coach Ann Wellham. "The team really developed throughout the season. They were all freshman and were getting to know each other, and gained respect from the region in their ability as a comeback team."

With second-team all-season honoree Walters leading the returning sophomores next season, the Lakers stand to improve with another year of experience.

Rams Ousted From Regional Tourney By Wildcats, 49-44

The third time was not a charm for the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team, but it was for the Westmar Wildcats, who had failed in two attempts in the regular season to defeat the Rams, but were successful in the most important of the three encounters, played last Thursday evening at Northern High School. While the Rams went into the Maryland 1A West semifinal contest ranked second in the area and the Wildcats were rated 10th, Southern could not get on track, and could not contain Westmar's Joey Langham, who finished with a game-high 29 points to lead his team to a 49-44 victory.

The Rams held a 12-11 lead at the end of the first quarter, but were down by three at halftime, 23-20, and trailed by five, 34-29, at the end of the third quarter. The Wildcats led by as many as nine points late in the third quarter. The closest the Rams would get in the final period was four points when John Andrews hit a pair of free throws and Mike Paesani followed with a jumper.

Langham was the only Wildcat to finish in double figures. Andrews paced the Ram offense with 22 points and Paesani recorded 10. Josh Helbig pulled down eight rebounds.

"It's tough to beat a team three times in one season, even if you are the favored team," stated Southern coach Tom Bosley. "We just couldn't contain Joey Langham.

"But most of our starters are juniors, so we really had a very good year and things look real good for next season," Bosley said, adding that the Southern junior varsity finished with an impressive 17-3 mark under coach Dave Bender and the freshman boys, coached by Jon Hegeman, recorded a 14-5 record.

The Wildcats advanced to Saturday's regional championship game, which they lost to South Hagerstown, 72-57.

"I want to note my sincere appreciation to all of the people who supported our program this year," Bosley said, "including many local businesses, parents, our other coaches, trainers, statisticians, and students. It takes a lot more than one coach and a dozen players to have a successful program, and I thank everyone

Warnick Wins State Title; Huskies Sixth, Rams 12th

An 8-2 decision recorded by Northern High School's Jimmy Warnick made him the 1998 state 130-pound champion in last weekend's Maryland State 1A/2A Wrestling Tournament and led the Huskies to a sixth place team finish in the event.

The Huskies amassed 61 points to tie with Oakland Mills for sixth, while the Southern High Rams recorded a respectable 12th place with 51 points. Beall High was 28th with 19 points.

Warnick, who placed third in the state last year in the 119-pound division, finished this year's tournament with one pin and three decisions to earn his title. He pinned Chip Nassau of Hereford High School and recorded point victories over Scott Blackburn of Lackey (4-2), Drew Bowers of Owings Mills in the semifinals (12-9), and Hammond's Scott Osborn in the championship bout, 8-2.

The Huskies also brought home a runner-up trophy, as Jesse Shimrock placed second in the 135-pound division. Shimrock, a junior, topped Tim Chaburk of Albert Einstein High and Jon Campbell of North Caroline to earn a spot in the semifinals against Southern's Eric Rexrode. Shimrock decisioned Rexrode, 7-4, before falling by pin to undefeated Matt Yinger (28-0) of Francis Scott Key in the title bout.

Rexrode went on to win in the consolation match over North Caroline's Campbell, 2-0, to capture a third place for the Rams, while Tommy Sweitzer and Nick Dolan each placed fourth in the 145- and 152-pound divisions. Northern's Jimmy Green finished sixth in the 140-pound class.

Warnick entered the state tourney as the West Region champion and with a 27-3 record for this season. He captured the regional title twice, as well as the Garrett County and Bi-County championships twice. His career record at Northern is 84-10.

Shimrock was the Bi-County champion and placed second in regionals as a freshman, and was first in the Garrett County tourney last year as a sophomore, but missed both regionals and states because of illness. This season he placed second in the county tournament and second at regionals. His three-year record as a Husky is 73-22.

Southern's Rexrode entered the state tourney after placing third in the regional tournament, while Sweitzer and Dolan were both runners-up at regionals.

Green wrapped up his career for Northern with a 70-32 overall record, two Bi-County titles, a first and two seconds in the Garrett County tourney, and a first, second, and a third in regionals.

Also representing Northern in the state tournament by finishing among the top four at the regional tourney were Roy Holliday (103), Brandon Stein (112), Seth Huber (119), and Nate Kauffman (125), while others qualifying for Southern were John Hayhurst (160) and Russell Crosco, the regional champion in the 189-pound division.

Winning the state team title was Hammond High School with 93.5 points, followed by Williamsport with 83, McDonough with 74, Lackey with 75, Kent with 68.5, Northern and Oakland Mills tied for sixth with 61 apiece, Rising Sun with 58, North East with 56.5, Catoctin and Overlea tied with 53, and Southern in 12th place with 51. There were 40 schools represented in the tournament.

Beall's best finish in the tourney was by Robert Bowman, who placed second in the 171-pound division.

Soccer Assn. Slates Meeting, Needs Secretary

The Mountaintop Soccer Association will hold its annual public soccer meeting next Wednesday, March 18, in the cafeteria of Broad Ford Elementary School at 5:30 p.m. All coaches, parents, and interested parties are invited to attend. Planning for the upcoming fall season, election of officers, and open discussion will take place.

"The secretary position needs to be filled at this time," said Ron Petrella, president of MSA. "This position involves taking meeting minutes, assisting with the registration process, and is a voting member of the board." Voluateers are also needed for various committees.

"We look forward to another very successful year at MSA," said Petrella. "Soccer continues to grow at a tremendous rate each year, and it is through the dedication of our sponsors and volunteers that make it a very successful program. However, with this growth, it takes more and more people to assist us to ensure that we continue to offer a quality program to our area youth. We need more people to do the 'little things,' such as make phone calls, equipment distribution, registration process, and so on."

Persons interested in the secretary position or assisting [illegible] are asked to contact Ron Petrella at 301-334-1174.

Southern Mat Club Wrestlers Finish Second

Out of 41 teams participating in a tournament in Fairmont, W.Va., on Saturday, the Southern Mat Club defeated all but one of them, as host East Fairmont was the only team that amassed more points than the local youth wrestling team. The SMC members came home with four first-place individual trophies, three second places, six third places, and three fourth places.

Earning championships were: Scott Wildesen (ages 9-10/80 pounds), Justin Ratliff (7-8/60), and Nathan Sines with two first place awards (9-10/75 and 11-12/75). For the season, these three wrestlers have combined for 22 first-place awards, with Wildesen earning nine, Sines with seven, and Ratliff with six.

Finishing with second places were Scott Wildesen (11-12/80) and Brad Palmer with two (13-15/180 and 13-15/unlim.). Third-place winners for the SMC were: Daniel Carr (7-8/60), Rusty Donovan with two (11-12/80 and 13-15/83), Geoff Tressler (13-15/102), David Ratliff (9-10/65), and Jason Weeks (11-12/90). Finishing in fourth place were Tyler Gregory (4-under/40), David Ratliff (11-12/65), and Jason Weeks (13-15/90).

Other SMC members who won matches in the tourney, but did not finish among the top four were: Mitchell Tasker, Daniel Sisler, Jeremy Gregory, and Tyler Moore. Also competing for the mat club were Nick Tressler, Kyle Tressler, John Wolf, Nathaniel Stem, Jonathan Stem, and Michael Kulak.

"Finishing in second place at this tournament is something for these kids to be very proud of," stated Coach Dave Taylor. "There were so many top quality wrestlers from great teams. Our kids rose to the occasion and showed everyone what a great team we have become."

The team will travel to Frankfort High School in Short Gap, W.Va., this Saturday to compete in another tournament. Then on March 21, the SMC members will begin their quest to qualify for the national tournament by participating in the Mid-Atlantic Western District Tournament, to be held near Martinsburg, W.Va.

SMC PLACES SECOND - Out of 41 youth wrestling teams participating in a tournament in Fairmont, W.Va., Saturday, the Southern Mat Club of Garrett County had another outstanding outing by defeating 39 of those teams and placing second. SGAA SPONSORING SPECIAL PLATE — The Southern Garrett Athletic Association is now offering an organizational license plate, which depicts the Southern High School mascot and indicates the name of the school. The cost of the plates is a one-time fee of $35, which includes an annual membership in SGAA. Andrews said that the plate can be ordered now, without regard to the applicant's normal registration period. A new registration will accompany the new plates. DEEP CREEK LIONS REACH OUT — At least 26 students from the Maryland School for the Blind have experienced the thrill of snow skiing this winter, thanks to the efforts of the Deep Creek Lions Club and about 30 local high school student volunteers. The club has sponsored this program for over 20 years, bringing kids from the school three days a week for four weeks each winter. The Lions raise money for the program through several events, one of which is the kick-off dinner for Wisp Ski Resort's Winterfest celebration, which will be held tomorrow evening (March 13). Tickets to the event, which are $100 each, are still available and can be obtained by calling Tom Wenzel at 301-387-4811 or -5000. A "Las Vegas Night" to benefit the program will be held Saturday at Silver Tree, beginning at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend. In the photo above, left to right, are Trudy Pickrel, the volunteer coordinator of the program; Matthew Plantz, a 16-year-old participant from Mayfield Woods with limited vision (he also enjoys horseback riding and mountain climbing); and student volunteer Jackie Mattingly, a senior at Southern High School. Pictured below left is skier Jimmer King, 14, who is totally blind. He has been skiing in the program for six years, and also enjoys track and field, swimming, and riding his motorbike. His guide, not pictured, was Linda Buchanan. In the photo below right is skier Jay Griffin with his volunteer guide, George Falter. See story.

Blindness Is Forgotten As Skiers Fly Down Hill, With Guides In Tow

by Mary S. McEwen

The lack of sight would never hold back the energy of a teenager, and that, combined with assistance from the Deep Creek Lions Club and student volunteer guides, allows for several students from the Maryland School for the Blind to enjoy themselves a great deal on the ski slopes of Wisp Resort. Each year for over 20 years, the Deep Creek Lions Club has managed the Blind Skier Program at Wisp, which provides for at least 26 students to come to the slopes sometime over a period of four weeks. They then engage in the freedom of skiing, flying down the hill with their trusty volunteer guides at their sides.

"They have a terrific time," said Tom Wenzel, a member of the Deep Creek Lions Club who has headed up the Blind Skier Program for the past six years. "And the student volunteers from Southern and Northern do a great job. Students just seem to get along better with other students. Everyone has fun."

This Friday night, the Lions will be given the opportunity to hear a young woman speak about her years of fun in the program. Lakhisa Whitaker, a 21-year-old graduate of the Maryland School for the Blind, will present an appreciation speech to the Lions at the annual Winterfest kick-off dinner at Will O' the Wisp. The proceeds from the event, at which the Winterfest queen will be crowned, directly benefit the Blind Skier Program, Wenzel said. Tickets are $100 each and can be purchased from Wenzel, who can be reached at 301-387-4811 or 301-387-5000.

The Lions pay for the entire four-week program, which includes lodging, meals, and lift tickets for the skiers. They stay for three days — Tuesday through Thursday — and about six students come per week. According to a spokesperson for the school, the program could not be funded by the facility and the faculty and students greatly appreciate the work of the Lions.

Another fund-raising event held during Winterfest that benefits the program is Las Vegas Night, slated for Saturday, March 14, at Silver Tree Inn. This evening of fun begins at 8 p.m. There will be a $3 cover charge, Wenzel said, and numerous activities will be offered to the guests. All are encouraged to come enjoy the evening while supporting the skier program.

Wenzel pointed out that although the students are all from the Maryland School for the Blind, which is located in Baltimore, they are actually residents of all parts of the state.

"There is a misconception out there that we are just serving Baltimore kids," he said. "The truth is, the students who go to the school are from all over Maryland. There is a young woman who has been coming here for years and her home is in Cumberland. I think it's important for people to realize that this is a program for the whole state of Maryland."

The local high school students who volunteer their time to be guides receive student service learning hours in return. Wenzel said, however, that they truly receive more than that.

"They learn a lot when they help out with the skiers," he said, adding that the young volunteers are generally better at relating to the visitors. "Students just work better with other students. These kids don't want adults telling them what do to any more than any other teenagers do."

Trudy Pickrel is the coordinator for the volunteers, working all four weeks to manage schedules and trouble-shoot.

"She does an amazing job," said Lion Ed King. "We couldn't do it without her."

For more information about the benefit dinner or Las Vegas Night, persons can contact Wenzel at the numbers noted above.

Left Homeless

Also residing in the house were the child's parents, Milton C. DeWitt, 25, and Kelly D. DeWitt, 21, who were not at home when the fire was discovered.

Flames had already come through the roof of the house upon arrival of the first fire units. It took about one-half hour to bring the blaze under control. The estimated loss was $55,000, with $30,000 of that to the structure and $25,000 to the contents of the house.

Charles Cronauer, deputy chief state fire marshal, said in his report that the property, which is owned by the Garrett County Community Action Committee, was covered by insurance. Community Action is currently providing temporary housing for the family.

Also responding to the scene was the county air cascade vehicle, housed at the Deep Creek fire hall, and a unit from the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported. A unit from the Kitzmiller VFD stood by for Deer Park.

Fire fighters remained on the scene for over two hours.

Management Of Records Course Slated At GCC

Understanding record-keeping techniques is essential for those operating a small business, and a class being offered by Garrett Community College focuses on how to set up the basic required records: inventory and personnel records, receipts and disbursements, and federal, state, and local tax forms.

This class will meet March 16 and 23 from 6:30 to 9:45 p.m. Yvonne Basemore will be the instructor.

All classes will be held at the McHenry campus of Garrett Community College. Since space is limited, those interested in attending should register immediately. Frazee Is Named Winterfest Queen By Lions Club

The Deep Creek Lions Club announced this week that Brandi M. Frazee of Friendsville will be the 1998 Winterfest Queen. She will be crowned at the annual Winterfest kickoff dinner tomorrow, Friday, March 13, at the Will O' the Wisp in McHenry.

Frazee is the daughter of Brenda Frazee and the late Timothy Frazee. A senior at Northern High School, she has been a blind skier guide for the last four years of the Lions Blind Skier Program. She is the 1997-98 Northern High School drum major, has been named to the National Honor Society and Who's Who Among American High School Students, and is a member of the NHS softball team. She has also received the Minds in Motion award, been named NHS student of the month, is president of the Asher Glade Youth Group, is a member of Woodmen of the World, and was a finalist in the Maryland Junior Miss Scholarship Program.

Frazee's other activities include assisting with Bible school, after school tutoring, Special Olympics, and serving as the statistician for the NHS volleyball and basketball teams.

Frazee will represent the Lions Club at Winterfest, and will receive a $500 U.S. savings bond from the club. Persons interested in attending the kickoff dinner may contact Tom Wenzel at 301-387-5000 during the day and 301-387-4811 during the evening.

Child Abuser

convicted of several first degree burglary charges, as he was apparently involved in the breaking and entering of four local homes over the summer. He stole various items from houses owned by Patrick Malloy, William Lovell, Dennis Savage, and Leroy Pawlak.

Sherbin sentenced Helms as follows: for the three counts of first degree burglary, 10 years each; for four counts of second degree assault, a total of 50 years (with 10 to run concurrently); for child abuse, 10 years; and for second degree burglary, five years.

According to a court spokesperson, Helms showed no emotion when Sherbin announced the sentence. The child's mother, however, was apparently overcome with emotion and was finally cautioned by the judge to quiet down or exit the courtroom.

VOP, DWI Cases Heard

In other Garrett Count Circuit Court news, a McHenry man was sentenced to jail time for DWI (driving while intoxicated) and a Grantsville man received less time in jail as a result of an appeal.

Vernon Arvine Campbell Jr., 36, McHenry, pleaded guilty to the charges of driving with a revoked license and DWI. Sherbin accepted the plea and sentenced him to two years in jail (six months for the license violation, concurrent with two years for DWI). He also fined him $1,000, according to the court report.

Campbell was stopped on June 19, 1996, along Rt. 219 by a Maryland State Police trooper.

Timothy Ray Poindexter, 31, Grantsville, appealed a Garrett County District Court sentence he received for a violation of probation (VOP) charge. In district court, the defendant was sentenced to 10 months in jail.

In the appeal, Poindexter entered a guilty plea to VOP, and Sherbin sentenced him to 10 months, but suspended all but three months of the term, according to the report.

GCC Hoping

faced with a growing disadvantage," Dr. Herman commented recently. "Before then, funding had been favoring GCC because we are small and in a low-income area; however, under the current formula the large institutions benefit greatly, the smaller colleges have to retrench. GCC would see no new state funding until the year 2002, and that could lead to serious ramifications.

"It's to the advantage of big schools to say 'Let's pay the same amount per student'," Dr. Herman continued, "because they have so many students to begin with. Proportionally, it costs more for GCC to provide the services that larger institutions do; for example, a program costing just $100 takes a much bigger percentage of our budget than it would from a bigger college.

"GCC represents 1.8 percent of the state's outlay for community colleges," he said, "and we have the lowest percent of any community college's budget devoted to salaries, with the lowest salaries in the state by far and only 15 full-time faculty members. If we get the supplemental funding, we'll split it over the three-year period between special projects and basic operations. Recurring expenses, which also tend to increase year after year, fall into our basic operating budget, including salaries, insurance, electricity, and materials. It's vitally important to the college that it does pass," said Dr. Herman.

Trustees' Meeting

In other GCC news, the GCC Board of Trustees met recently. The aforementioned funding issue was discussed, along with the following items.

Dr. Herman proposed the following tuition rates which were approved by the board. For FY 1998, dual enrolled high school student tuition is set at $33 per credit hour, with a waiver for the student fees.

For FY 1999, tuition rates will be as follows: $70 for in-county students; $120 for out-of-county students; $190 for out-of-state students; and $35 for dual enrolled high school students.

An official policy was adopted by the trustees for the college that encourages purchase of goods and services from local Garrett County businesses, to the extent that it is prudent. "We want to maximize our spending output to local businesses," said interim dean of administration Michelle Quinn as she introduced the policy document. Dr. Herman concurred, as he said that "GCC wants to see as much business as possible go back into the local community through local businesses." The policy was adopted by a unanimous vote.

The board also unanimously voted to approve a consolidation of the financial affairs office that elevates Quinn to the status of interim dean of administration. Upon completion of her master's degree this spring, Quinn will become a full dean. "From when she was first hired as comptroller," Dr. Herman commented, "Ms. Quinn turned our financial management around. The business office has become an outstanding arm of the institution, thanks to the hard work and ability of Michelle Quinn and Peggy Knox." Herman named Knox as the interim head of the business office as well.

In another staffing move, math department chair Dr. Nancy Priselac reported that a former GCC student, Tim Foster, has been appointed the new Math Center Coordinator. Foster began his studies at GCC when he was already in his 30s, starting out in developmental math.

"Although Tim admits that turning his attitude about math around was a challenge," Dr. Priselac said, "he eventually turned his own thinking and many of his fellow students' attitudes about math from the negative to the positive. We asked him to serve as a math tutor, and he eventually decided that he wanted to be a math teacher and went on to Frostburg State University to earn his bachelor's and master's degrees."

Foster was chosen from a field of 11 candidates.

Priselac also said that registrations were being received for the college's annual Maryland Summer Center. This year's center will integrate the fields of math, science and technology as participants learn all the phases of a space mission from the standpoint of mission controllers. A working visit to the Challenger Space Center in Wheeling, W.Va., is a feature of the program. Priselac stated that space is still available for students in grades 9 through 11, and that registration can be made by calling the math department offices at 301-387-3045.

In reviewing a booklet on GCC's co-curricular program, Dr. Lillian Mitchell noted that the college is the only institution in the state that has a co-curricular requirement for graduation. The program has been in existence for about four years, beginning with anniversary observance of World War II and, of late, exploring multi-cultural themes.

Dr. Mitchell presented the enrollment figures for the spring semester. The college has 648 students enrolled, up three from last spring. The full-time equivalency generated is 232 FTE, down from 235 last spring. She added that the numbers will increase when several computer courses begin later in the spring.

Dr. Herman reminded the trustees that the middle states college reaccreditation team will be visiting the college from March 29 through April 1, and that as part of the visit the team will be meeting with the trustees.

ed complaints in Western Maryland, and that the agency will work with the Garrett County Commissioners to educate and inform Garrett County residents and tourists about living in or visiting "bear country."

In May, according to Griffin, DNR will convene a briefing that will include a citizens' forum to gather input from and inform the public of the agency's progress in addressing the bear issue.

In commenting on Griffin's response, Edwards and Hafer expressed their willingness to wait and see how effective DNR's approach to the bear situation is. "If the department does not do what it says," the legislators stated in a press release, "we will pull the [proposed] bill out of the drawer and introduce it at the appropriate time."

The full text of Griffin's response and Edwards' and Hafer's comments are printed on this page.

The next gathering will be on April 2 in the conference room of the economic development office in the Garrett County Courthouse.

Letters

What is happening to our president and those around him could happen to any of us before a grand jury with its heavy prosecutorial bias. It is punishing to even be called to appear, because of the legal expenses forced on you just to answer useless questions. You can't even have a lawyer in the jury room with you, but you sure better have one.

The grand jury is fine for heavy-duty crime, but Starr is way over the line here. He has spent over 40 million of our tax dollars over many months now and has come up with no crime. In the meantime, he is still handling cases for his law firm and making well over a million a year himself. And I wonder how much of that he will pay in taxes.

I hope this at least continues the debate on the subject of the uses and abuses of the grand jury and stimulates, big time, debate on the worthiness of our new, fourth branch of government for investigating people's private lives, the Independent Counsel's Office.

Ken Starr's actions are damaging the country, and I for one would want our tax money spent more wisely and our votes counted for what they are.

Sincerely,
Cynthia Knight

To the Editor:

I read with great interest a letter to the editor last week by Mr. Doug Oxford about the Service Club Basketball League in Oakland and the involvement of Mr. Dave Bender and Mr. Fred Gregg. Doug's letter hit the nail right on the head, in my opinion. I had also written a letter to the editor (which are the remaining paragraphs of this letter) and didn't get it in to your office in time for last week's publication. After reading Doug's letter, I thought I might just hold on to mine. But after thinking about it, I decided to submit it anyway in case any of your readers missed Doug's letter.

There have been many times over the years that I thought about writing a letter to the editor, but for one reason or another, I just didn't do it. With all of the negative things going on in the world today, I thought it would be good for your readers to hear a few positive ones. I guess this letter is sort of an appreciation letter for two people who have worked tirelessly for the past couple of years and I am sure have not heard the words "thank you" very often.

The two individuals I am referring to are Coach Dave Bender and Coach Fred Gregg. These two men have almost single-handedly run the Service Club Basketball League in the Oakland area for the last several years. This year the league expanded to include a girls' 7th and 8th grade division, and the response was incredible. We now have three divisions with 48 youngsters in each division and there is some talk of adding more divisions next year. I am sure no one, except maybe their families, realize the amount of time and effort it takes to run a league with three divisions and three practice and game venues. Scheduling alone I am sure is a nightmare.

The championship and consolation games for each division of the Service Club Leagues were played this past Saturday at Southern High School, and the enthusiasm and participation was extraordinary. Both the main gymnasium and the auxiliary gymnasium were packed with people and the smell of "March Madness" was in the air. I have watched the games in the Service Club League since its inception three years ago and every year the level of competition has increased without compromising the basic principles upon which the league was founded: namely, getting as many youngsters involved in playing organized basketball, with proper instruction on skills, team play, and attitude, as time and gym space would allow. Coach Gregg and Coach Bender have worked endlessly to free up gym space, organize practice and games schedules, and make sure league coaches and officials know that they are there to help mold the next generation of citizens, not NBA superstars.

If Dave Bender and Fred Gregg didn't take the time to make this league so successful, would someone else step up to the plate and take control? Maybe! But if you are a parent of one of the 144 youngsters who participated in the league, is that something that you would like to have to find out? Probably not! So if you had a child play in the league this year, make it a point to tell these two men how much you appreciated their time and efforts. Hopefully we can keep them involved in the Service Club Basketball League for a long, long time to come.

Sincerely,
Kevin Liller

Creel Survey For Yough River Lake Set Through Oct.

A creel survey of the Youghiogheny River Lake will be conducted beginning in mid-March, according to Maryland Department of Resources (DNR) Fisheries Service western regional manager Ken Pavol.

The Fisheries Management Division of the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission will conduct the seven-month survey, projected to continue until late October, in cooperation with DNR and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The creel survey will include both the Pennsylvania and Maryland portions of the lake, with a portion of the Youghiogheny River in Maryland to be surveyed during March and April.

The creel survey will seek angler information regarding the amount of time fished, fish species sought, fish species caught, number of fish kept, number of fish released, length of fish kept, total fishing effort, fishing effort by species, and angler opinion about the fishing. Information for all fish species from both boat and shore anglers will be collected. Fish population surveys by commission biologists will also be conducted during 1998.

Three creel clerks, employed by the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission, will be making on-the-water angler contacts beginning in mid-March and continuing until late October. These clerks will circuit the lake by boat to count anglers and conduct angler interviews on random days and at random times, following standard procedures used on other Pennsylvania waters to gather valid data.

The labor-intensive effort of the creel survey and biological sampling effort provides information necessary for management of Yough Lake for continued fishing activity. The Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission asks that all anglers contacted cooperate in this survey.

For additional information about this creel survey, interested persons may contact the Somerset office of the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission Fisheries Management at 814-445-3454.

DNR's Griffin Emphasizes Education, Proposes Citizens' Forum On Bears

Below is a statement by Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer in response to Department of Natural Resources Secretary John Griffin's letter responding their concerns. Griffin's letter follows the legislators' comments. Both statements are printed in their entirety. — Editor

To The Republican:

Enclosed is a copy of a letter we received from Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary Griffin in reference to our meetings on the black bear issue in Garrett County.

As you can see, the Secretary spells out some things that the Department will emphasize and expand upon, and one of the most important issues is the relocating of bears to other parts of the State.

We do have a draft of a bill in hand to mandate the State to implement all the recommendations of the Black Bear Task Force by June 1, 2000. With this letter and the word of the Department that they will move quickly on the matters outlined in the letter, we are willing to give them that opportunity and will not introduce the bill this year. We will be watching the Department to make sure they move as quickly as possible in looking to do the things spelled out in the letter.

This issue is very important to the citizens of Garrett County. They need assurance that the State has a concern and is trying its best to handle the situation. If the Department does not do what it says, we will pull the bill out of the drawer and introduce it at the appropriate time.

— Del. George Edwards and Sen. John Hafer

Dear Senator Hafer
and Delegate Edwards:

I enjoyed our recent discussion about your intention to introduce legislation that would require full implementation of the recommendations of the Black Bear Task Force. I found it both informative and thought provoking. I have given great consideration to many of the related issues we discussed, and would like to propose a course of action aimed at cooperatively addressing the concerns held by you and your constituents in Western Maryland.

What I propose is that the DNR revisit the State's black bear management efforts in light of increases in property damage complaints and other human/bear conflicts as well as possible changes in public attitudes and tolerance of bears. While the Department does not support a hunting season at this time, these issues warrant discussion of other alternatives as we re-evaluate our management efforts. This would certainly include relocation of bears to suitable habitats elsewhere in the State. Of course, this alternative would require consultation with representatives of other regions in the State, as bear occurrences continue to progress eastward. Our goal would be to determine acceptable population levels and implement management strategies that consider the differing social and environmental conditions, as well as the differing needs and desires, of the potentially affected regions in the State.

To implement such a process in a manner timely enough to allay the concerns of your constituency is indeed an ambitious endeavor. Beginning immediately, we will initiate a comprehensive evaluation of the feasibility of identified options, and identification of a recommended approach to the management of Maryland's bear population, to be completed as quickly as possible in calendar year 1998. In the meantime, DNR will continue to emphasize and prioritize public education regarding bears and bear habits, responsiveness to citizen complaints and reported bear/human conflicts, and compensation for crop and other bear related damage through the Black Bear Conservation Stamp and other means.

I have directed DNR staff in the western region to develop a broader, more effective and swifter mechanism for addressing citizens' bear related complaints in the region. Development of a collaborative response mechanism involving staff of the Natural Resources Police, the State Forest and Park Service, and the Wildlife and Heritage Division (WHD) is to begin immediately. WHD staff are to provide the necessary training to the other involved units, so that response policies are communicated and carried out uniformly and consistently.

Staff of our Public Communications Office have discussed the broader team approach with the Garrett County Commissioners and the idea was well received. The Commissioners were particularly interested in the public information and education opportunities presented by a broader DNR bear response team. They have offered to play a direct and active role in informing and educating Garrett County residents and tourists about living in or visiting "bear country." Needless to say, we welcome their interest and support.

With regard to bear crop damage, many have anticipated that the revenue generated by this year's sales of Black Bear Conservation Stamps may not be sufficient to provide full compensation to affected farmers and landowners. A preliminary assessment of the eligible claims and the current status of the fund indicates that this is the case. In order to reimburse eligible claims at a level commensurate with those that were made last year, I will further endow the fund and ensure that adequate funds are available.

Finally, DNR will convene a briefing in May to update you and others on the status of the elements outlined above. The meeting will include a citizens' forum which will serve to inform them of our progress as well as to gather input from them, related to their on-going bear concerns. Please let me know at your earliest convenience if this meets with your approval.

Sincerely,
John R. Griffin

TWILIGHT

Rated R - Running time: 1:35

From an Academy Award-winning writer/director and three Academy Award-winning actors, one would expect a better film than Twilight, in which Paul Newman, Susan Sarandon, and Gene Hackman can't seem to achieve the tension that Robert Benton intended their relationships to have. This is supposed to be a steamy, sexy thriller involving a love triangle and the suspicion of a murder buried deep in the past. But flat performances and irritatingly pretentious dialogue have us checking our watches after the first half hour.

Newman plays Harry Ross, old friend of former Hollywood stars Jack and Catherine Ames (Hackman, Sarandon), a married couple who are fully aware of Harry's tender feelings toward Catherine. He's a former private investigator who has retired and seems to be working as a sort of errand boy and jack-of-all-trades for the wealthy couple. This is an appallingly menial position for his character, but perhaps he is doing it just to be close to Catherine, who enjoys a continuous cruel flirtation with him. When he's not fixing their dryer or lighting one of Catherine's numerous cigarettes, he's playing gin rummy with Jack.

When Harry attempts to deliver a message from Jack to a certain woman, he gets beaten to a pulp and left for dead, and this naturally makes him curious. So he decides to make a hobby of his old profession and check out the situation. This leads him into an extremely tangled web of intrigue involving his former partner, Verna (Stockard Channing), another old friend on the force, Raymond Hope (James Garner), and a couple of blackmailers (Margo Martindale, Liev Schreiber) who turn out to be more friendly than his friends.

Although this could be an interesting story, the performances are so low-key that they fail to illicit any significant rise of tension. Newman plays the entire movie as if he just woke up and hasn't had his morning coffee. He's supposed to be an alcoholic, but he doesn't drink any more than anyone else. Sarandon is so busy lighting cigarettes (big tobacco has scored again, obviously) that she fails at her only assignment: to be sexy. And Hackman's character isn't explored enough by the script to have him do much more than boss Harry around. The expository dialogue is so transparent that we feel we are being led by the hand. Surprisingly, the better performances here are by non-principals Martindale and Schreiber, who seem to have a lot more blood flowing through (and ultimately out of) their veins.

If this movie was cast with no-name actors or even rising stars, it would only be boring and undistinguished. But with a bill full of high-powered names like these, it's a downright disappointment. ★★★

HUSH

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 1:35

After a reasonably respectable showing in January's Great Expectations, Gwyneth Paltrow has followed up excellently with this season's Fatal Attraction-style thriller, Hush. Cast opposite Oscar®-winner Jessica Lange, Paltrow makes abundantly clear her ability to compete with one of the best actresses in the business. And in between these two powerhouse performances, it's impossible for Johnathon Schaech to look like much more than a handsome decoration.

As the film opens, Jackson Baring (Schaech) is taking his lover Helen (Paltrow) home to Virginia from New York City for Christmas and to meet his mother, Martha (Lange). The sprawling horse farm and imposing mansion is a total surprise for Helen, and despite an embarassing first impression (Martha finds her nude in Jackson's bed), the two women seem to get along. Martha hopes that Jackson plans to move back home and revive their failing racehorse business, but Jackson says no; he and Helen have their own life started in the city. Though Martha doesn't hide her disappointment at the prospect of selling the home she's known all her adult life, she tries to accept their decision. But when Helen mysteriously gets pregnant (after Martha sabotages her diaphragm), the couple get married and decide maybe it would be best for all concerned if they moved to the farm, at least to bring it back up to standard so that it can be sold for a profit.

As she spends the duration of her pregnancy on the farm, Helen begins to notice that Martha wields an incredible power over her only son, and she tries unsuccessfully to exert it on Helen, too. Befriended by Martha's mother-in-law Alice (Nina Foch), who resides in a nursing home, Helen becomes increasingly alarmed as Alice confides that although she seems sickeningly sweet on the surface, Martha has more of an agenda than she shows. And indeed, before the baby is born, Helen is running for her life.

It is hard to say whose performance is more stunning, between Paltrow and Lange. The increasing sense of panic swelling inside Paltrow alongside her baby is thick, almost tangible, as the two women's strained relationship escalates from a few mysterious remarks to an all-out roller coaster ride. Lange exudes sweetness and good intentions on the surface, and, until the end, betrays her dark side only enough to make us squirm a little. One can see the wheels turning in her mind throughout the film, but never can we begin to predict exactly what she's up to.

With actors like these two, it wasn't hard for director Jonathan Darby to convey the ever-growing angst buried in the powerful script crafted by him and Michael Cristofer. And the setting is a perfect contrast to its sinister plot. Beautiful scenery and Andrew Dunn's sweeping cinematography combine to produce spectacular images of a sunny farm in rural Virginia, suggesting a quiet, pastoral feel. Once again, an excellent choice to balance Helen's awful struggle against the dark reaches of Martha's mind. After several decades of mother-in-law jokes in movies and TV, Hush takes it to where it's not even funny. ★★★★

THE BORROWERS

Just a few months after the release of Mouse Hunt, we have another movie about a similar subject: small creatures living between the walls of an old house, being pursued by a ridiculous full-sized villain. In this screen adaptation of the classic book by Mary Norton, director Peter Hewitt has brought out the fun and adventure of the story admirably.

As the film opens, we meet Pete Lender (Bradley Pierce), a boy who lives with his parents in an old house that was owned by his now-deceased grandmother. When Pete and his parents leave to talk to a lawyer about the grandmother's will, we are introduced to the little family that lives in the walls. To the dismay of his nervous wife Homily (Celia Imire), Pod Clock (Jim Broadbent) is teaching his daughter Arrietty (Flora Newbigin) and son Peagreen (Tom Felton) the risky art of "borrowing": stealing small objects from the full-size occupants to use for their own purposes.

Following an enjoyable sequence with the Clock family swinging from dental floss and eating ice cream from the container in the freezer, the Lenders return home. They have learned from Ocious P. Potter (John Goodman) that their grandmother never left a will and therefore the house now belongs to the state. Feigning sympathy, the evil lawyer states, "Where there's no will, there's no way." We soon find, however, that Potter wants the house and he is actually planning to destroy the will which was hidden somewhere in it by the old lady.

In a movie meant for kids, the characters are supposed to be overblown, and so they are in The Borrowers. Goodman is the classic caricature of the selfish villain, who even has a moustache but loses it in an exterminator-related accident. The story of Potter discovering and chasing the borrowers around is great fun, and they are heroic in their attempts to retrieve the will and prove that the house belongs to their friendly host family. There is plenty of slapstick comedy, size-related jokes, and harrowing escapes for the tiny people.

There is a phenomenon prevalent in children's movies, though, something that only an adult would notice, but it seems sloppy and unnecessary nonetheless. The entire movie seems to be set in England in the mid-20th century, except for a few noticeable incongruities: the existence of things like plastics, cell phones, and refrigerators with ice dispensers in the door contrast with the fact that all the cars, clothes, and most other objects are 1940s vintage. And Potter and the Lenders are American, but all other characters are British. This can be noted in many kids' classics such as Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, Pete's Dragon, and Willy Wonka And The Chocolate Factory. Is this intentional, or are American actors just unwilling to play bit parts in children's movies?

It could be argued that this is a fantasy, and therefore is not meant to be confined to any time or place. But it seems like it could work just as well if everything matched up in one period or another. As I mentioned, a 5-year-old would never notice these things, and the movie is sufficiently fun if a little confusing to us picky old movie critics. So why don't I just pass the popcorn and get over it? ★★★½

Mrs. Glendening Announces Youth Poster Contest

"Looking to a Bright Future" is the theme of the Maryland Youth Initiative 2000 youth violence prevention program and poster contest, chaired by First Lady Frances Hughes Glendening. Mrs. Glendening said Maryland Youth Initiative 2000 will enhance services for children, youth, and families throughout Maryland by forming partnerships between existing violence prevention programs and service organizations.

To help launch this program, a statewide poster contest for children grades kindergarten through 6 has been planned. Students may submit works in crayon, paint, oil, pastel, cut paper or computer-generated form. All parts of the work must be original, and entries must be postmarked by April 30, 1998. Interested student artists should contact the Maryland Youth Initiative 2000 office or their local art coordinator for additional poster contest guidelines.

The Garrett County contact person is Dr. Brenda McCartney, director of curriculum and instruction for the county school system. She can be reached at the Garrett County Board of Education office on Fourth Street in Oakland, telephone: 301-334-8900.

"We are eager for children throughout the state to participate in this poster contest and help launch the Maryland Youth Initiative 2000 program," Mrs. Glendening said. "Without question, the arts give our young people an emotional outlet and improve the quality of their lives. This poster contest is a wonderful way for young artists to creatively express their vision of a bright, violence-free future in Maryland."

Winning posters will be selected from each county and Baltimore City. Selected posters will be displayed on the Maryland Youth Initiative 2000 website, or used for promotional and educational materials related to the program. The winning artists will receive "A Celebration of the Arts in Maryland" certificate of appreciation from Mrs. Glendening at a special Government House reception, and they will be given a U.S. Savings Bond.

The Prince George's Community Foundation is serving as the lead agency for the statewide Maryland Youth Initiative 2000 program. Mrs. Glendening is a founding member of the Prince George's Community Foundation, and serves as the chair of the statewide Maryland Youth Initiative 2000 program. Jerry Brock, vice president and senior development director of the Howard Research and Development Corporation, an affiliate of the Rouse Company, is the co-chair of this initiative. Several businesses, non-profit groups, and government agencies are part of this collaborative effort, according to Mrs. Glendening.

Mrs. Glendening has expressed her strong support of the arts and is sponsoring a two-year initiative titled "A Celebration of the Arts in Maryland 1997-1998," designed to publicly recognize Maryland artists and art institutions. In addition, she is an advocate for violence prevention programs, mental health awareness programs, and women's issues.

OAKLAND

- Oakland municipal elections were held on Monday, March 9. Mayor Asa McCain was re-elected. Council members elected were: incumbents Mary Lou Stemple and Harold Cannon, and Peggy Jamison. See story.
- Mayor McCain met with a group that will select a town manager for Oakland. In compliance with the guidelines of the Maryland Downtown Development Association (MDDA), the town must have a manager in order to receive the grant funding that was awarded to Oakland under the MDDA Main Street Program. Under the program the town will develop and follow a four-point program for economic revitalization.

"TWO FLD ISO GLH" - Two fluffy little dogs in search of good loving homes, that is. These two guests of the Garrett County Animal Shelter are available for adoption by warm-hearted households. Benji, on the left, is a 2-year-old mixed terrier who was turned in by previous owners; at the right, the black-masked mixed terrier, with perhaps a little Lhasa apso thrown in, is housebroken and was found on a local street. The Animal Shelter is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and may be reached at 301-334-3553.

Agency On Aging Nets $22K Grant For Home Meals

Homebound seniors will benefit from a $22,000 grant recently received by the Garrett County Community Action Committee, which will be used by the committee's Area Agency on Aging (AAA) to expand its home delivered meal program.

The grant will be utilized to expand the home meal delivery caseload to include 15 additional clients, bringing the total number of clients served to 165. The AAA also plans to increase the delivery of hot meals to four days per week, and to include a shelf stable meal for the fifth day.

"We are thrilled with the ability to provide much needed nutrition services to our most vulnerable population," stated an agency spokesperson. "People who are frail and elderly often face premature institutionalization due to poor health and frequent hospitalizations.

"Statistics indicate a high prevalence of malnourishment among hospitalized elderly," the spokesperson continued, "which further compromises their overall health status. As good nutrition is an integral part of the continuum of care, the agency attempts to reduce the incidence of malnutrition through its home delivered meal program," she said.

The AAA applied for the funding through the "Senior Helpings" initiative, sponsored by the Philip Morris Companies in partnership with the National Meals on Wheels Foundation. Because available federal, state and local funds prohibit hot meal delivery five days a week, the AAA routinely seeks alternative funding sources to bolster its efforts in nutrition service.

"This grant is the largest we have received from a foundation or corporate sponsor," stated Duane Yoder, executive director of the Garrett County Community Action Committee. "These funds will go a long way to assist the elderly population. Maintaining the frail elderly in the community through the provision of in-home services is of the utmost importance to Community Action and a priority of the Area Agency on Aging," Yoder said.

Oakland Man Jailed For Several Thefts

A phone call from a Wisp Hotel security officer, whose suspicions were aroused when three men checked into the hotel without bringing any luggage with them, led to breaks in three criminal investigations and resulted in the arrest of an Oakland man.

Dwight Howard Clary, 20, was arrested at the hotel last week by Garrett County sheriff's deputies, who had used a K-9 dog to conduct a drug scan of the vehicle that the three men had driven to the hotel. When the dog alerted to the suspected presence of drugs in the vehicle, a search ensued but no drugs were found; however, a stainless steel .357 caliber handgun with a black grip and a pillow case filled with coins were found in the trunk. Deputies were able to match the gun with the description of a gun taken in a Preston County burglary, and were informed by the Preston County Sheriff's Department that Clary had been named a suspect in that case.

In speaking to Clary and the other two subjects following this finding, deputies learned that they may have been associated with a rash of thefts from autos parked at the Oakland VFW that had occurred earlier that evening. Subsequent investigation also implicated Clary in a burglary that occurred at Bob's Garage in Kitzmiller last month. The business was burglarized and over $1,000 in property was removed.

Clary is currently held in the Garrett County jail on a $75,000 bond and faces charges of second-degree burglary, felony theft, and felony malicious destruction of property. Orval Ray Tasker, age unspecified, Altamont, faces the same charges and is being held on a $10,000 bond. A 16-year-old male also faces burglary charges through the Department of Juvenile Services.

In other sheriff's news, two Oakland residents were arrested yesterday afternoon by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force and charged with drug offenses.

Timothy McMaster, 30, and Nancy McMaster, 35, were taken into custody following the execution of a search and seizure warrant at their residence at 4 p.m. A quantity of marijuana and drug paraphernalia was recovered during the raid. The pair each face charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, and both are awaiting bond hearings at the District Court Commissioner's Office.

An Oakland man arrested on a bench warrant charging him with failure to appear for a court hearing on bad check charges was found to be carrying a small box of suspected marijuana as correctional officers were booking him at the jail. Greg Robert Geiser, 24, was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. He has since been released from jail.

ommendation from Dr. Teets, the money to accomplish these projects could be accessed through lease purchase agreements. "We hope this concept will be acceptable to the commissioners," Carpenter said.

The budget funding request will be presented to the Garrett County Board of Commissioners at a public meeting next Tuesday.

Dates Changed

After consulting with the principals of both Northern and Southern high schools, the superintendent recommended and the board approved Sunday, May 31, as the date for high school graduation.

Ceremonies at Northern will begin at 1 p.m. and at Southern at 4 p.m.

Dr. Teets recommended and the board approved the additional of an instructional day because the five allotted snow days have been exceeded. The day selected, based on a survey of the teaching staff of the school system, is Tuesday, April 14, will become a school day rather than remain a scheduled vacation day. "This is the preferred option of the staff, according to a survey by GCEA," Dr. Teets noted.

The dedication and open house at Yough Glades Elementary School will take place on May 2.

The date of the next regular monthly meeting of the board of education will be held Tuesday, April 7.

Other Business:

Personnel Matters

Under personnel matters, the board discussed suggestions by Dr. Teets to consider some administrative reorganization issues. He spoke of re-defining two positions: assistant superintendent and supervisor of maintenance and operations. Dr. Teets explained that his suggestions would result in increased efficiency of the administration by empowering the individuals in those positions to handle certain matters without recourse to the office of superintendent of schools. No action was taken at the meeting.

Social Studies Grades 6-8 Program of Studies

Dr. Brenda McCartney, director of curriculum pre-K-8, presented a revised draft of the program of studies for social studies courses in grades 6, 7, and 8. The program of studies outline will be available for public review and comment during the next month. See story.

Solar Schools Program

Mike Sines, supervisor of maintenance and operations, presented information on a statewide Maryland Energy Administration (MEA) program through which five schools will be selected to have electrical solar panels installed.

Sines will continue to pursue this issue.

LESS WORK FOR YOUR DENTIST

The philosophy of dentists today is to make you work harder at keeping your gums and teeth healthy so that there is less work to do when you come to him for your check-up. Today, your dentist takes the time to talk to you about how best to take care of your mouth, with brushing, flossing, massaging and rinsing.

We carry a great many dental health products in our pharmacy that can help to put into practice what your dentist is asking you to do. And, our personnel are trained to answer your questions about any of these products.

The Path to Personality

How beautiful this simple scene in God's world...a creek that ripples and sparkles, reflecting the sun as it gurgles through the wilderness. Now picture a still pond...no rippling...no gurgling. Which would you rather experience? Would it perhaps be the creek? It just seems to have a happy personality, don't you agree?

Note that it took a myriad of stones of all shapes and sizes, and certainly twigs, a fallen branch here and there, for the water to develop those ripples that lap at the stones so merrily.

We develop our personalities similarly. As we travel through life, there are rocky times when the path is made rough by unforeseen disappointments and sorrow. Yet, as we trust our Heavenly Father to guide us, we emerge with new peace and wisdom that inspires happiness in ourselves and in others.

As you worship each week, share your personality with others sharing God's house. Let your sparkle reflect God in your life.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ON EATING WITH TAX COLLECTORS

March 15, 1998

Background Scripture:
Mark 2:1 through 3:6
Devotional Reading:
Acts 2:22-36

One of the things that really alienated Jesus from the religious authorities of his day was the company he kept. In fact, Jesus probably would not have ended up on a cross if he just cultivated the 'right' people.

But he had that infuriating habit of associating with the worst sort of people: lepers, sick people, foreigners, sinners and (ugh!) tax collectors. (Lepers, foreigners and sinners for obvious reasons, but sick people because it was assumed they were sick because of sin and tax collectors, because they worked for the enemy, Rome!)

So, in Mark 2 when Jesus says to the paralytic whose friends have lowered his pallet through the roof of the house where Jesus was staying, "My son your sins are forgiven" (2:5), they are irate. I suspect they were angry because Jesus released this man from the paralysis of both his body and his spirit. They weren't ready to have this man healed. So, instead of giving thanks and praise to God that this man had been made whole, they turned to theology and grumbled instead: "It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?"

AN ACCUSATION

Jesus' 'error' might have been overlooked if he had just made that one faux-pas, but, as Mark makes abundantly clear, Jesus kept on doing it again and again. Next, Mark tells us that Jesus and his disciples are sitting at table with "many tax collectors and sinners." When the scribes of the Pharisees saw that, they challenged the disciples. "Why does he eat with tax collectors and sinners?" (2:16). Obviously, it wasn't so much a question as an accusation.

The scribes were caught up in one of those internal 'good guy/bad guy' systems of classifications. The essence of this kind of classification is the division of people into groups with labels, so that they are dismissed or condemned, not as individuals, but as 'kinds' of people. Tax collectors were definitely bad. Everybody with that vocation could be condemned and shunned without a moment's hesitation. Sinners, of course, were also bad and could be treated accordingly.

I read in the newspaper the other day that there is a lot of conflict in parts of India today where the "untouchables" are beginning to revolt against the caste system that denies them recognition as human beings. They are rejected by the upper castes, not on the basis of who they are personally, but as members of the "untouchable" caste, a caste to which other people have assigned them.

OUR CASTE SYSTEM

Our caste system operates on a considerably higher level, but we have it all the same. We use labels to characterize unfavorably people whom we do not know. Some of these insidious labels scarcely need mentioning; we are all aware of the existence of racial, ethnic and religious prejudices. But one which we may overlook is, in my mind, the most destructive of all: ideology.

Increasingly, many people are more concerned with what ideological camp you're in than what kind of person you are. To some, if you are tabbed a "liberal" or a "conservative," that, depending upon the one who is doing the labeling, is the worst thing that can be said about you and you are written off as "undesirable." People do the same thing with "Democrat" and "Republican," "fundamentalist" and "modernist," "anti-abortion" and "Pro-life." Challenged as to why he ate with "tax collectors and sinners," Jesus replied: "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I came not to call the righteous, but sinners" (2:17). All of us are sinners.

Three more times in Mark 2:18 through 3:6 they challenge him: on why his disciples are non-fasters while the Baptist's practiced fasting, and whether he violated the sabbath by plucking and eating grain and healing a man with a withered hand.

Jesus' response is instructive: "And he looked around at them with anger, grieved at their hardness of heart..." (3:5). Their labels truly grieved and angered him. How do you think he reacts to ours?

COVER STORY

McCarthy adopts new role in A Father for Brittany

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

Andrew McCarthy

Andrew McCarthy has had no trouble staying away from the slyly heroic and flashier roles in television and movies.

Unlike some of his contemporaries who are setting their phasers to stun or running frantically around an ER, McCarthy has chosen to take a quieter path, as evidenced by his role in A Father for Brittany, which airs Sunday, March 15, on CBS.

"I liked that (my character) was kind of without any guile," McCarthy says. "He was just a guy, not jaded or cynical in any way. That's hard to (portray), I think, to be that uncluttered and remain interesting."

The TV movie, which co-stars Teri Polo, Michael Learned and Shirley Knight, dramatizes the true story of Kim and Keith Lussier, a Wisconsin couple who were in the process of adopting a Korean orphan when Kim was diagnosed with cancer. Though they had custody of the child, she was taken away after Kim's death on grounds that the agency did not permit single-parent adoptions. But because of Keith's promise to his wife, he took the agency to court to get back Brittany.

For McCarthy, it was a rare opportunity to portray a real person.

"Keith came (to the set) during filming. We talked a lot. It was kind of nerve-racking, actually, at first. He was standing there watching me be him. And he'd say, 'I wouldn't do that, Andrew.' ... And I'd say, 'You do now, Keith.' "

Since McCarthy knew little about the adoption process before he started work on the movie, he read as much as he could about the case. And he insisted that one of Keith's real-life remarks be included in the film.

"At one point, a reporter asks, 'If you lose this case, will you appeal?' And he says, 'No, I won't, because that could go on for a year, and I don't think that would be a good thing for Brittany.'

"It wasn't in the script; I read that in some of the interviews and literature I had about him. We put it in (the movie) because it was such a touching kind of thing, and it seemed to sum up who the guy was."

There are few surprises in the film, yet it is a compelling story made richer by a strong supporting cast. Knight and Chuck Shamata are endearingly normal as Kim's parents, and Learned has strength to spare in the role of the adoption agency representative caught between the rule book and a loving parent.

Part of a generation of young actors once dubbed the Brat Pack, McCarthy has turned his back on St. Elmo's Fire and Weekend at Bernie's to make more subdued films, frequently about family life. His recent work includes The Joy Luck Club and the TV movie The Christmas Tree, with Julie Harris.

"When I first started, things just sort of happened to me," McCarthy says. "I was very young, and I took what was in front of me. And that was good and bad.

"My relationship toward acting has changed as I've grown up a bit; what I like about it and what interests me has changed. I'm just kind of interested in working with good people."

Two actresses better than one on AW

By Candace Havens
©TVData Features Syndicate

Jensen Buchanan

The roles of twins Vicky and Marley on Another World have always been played by the same actress, but that won't be the case much longer.

Ellen Wheeler, who originated the dual roles in 1984, is returning to play Marley, while Jensen Buchanan is set to continue on as Vicky.

"Having Marley back in Bay City full time will allow our writers to fully delve into the incredible rich history that Marley shares with her sister, Vicky; her ex-husband, Jake; and her mother, Donna," says executive producer Charlotte Savitz. "We can hardly wait to see Jensen and Ellen sharing the screen."

Buchanan says it was too stressful playing the twins full time and opted to play only one of the characters.

Wheeler, who won an Emmy Award in 1995 for her portrayal of the twins, returns this spring.

In other news: One Life to Live has yet another new head writer. Pam Long has replaced the mother-and-son writing team of Claire and Matthew Labine.

"As we approach the show's 30th anniversary, Pam will take OLTL in the direction our audience has come to expect: one filled with romance, adventure and the core family drama that has been the hallmark for almost three decades," says ABC Daytime President Pat Fili-Krushel.

Long began her career in front of the camera on Texas. She went on to work as the head writer of Santa Barbara and Guiding Light. For the past few years, she has been working in prime time, producing and writing Christy and Second Noah.

Dear Candace: I'm amazed that All My Children has written Gloria (Teresa Blake) off the show.

If the writers are unable to create a story line for an actress who is as beautiful and vivacious as Blake, then perhaps they should be the ones leaving the show. –E.M. Peterson, Pocatello, Idaho.

Dear Reader: AMC fans were outraged by the sudden firing of Blake. The actress says she was surprised but is looking forward to moving on. Blake is a hot commodity. If she doesn't show up on another soap soon, you'll see her in prime time.

Antiques

Look in Grandma's backyard! You might find a fortune.

The Weller Pottery Co. of Zanesville, Ohio, made a number of different garden ornaments. The pottery, which opened in the 1920s, closed in 1948. The company was well-known for its vases, jardinieres and floral ceramics.

The company's catalogs pictured realistic, life-sized birds, such as a goose, a pelican and a pair of swans, the largest 20 inches high.

Weller also sold a 7-inch squirrel, a 15-inch crow and a 13-inch-long rabbit. They were all molded and colored to appear real when placed in the garden.

Other figures included smaller turtles, ducks, cats, dogs, owls and chickens.

There also was a group of fantasy figures that now sell for thousands of dollars each. Pan with a fife is 16 1/2 inches high. A seated elf that is 14 inches high, an elf on a rock 18 inches high, and two small elves on toadstools that are part of a 17-inch-high group all were made to look as real as possible.

Several larger-than-life frogs were made. The most impressive is the spotted green frog playing a banjo. It was made in four sizes up to 12 inches high.

Whether you're in Grandma's backyard or a neighborhood garage sale, look for old ceramic garden figures. The name "Weller" was placed on the bottom of most of its garden wares.

Q. I just purchased a cigar cutter but don't know how to use it. It's a penguin made of metal and standing on a tray. There's another metal piece that looks as though it should hold something. The beak moves up and down. The bottom is marked "Goberg Ges. Gesch." Can you help?

A. First, buy a cigar. Place the cigar under the upraised beak, and bring the beak down, slicing off one end.

The other metal piece was made to hold a box of matches.

Your penguin cutter is worth from $350 to $450.

Home Tips

VIRGINIA A. of Newnan, Ga., writes: Here are my Home Tips.

1) Charcoal lighter fluid is great for getting chewing gum off clothes or furniture. Leave on a few minutes and rub off with a soft cloth.

2) I use a piece of masking tape on top of my refrigerator bowl lids to write on there what the leftover is. Then I don't have to take the lid off when I look to see what I have left over in the refrigerator.

3) When I make a videotape, I cut out the movie out of the TV magazine or the one that comes with the paper. It tells what the movie is about, who's in it, and how long the movie lasts. I tape that on the videotape on the top.

4) I do the same thing with books that the lady who wrote in about "Keeping Track" does with VCR tapes. I list them so when I go to the library, I know which books I have already read.

A & E Network Biography®

AMELIA EARHART: THE LADY VANISHED

Amelia Earhart was a major star of her day. She was a flamboyant risk taker, denying the boundaries ascribed to females, always garnering maximum publicity. What she may not have been was a very good pilot.

As recounted in March's Biography magazine, after her father treated her to a passenger ride in an open-cockpit biplane, Earhart decided to learn to fly. Her instructor thought her a careless daredevil. On her first solo flight, she showed off with unrequired aerobatics, then made what she admitted was "a thoroughly rotten landing." After crashing her first plane, she was found powdering her nose to look good for reporters.

Even with experience, the crashes continued — as did the positive publicity. George Palmer Putnam, heir to the G.P. Putnam's Sons publishing empire, hired her as the first woman on a transatlantic flight. Although she was just a passenger, Putnam publicized her presence to the max, dubbing Earhart "Lady Lindy." Upon her return, Putnam continued the hype, bankrolling a cross-country flight — with just one tiny crash, which Earhart said was her first.

Eventually, Putnam left his wife and married Earhart. Together, they planned her solo transatlantic flight. Despite problems, Earhart completed it, earning the Congressional Distinguished Flying Cross. Subsequent female firsts followed.

As the golden age of daredevil flying passed, Earhart found it harder to make headlines, so she announced an around-the-world flight. One of her navigators quit after an aborted first attempt citing her "lack of ability."

On her second attempt, somewhere between Australia and New Guinea, Earhart disappeared. Some say she was captured on a government spying mission against Japan; others, that she landed on an uninhabited island and died. Putnam engineered the largest-ever search for anyone lost at sea, at a government cost of $4.5 million dollars, it is said to never have recovered.

Comp. Goldstein Seeks Owners Of Unclaimed Funds

"St. Patrick's Day is around the corner, but you don't have to be a leprechaun to find a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow. You might just find it in the unclaimed property advertising supplement in your local newspaper," says Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein. "And our service is absolutely free."

The comptroller's office is placing a 12-page advertising supplement in 29 newspapers throughout the state from March 16 to March 26 to help locate nearly 14,000 individuals and businesses who are among the most recently reported owners of millions of dollars in unclaimed funds. The advertising supplements will appear in The Republican next Thursday, March 19.

Persons can also search 40,000 recently reported names of unclaimed property owners on the comptroller's website: www.comp.state.md.us.

"If you see your name listed in the ad or match a listing on our website, please call our unclaimed property office at 410-767-1700 in the Baltimore area, or toll free 1-800-782-7383 from elsewhere," Goldstein said. "Most of these advertised accounts are still being held by financial institutions and corporations, and we'll direct callers to the proper place to claim their money."

Financial institutions and corporations are required to report funds that have been unclaimed for five years. The spring advertisement mostly reflects bank accounts which had no deposit or withdrawal activity in the last five years, unclaimed wages, contents of safe deposit boxes if the box rent is not paid for five years, unclaimed security deposits, and stocks and bonds.

Approximately 80 days after the publication of the ad, businesses that hold unclaimed accounts will turn the remaining unclaimed money over to the state. However, that money remains the property of the owners or their legitimate heirs and they can claim the funds any time. There is no statute of limitations.

The comptroller's office advertises recently reported names of unclaimed property owners each spring and fall. "Our statewide advertising campaign last fall generated calls and letters from more than 12,000 individuals," Goldstein said. Other outreach efforts include computer file matches with Internal Revenue Service and other government agencies and setting up computers at the state fair, local fairs, trade shows, and shopping malls to allow people to check the unclaimed property files.

"Due to these kinds of outreach efforts, the comptroller's office honored 6,560 claims totaling $9,966,054 during calendar year 1997," Goldstein said. "The average claim was $1,519. Even if you don't see your name in the current ad insert, it's worth contacting the unclaimed property office periodically, because we have records on 277,000 accounts worth more than $92 million that have been reported to us over the past 30 years."

Post Office To Hold Food Drive

The U.S. Postal Service will again be participating in the Harvest for the Hungry food drive. Each office will have a container in its lobby for customer and employee donations of non-perishable foods.

During the week of March 16, mail carriers will collect food while on their routes. Customers are asked to place food items in bags and hang them from or place them near their mailboxes.

The foods collected will be given to local food banks. "Last year we collected over 2,000 pounds of food," said Ken Perrin, Oakland postmaster.

The offices participating in the Harvest for the Hungry are Accident, Friendsville, Grantsville, Kitzmiller, McHenry, Oakland, and Swanton.

Currency Exhibit To Be Displayed At First United

A collection of currency dating back to the American Colonial period is to be made available by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond for display at First United National Bank & Trust in Oakland, beginning March 16, according to Kathy Knotts, Oakland community office manager.

The exhibit presents a representative collection of the paper money of Colonial America and of the United States prior to the introduction of modern-size currency. The more than 65 specimens include examples of Colonial and Continental notes, all major types of United States government paper money, state bank and national bank notes, and both types of Federal Reserve currency.

"There are specimens here that bring to mind some of the most significant events in the history of the United States. This is an exhibit that everyone can appreciate and enjoy. We hope that residents of nearby communities as well as residents of our own city will drop in while it is in our lobby," Miss Knotts said.

FSU To Host Fiction Writer Michael Parker

The Frostburg State University English department will be hosting award-winning fiction writer Michael Parker for a reading on Sunday, April 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lane Center Multi-use Room (reception and book signing to follow) and a workshop on Monday, April 6, at 11 a.m. in the FSU Library, Room 237.

Currently an associate professor in the English Department at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, Parker has also won the Henry Hoyns Fellowship and the Transatlantic Review Award. His other works include a collection of stories, The Geographical Cure, winner of the Sir Walter Raleigh Award.

"Every story in The Geographical Cure has its own vibrant heartbeat. This is a writer to watch," stated The Los Angeles Times. His latest novel, Lake Amnesia, is forthcoming from Scribner publishing house.

Both events (sponsored by the Western Maryland Writers' Workshop) are free and open to the public. For more information, persons may contact the FSU Department of English at 301-687-3092.

Hordubay Earns AC Scholarship

Janel M. Hordubay, Frostburg, has been awarded a Science Scholarship for study at Allegany College, Cumberland, in the current 1997-98 academic year, the AC Foundation announced.

Hordubay is pursuing an associate degree in a health career field, such as dental hygiene or physical therapist assistant. She was named to the dean's list with a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Hordubay is a 1997 merit-diploma graduate of Northern High School, where she was a National Honor Society and Student Council member and participated in varsity cross-country and track. She is the daughter of Elmer and Vickie Hordubay.

Among Who's Who

Jarod E. Broadwater, a junior at Southern High School, has been notified that his name will be included in the 1996-97 publication of Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Jarod is an honor roll student. He attends the Bear Creek Church of the Brethren.

He is the son of Dale and Sharon Broadwater and resides in Mtn. Lake Park.

On Dean's List

Jennifer R. Rephann, a student at Coastal Carolina University has been named to the dean's list.

Rephann, a graduate of Northern High School, is a senior in the School of Natural and Applied Sciences at the university. She is the daughter of Carolan and Jim Rephann, Grantsville.

FSU Master's Program Earns Accreditation

The Frostburg State University Master of Science in Counseling Psychology program recently received accreditation from the Inter-organizational Board for Accreditation of Masters in Psychology Programs. The FSU program is the first in the University of Maryland system and the sixth nationwide to receive this honor from IBAMPP.

"Accreditation attests to the quality of our program," said Dr. Ann Bristow, FSU professor of psychology and coordinator of the Master's in Counseling Psychology program. "We have been found to meet training standards from a national organization that is committed to psychology as a science—which is the philosophy of our department."

FSU began the application process in the fall of 1996. According to Bristow, the paperwork took one year to complete followed by a two-day "on-site" visit in November 1997.

"They (IBAMPP) were great," Bristow said. "They identified very few problems, but where they did identify issues, they didn't just critique our department, but offered real solutions to problems. It was a very constructive visit."

Accreditation at the master's level is a recent development in the field of psychology and a recognition that FSU sought in light of the rapidly changing mode of health-care delivery.

"Many graduates of the FSU program come from the tri-state area and often return to practice in mental health clinic settings. They are the ones who are providing services to those who traditionally don't have access to doctorate level counselors. They serve the rural, mentally ill, and homeless populations," Bristow said.

For the 26 students currently enrolled in the three-year master's program, accreditation is an additional positive aspect of the FSU training. As stated in the IBAMPP report to FSU, "The program is coherent, providing students with both the theory and the skills essential for their future work as counselors... The high quality of the faculty is equally noteworthy... their clear recognition of each other's contributions and their commitment to a spirit of collaboration among the graduate faculty."

For more information on the Master's in Counseling Psychology program, persons may contact the FSU Department of Psychology at 301-687-4446.

KICKING BUTTS IN KITZMILLER - Residents of Kitzmiller have been actively involved in anti-smoking campaigns joining forces with the Garrett County Health Department's Community Outreach programs. The Kitzmiller Empowerment Group signed non-smoking pledges and encouraged others in the community to do the same. They received sweatshirts with the message "Kitzmiller's Kicking Butts." All around the county residents have been getting in the spirit of the effort. Workers at Mettiki signed pledge cards against smoking and worked with Gail Dever from the health department outreach program. Students at Accident's Zion Pre-school participated in an anti-smoking presentation with outreach worker Donna Knox. Pictured above left to right in the bottom row are Janet Lawson, Bill Hardesty, and Barbara Welch. In the top row are Bob Barrick, Bill Ferry, Debbie Ford, and Linda Welch. Participants not pictured are Janet Bray, Sherry Brady, and Roger Welch.

Meet Garrett County's NEW TEACHERS

Two science teachers and one English teacher are new to the staff at Northern High School this year. All have had previous experiences which have helped them to transition into their new positions along with advice from their mentors.

Melinda Lewis is not a new face in classrooms at Northern High School. She has served for several years as a substitute teacher.

A graduate of East Preston High School, Lewis earned a BA degree in English with an emphasis on secondary education from Waynesburg College, where she served as a student tutor. She did her student teaching at West Greene Middle-Senior High School in grades 10-12.

Lewis teaches 10th and 12th grade English courses, as well as serving as sponsor for the yearbook. She and her husband Jeff reside in the Oakland area.

She said she has found the school staff very supportive, especially her mentor, Lynn Coburn. "She is always there for me. I have been impressed with her support and her willingness to answer questions," she said. Because of Lewis' experiences as a substitute she already knew most of the staff and students before the first day of classes.

Lewis also said the class for new teachers, which is offered through the county's teacher education center and Frostburg State University, is a source of good ideas and support. The class is taught by Pam Neal, coordinator of staff development.

Lizabeth McDowell, who graduated from Albright College with a BS in psychobiology and Frostburg State University with a master's degree in wildlife management, is teaching biology and earth science at Northern High School.

Michele Harman, currently her mentor, served as McDowell's supervisor during a student teaching assignment while she was at FSU. McDowell also had completed a student teaching assignment in a seventh grade classroom at Beall Jr. -Sr. High School in Frostburg.

McDowell has also worked as a park naturalist at New Germany State Park; a research biologist at FSU; a biologist for DNR; and an environmental specialist for the Maryland Department of the Environment. She holds many professional certifications and has published articles in professional journals, including several on bats, which was the topic of her master's thesis. "This is the most challenging job I have ever had," stated McDowell. "I was looking for a challenging career and I found it."

Of her mentor she noted, "Having Michele next door is good. We share ideas and she helps me with my planning."

Paul Miller brings two years' experience as a high school physics teacher with him from Roseburg, Ore. A native of Cody, Wyo., he earned degrees in physics from the University of Wyoming and the University of Michigan. His student teaching was completed at Green River High School in Wyoming. In addition to his teaching experience, Miller has also served as the Director of the National Youth Science Camp at Bartow, W.Va. He currently resides in Morgantown.

Miller has two mentors, Betsy Deem and Thomas Bulka. Deem assists him with science curriculum information while Bulka helps him to adjust to the school system's routines. "Both mentors have been very helpful in answering my questions. I enjoy teaching at Northern High. It is smaller than the previous school in which I taught, and this helps. It is more of a community where everyone knows everyone else," he said.

Women's History Month Event Set By New Horizons

An event titled "Living the Legacy," in celebration of Women's History Month, will take place on Wednesday, March 25, at 1:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Garrett Community College. The event has been planned and will be facilitated by Barbara Frey, program director for New Horizons, New Dimensions, and The Caring Connection, Single Parent/Displaced Homemaker, and Single Pregnant Women projects, sponsored by GCC.

The purpose of the event is to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the Women's Rights Movement. According to Ms. Frey, the activity is being funded by a mini-grant from the Maryland State Department of Education through the Maryland Professional Development Center for Equity, Leadership, and Advocacy, based at Hagerstown Junior College.

The program will begin with a short history of the development of the first women's rights convention in Seneca, N.Y., followed by 14 participants showcasing some of the famous men and women whose early efforts helped to change the status of women today. Historical conversations by characters from the late 1700s through the 1900s will highlight the performance.

The program, which is free and is open to the public, will last for approximately 1½ hours. Because of limited seating, persons interested in attending must call 301-387-3071 to confirm their attendance.

The event is listed on the schedule of co-curricular activities open to students attending Garrett Community College.

The New Horizons program is jointly funded by the Maryland State Department of Education and Garrett Community College. Grant funds in the amount of $45,000 are made available to the program through Career Technology and Adult Learning, which is 90% of the total program budget, with Garrett Community College contributing an additional $5,200, which is 10% of the total budget for New Horizons. The New Dimensions program is 100% funded by the Department of Human Resources, Community Services Administration, Women's Services Division, in the amount of $14,998.

Neubert Wins Garrett County Math Competition

The University of Maryland has notified Joshua Neubert, a junior at Northern High School, that he was the first place finisher in Garrett County for the 1997-98 University of Maryland High School Competition in Mathematics. This is the second straight year Neubert has been the first place winner in Garrett County. Neubert will participate in an April award ceremony on the College Park campus of the university.

Neubert competed in a preliminary round of competition and was the only student from Garrett County to go on to the final round of questions. County winners were chosen from the final round of competition. Maryland students from all high school grades competed throughout the state, but most students who finish at the top level are seniors. (Neubert had the additional honor of being only a sophomore last year when he won the county award.)

Neubert is an honor roll student at Northern and has won numerous awards for his academic and extracurricular activities, including varsity letters, Minds In Motion awards, and a second pace in mathematics at the Regional Science Fair at Frostburg State University.

He is a member of Northern's soccer and track teams. He is on the school's Math Team, its Science and Academic Bowl teams, and is a member of Northern's Computer Club.

Neubert is a member of the National Space Society, the Planetary Society, the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, the Maryland Archaeological Society, and astronomy and archaeology clubs in Cumberland. He plans to attend a major university and become an astronomer or astrophysicist.

Joshua Neubert resides in Grantsville and is the son of Cathy and John Neubert.

Math/Science Program Seeking Local Students

The Upward Bound Regional Math/Science Center at Frostburg State University is currently accepting applications from area high school students. The goal of the Regional Math/Science Center is to encourage and help interested and qualified students develop the skills necessary to enroll and be successful in college programs that will lead to careers in mathematics and science.

The program consists of both an academic year component and a six-week summer residential component. During the academic year, students are able to participate in enrichment activities and field trips, meet with professional scientists and mathematicians, and receive academic support from the center's staff. During the six-week summer program, students will be actively engaged in an investigation into the potential impacts of coal-generated power plant emissions on water quality and aquatic life. Throughout the summer, the students will acquire the skills and knowledge needed for their investigation through both classroom activities and field studies. The students are exposed to hands-on, laboratory, and field-based experiences to facilitate learning and to keep the enthusiasm high.

Throughout the summer program, students will live in the residence halls on the FSU campus and eat their meals in the dining hall. Students are under the supervision of a professional staff who live with the students, plan and supervise recreational activities, and organize evening study sessions. The program is completely free to all participants. In addition, students selected for the program are eligible to receive monetary stipends and reimbursement for transportation costs to center-sponsored activities.

Currently the program has openings for students residing within West Virginia; the Appalachian region of Pennsylvania; and Allegany, Garrett, and Washington counties of Maryland, as well as Maryland's Eastern Shore and Baltimore City. To be eligible for the Summer 1998 program, students must complete the 8th grade by the end of the 1997-98 school year or currently be in the 9th, 10th, or 11th grade. Students also must have an interest in math and/or science and meet the U.S. Department of Education income and/or potential first-generation college student criteria. Students currently enrolled in Upward Bound or Talent Search programs automatically meet those criteria. This summer the six-week summer program will run from June 20 to July 31.

For more information and applications, persons may contact the Regional Math/Science Center office at 1-800-646-6004 or 301-687-4295.

Mental Health Theater Troupe Coming to GCC

A theater performance depicting the life-situations experienced by the families of persons with mental illness is scheduled for the stage at Garrett Community College on March 26.

The Mental Health Association of Metropolitan Baltimore, a voluntary, nonprofit, citizens' organization, offers improvisation and dramatic vignettes that mirror many of the day-to-day situations that occur in the lives of those with serious mental illness.

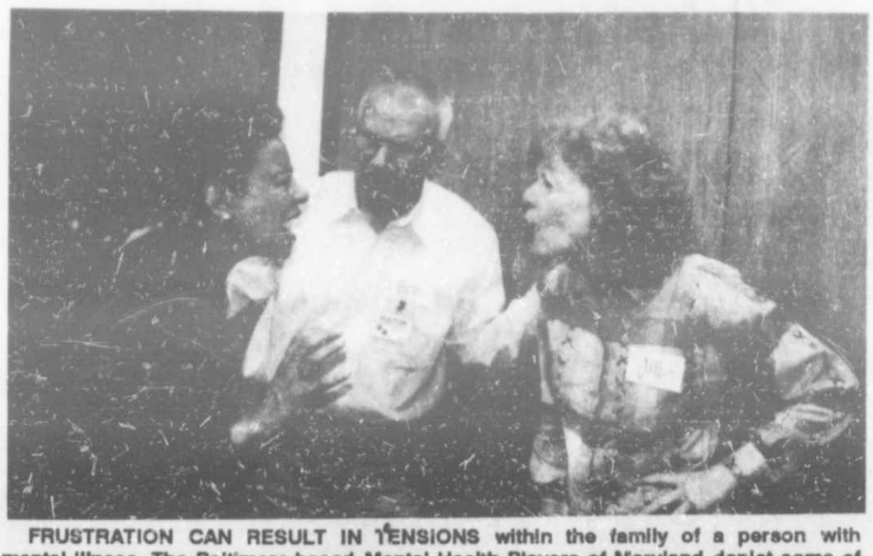
Mary Ann Brenneman, a member of the Garrett County branch of the Alliance for the Mentally Ill (AMI), has been instrumental in arranging the theater performance. "They do an excellent job. The actors really let you see what life can be like with a person who is mentally ill," she said.

The troupe travels throughout the state performing for civic groups, churches, schools, and a variety of community service groups. "The performances help people to better understand mental illness. Through education, some of the stigma associated with mental illness can be reduced," Brenneman explained.

The logo of the mental health players is a composite of the tragic and comic masks associated with theater productions, and the mental health bell. This bell was made from the chains, shackles, and other restraints once used in asylums throughout the county.

The following words are inscribed on the 300-pound bell: "Cast from shackles which bound them, this bell shall ring out hope for the mentally ill and victory over mental illness."

The mental health players will perform at GCC on Thursday, March 26, at 2 and 7 p.m. There is no admission charge and both shows are open to the public.



FRUSTRATION CAN RESULT IN TENSIONS within the family of a person with mental illness. The Baltimore-based Mental Health Players of Maryland depict some of the problems faced by such families. One goal of this drama team is to help reduce the stigma attached to mental illness through better understanding. Mental Health Players pictured above are, left to right, Hilda Peacock, Bob Gill, and Jill Sliney. Below are Ruth Williams, Ted Miller, and Debra LeVan. The players will perform at GCC on March 26. Women's Legal Rights Workshop Slated At GCC

Lisa Thayer Welch, the state's attorney for Garrett County, will be the guest speaker at a workshop titled "Know Your Legal Rights and Responsibilities," in which she will address women's legal concerns. The program will be held on Tuesday, March 24, at 1 p.m. in Room 305 of the Continuing Education Building at Garrett Community College (GCC). It is free and open to the public.

Welch will focus on abuse, separation, divorce, custody, and child support and the confusion these situations can bring to one's life. "Knowing all you can about your options, responsibilities, possible goals, and sources of help can make the difference between managing and losing control of your life," said Virginia Jeffrey, workshop coordinator.

In her position as state's attorney, Welch regularly works with families who are addressing the difficult decisions that come with changes in relationships. Her presentation will help participants understand where to go for help, what questions to ask, and what the results of various decisions might be.

The workshop is sponsored by the New Dimensions, the New Horizons, and The Caring Connection programs of GCC under the direction of Barbara Frey. For additional information or to register, interested persons may contact Frey at 301-387-3071 or Jeffrey, intake/counselor specialist for the New Dimensions and The Caring Connection programs at 301-387-3103.

Students Will Walk To Fund Musical Trip

A Walk-A-Thon is planned for Tuesday, March 17, 1 p.m. at Friendsville Town Park. The goal of the event is to raise funds for a trip to Annapolis to perform an original musical. The performance will be given for Gov. Parris Glendening at the governor's mansion on April 3.

Written and directed by Dan Taylor, the musical will be a joint production between the students of Friendsville and Crellin schools. Taylor said that Sen. John Hafer's office is helping to sponsor this trip and has donated $500 toward the expenses.

But with more funds needed to send the group of 50 students on this two-day trip, the students will be out walking to earn their fare. Anyone who is interested in donating to this fund may contact Friendsville Elementary School at 301-746-5100.

Latta To Perform At Ethnic Dinner In Grantsville

Hammered dulcimer virtuoso and champion Greg Latta will be entertaining guests at a special Eastern European Ethnic Dinner to be held Friday, March 27, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Grantsville Senior Center.

"We feel very fortunate to have Dr. Latta perform," said a Garrett County Community Action/Area Agency on Aging spokesperson. "We hope that the unusual dining fare and special music will appeal to mature individuals (age 55 years and older) who do not participate in our traditional services."

An award winning multi-instrumentalist, singer/songwriter, and recording artist, Latta plays an eclectic mix of Irish, traditional and contemporary folk, Broadway, bluegrass, and original music. He has mastered a wide variety of instruments, including the hammered dulcimer, guitar, banjo, harmonica, recorder, and Appalachian dulcimer. Best known for his work on the hammered dulcimer, he is a three time Mid-Eastern hammered dulcimer champion and has twice been a runner-up in the National Hammered Dulcimer Championships held at Winfield, Kan.

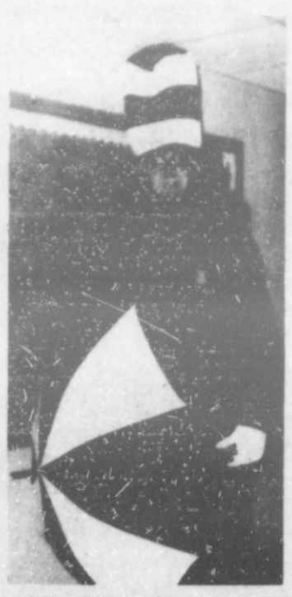
Although known mainly for his hammered dulcimer playing, Latta is also an award-winning banjo player and plays both 6 and 12 string guitars.

Latta has performed throughout the region, including engagements at the Rocky Gap Country/Bluegrass Festival, Cumberland Heritage Days, Frostburg State University (FSU) Piano Festival, and Music at Penn Alps. In addition to his concert performances, Latta has recorded "My Favorite Things," a collection of hammered dulcimer solos, and "Headed for Home," featuring vocals and instruments such as 6 and 12 string guitars, hammered dulcimer, and recorder.

Latta is host and producer of the popular radio show "Just Plain Folks," which can be heard Saturday afternoons on WFWM, 91.7 FM, the FSU public radio station. He is also a member of the FSU faculty.

The ethnic dinner, sponsored by Community Action's Area Agency on Aging, will feature Eastern European cuisine. Diners will have their choice of menu items such as Hungarian beet salad, Polish cabbage rolls, noodles Romanoff, Slovanian wedding soup and German apple cake.

Tickets are priced at $8.95 each and must be purchased by Wednesday, March 18. To purchase tickets or for further information interested persons may contact the Grantsville Senior Center at 301-895-5818, or the Agency on Aging at 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403, ext. 142.



HAPPY BIRTHDAY DR. SEUSS - The Cat in the Hat was a guest of honor last week at Accident Elementary School, where a week-long celebration in honor of Dr. Seuss took place. Students created T-shirts, drew murals of Dr. Seuss's characters, cooked-up green eggs and ham, made hats like the cat's, and entertained guest readers. Reading aloud to the students as part of the Rising Star program were: Al Coviello, assistant superintendent of schools, who is pictured above left with kindergarten students, Chief Deputy Gary Berkebile, and Gary Fratz, county commissioner. The Cat in the Hat (Bill Aiken), above right, posed for pictures and signed autographs.

Grantsville Visit Of Bloodmobile Nets 130 Units

There was overwhelming support for the American Red Cross bloodmobile as it visited Grantsville on March 2. One hundred thirty-seven people responded to the visit and from those, 130 units of blood were collected.

"We're not sure what we did right," stated Lela Bender, bloodmobile coordinator. "The last few bloodmobiles here have seen only about 80 people show up. We were overwhelmed, but grateful that so many came by to donate this time."

First-timers to the bloodmobile were: Georgie Bolyard, Richard Brenneman, Brett Friend, Regis Mason, and Larry Wenger.

Richard Feigley reached the one-gallon milestone, while Thelma Lanteigne and George Pope topped the two-gallon mark. The three-gallon milestone was reached by Marilyn Holliday, and Katie Bender topped the four-gallon mark. Daniel Clark and Elizabeth Durst reached the five-gallon milestone. The top donor for this visit was Marvin Beachy, who gave for the 56th time to reach the seven-galllon level.

Volunteers making this visit possible were: Lela Bender, greeter and coordinator; Ella Tice and Glenda Yoder, registration; Dorothy Beitzel, Missy Fazenbaker, and Judith Ramer, walkers; Sandy Beachy, who staffed the canteen and also donated cookies; and Ruth Bittinger, Lula Brown, and Anna Bell Folk, kitchen.

The next Garrett County bloodmobile will be held at the National Guard armory in Oakland on April 17 from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Also, both Southern and Northern high schools will be holding bloodmobiles on campus in April. These blood drives will only be open to students and staff.

To be eligible to give blood, individuals must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 110 pounds, and be in generally good health. Normally, individuals can give blood every 56 days. Individuals with specific questions are advised to contact the Red Cross toll free at 1-800-54-BLOOD.

ETERNITY

In earthly death, I leave my shell; family and friends are left to mourn.
Spirited conversations and crescent-mooned smiles;
petty quarrels, gentle touch of reconciliation:
fragments of loving.
Majestic oaks and chirping chickadees, aromatic hyacinths and arching rainbows:
fragments of living.
Until...
I return soaring over the acorned trees—a spirit watching, listening, smiling:
fragments of being.

My soul is alive!
The shiver of a chill—
that's me yelling hello, vibrating.
The tickle on your nose—
that's me like the wisp of a cardinal's feather, wafting.
The flash in the dark when your eyes are closed—
that's me over your canopied bed, flying.
Did you hear me whisper good night?

My soul is alive!
I spy with you
the hummingbird sucking nectar from the pink phlox nestled among the pines.
I stand beside you at night
gazing at the Big Dipper
while crickets croon their nightly hymns and summer's warmth wraps around our shoulders.

In spirit, in body,
we are one in the universe.
Until...

Electronic Filing Of Tax Returns At All-Time High

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says that as the second half of the income tax filing season gets underway, taxpayers have already filed more electronic returns for all of last year.

"We've surpassed last year's total of 158,124 electronic returns as more taxpayers choose this popular alternative. One reason is because taxpayers filing electronically this year can choose to have their Maryland state and local income tax refunds deposited directly into their bank accounts—usually within 48 hours," Goldstein said.

Nearly 22,000 of the taxpayers who have filed electronically so far have elected the direct deposit option. "The average direct deposit refund is $667, compared with an average refund of $464 for returns filed on paper. The comptroller's office has issued 458,000 refunds totaling $210 million so far. Taxpayers due larger refunds are obviously electing direct deposit as the quickest possible way to receive their refunds," he said.

More than 70 percent of Maryland's 2.25 million income tax returns generate refunds. About 50 percent of Maryland taxpayers use a professional tax preparer to complete their income tax returns.

Goldstein noted that electronic filing can also benefit those who owe additional taxes since they receive an acknowledgment that their return was accepted and the amount they owe is accurate, eliminating the fear that a mistake will result in additional tax, penalty, and interest charges after April 15. "You can file electronically now and wait until April 15 to pay," the comptroller said. Nearly 5,100 taxpayers have taken advantage of this option and will submit their payment with a voucher (Form 502PV) provided by the tax preparer.

While an increasing number are choosing electronic filing instead of using paper forms, the comptroller noted that the overall pace of filing is trailing last year's activity.

Goldstein stated that his Annapolis office has received a total of 702,000 tax returns so far this year, about 8 percent fewer than at this time last year.

"One reason for the slower arrival of returns could be that more taxpayers must now complete the federal Schedule D, which has been revised to reflect the capital gains changes enacted by the U.S. Congress last year. You must complete your federal return before your Maryland return. But whatever the reason for the current lull, this is a great opportunity to file and get your refund fast since there are no backlogs in processing," the comptroller added.

A second reason fewer forms have been filed may be the comptroller's ongoing campaign to make students and part-time workers aware that they are not required to have Maryland income tax withheld from their pay if their incomes are less than the minimum filing requirement, $6,950 for 1998. "We are receiving fewer tax returns from students claiming refunds this year, so our awareness campaign seems to be working," he said.

Comptroller Goldstein reminded taxpayers that 24-hour, convenient assistance is readily available. Taxpayers seeking answers or forms can get help at the comptroller's website www.comp.state.md.us or by e-mail at taxhelp@comp.state.md.us. Forms are also available by e-mail at forms@comp.state.md.us or through the Forms-by-Fax system at 410-974-3299, as well as in local libraries and many post offices.

"So far, taxpayers have downloaded more than 48,000 forms from our website and more than 7,057 state and local income tax forms and instructions from our Forms-By-Fax system," Goldstein said.

Free state tax help is also available at the comptroller's 20 taxpayer service offices Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. The addresses and telephone numbers are listed on the back of the Maryland tax booklet and in most local phone directories. Taxpayers can also call 410-974-3981 in Central Maryland for free assistance, or 1-800-MD TAXES from elsewhere.

"If you bring a completed copy of your completed federal return and all W-2 statements to any of our offices, we'll prepare your Maryland income tax return for you, free of charge," said Goldstein.

In Loving Memory of Geraldine "Gerry" Friend

Three years ago you went away.
I think of you most every day.
A song, a card, or a picture dear
Makes your memory oh so clear.

The love we shared through out the years
Full of laughter, pain and tears.
we grew closer day by day
Until the time you were called away.

I keep your memory tucked away
And pull it out on lonely days.
I always recall your smiling face
And everything else just slips into place.

For I believe you're in God's care
And things are so much better there.
And when my time on earth is through
My darling, I'll be seeing you.

Maryland Dairy Farmers Want To Join Compact

Maryland dairy farms continue to be under siege from a combination of low prices, drought damage and development pressure, said Valerie Connelly, national affairs director for Maryland Farm Bureau. Her recent report stated that since 1991, Maryland has lost 25 percent of its dairies, leaving only 864 operations intact.

Struggling dairy farmers across the state cite low prices for their milk as the primary challenge to their efforts to run economical, for-profit dairy operations. For more than 13 years, the price the farmer receives for the milk he produces for consumer consumption has been stagnant at about $1.40 per gallon. Over that same time, retail prices have risen steadily to $2.80 per gallon in some markets.

Because of the unique nature of milk as a commodity, the federal government instituted a regulatory structure for the pricing and marketing of the product more than 60 years ago. Milk is unique in that it is a perishable product that must be moved off the farm relatively quickly. At its inception, the Federal Milk Marketing System was intended to facilitate the efficient flow of milk products to consumers and guarantee a fresh, local supply of milk in all regions of the country.

Bernice Keppie, Farm Editor

Farming In Maryland.....

The Federal Milk Marketing System divides the country into a number of marketing regions (currently more than 30) and establishes a pricing formula for farm level purchases. The Basic Formula Price (BFP) is a complicated calculation, but basically ties the price of milk to the price of cheese.

Within a "Market Order" the pricing formula is intended to also take into account varying uses of the milk, supply and demand, and the regional production costs. Milk is used not only for what is referred to as Class I Fluid Milk (the milk we drink), but it is also used in the production of yogurt, cottage cheese, butter, hard cheese, ice cream and powdered milk. Through farmer-owned cooperatives, milk is pooled in the region and the farmer is paid based on the bulk use of milk in that region in what is called a "uniform blend price."

Unfortunately, because the BFP is influenced by factors in the cheese market in far away regions of the country, prices paid to Maryland farmers have taken violent up and down swings and have been generally unpredictable. For instance, last July when central and western Maryland farmers suffered from the worst drought they had experienced in years, when crops died leaving little or no feed for dairy herds for this winter, milk prices dropped through the floor. At a time when Maryland dairy farmers could least afford lower prices for their milk, prices dropped because farmers in the midwest and California were experiencing record production levels and flooded the cheese market with excess milk, forcing down the BFP.

In an effort to bring more local control to the pricing of farm-level milk purchases, Maryland Farm Bureau and the Maryland Dairy Industry Association are pursuing membership in the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. The Compact is a multi-state initiative that brings together farmers, consumers, milk processors and retailers as well as local government officials in an effort to set a fair farm level price, based on local market conditions, for fresh fluid milk in the Compact region. The Compact does not set wholesale or retail prices. The Compact does not encourage over-production of milk in the regulated region. In face, the Compact must bear the cost of surplus removals by the federal government, should such surpluses occur.

The Compact does require, however, that all milk sold in Compact states be purchased from the farmer at the Compact price. This means that if milk is brought in from outside the Compact region, it would not be allowed to compete unfairly against in-region producers.

Interstate compacts require not only the approval of the participating state governments, but also the federal government. The Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact was approved by Congress in the 1997 Farm Bill. For the last eight months the states of Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut have been operating under the Compact. Dairy farmers in that region have reported more predictable, stable prices that will allow them to better plan for the long-term viability of their businesses.

The success of the Compact in the six participating states has encouraged the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and now Maryland to pursue membership in the Compact. In fact, New Jersey has already passed legislation and the governor signed it in January. States in the southeast are also pursing a compact of their own. Four states have passed it and almost a dozen others are working on it now in their legislatures. Because the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact was only authorized by Congress until early 1999, participating states are expected to seek federal legislation to extend that compact and authorize the Southeast Compact in 1998.

The general consensus is that any state that wants to be included in either of the two compacts must have state authority to do so when the federal extension legislation is written this spring. The extension is expected to be controversial at the federal level, and the delegation from each of the participating states will be needed to move the bill through Congress. The likelihood that an individual state could come back in future years and add on by itself is very low.

The Compact can be beneficial not only to farmers in Maryland, but also to consumers. The Compact can stabilize milk prices to the benefit of consumers because the Compact Commission has the authority to adjust the erratic fluctuations in the federal price structure. By removing these erratic fluctuations, the Commission will maintain farm price stability and, simultaneously, discourage sudden and sustained price hikes at the store level.

Price stability will also benefit Marylanders who want to preserve open space and agricultural lands by making it possible for current dairy farmers to stay in business and young farmers to choose on-farm employment rather than off-farm jobs to make ends meet. Farm Bureau feels the Maryland General Assembly should pass S.B. 285/H.B. 237 to join the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact for the benefit of all Marylanders. However, as we go to press, Connelly reports by phone that S.B. 285 was defeated Tuesday by the Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee, while H.B. 237 is pending, making passage still a possibility.

EPA Outlines Livestock Strategy

The Environmental Protection Agency last week released a strategy to help the agency address water quality, air quality and odor control issues associated with livestock production.

Farm Bureau has several concerns about the strategy that would require many livestock producers to obtain permits. The strategy makes clear EPA's intention to pick up the pace of its permitting, inspection and enforcement of concentrated animal feeding operations.

The strategy does not constitute a proposed rulemaking or change regulations for farms with less than 1,000 animal units.

MFB Tells Legislators To Focus On Facts, Not Fear

For two days last month, Maryland's farmers took center stage in Annapolis as the state's General Assembly discussed various bills concerning nutrient management and pfiesteria. Up for debate was Gov. Parris N. Glendening's bill, which would require mandatory nutrient management plans, and an alternate bill sponsored by several rural legislators. Under the alternate proposal--supported by Maryland Farm Bureau—farmers would continue to operate under a voluntary nutrient management system, phasing in phosphorus-based nutrient management planning. Current nutrient management plans deal primarily with nitrogen. In addition, the alternate proposal seeks a program to deal with excess poultry litter on the Eastern Shore and various cost-share programs to help farmers comply with the voluntary nutrient management goals.

Both sets of bills are in response to several fish kills in the waters of the Pocomoke River watershed last year. Pfiesteria, a microorganism with several life stages, has been blamed for lesions and the subsequent death of thousands of fish last summer. Researchers say that high levels of nutrients in the waters may have caused the usually dormant organism to mutate into its toxic form.

On February 11, the day the Maryland House of Delegates heard the nutrient management proposals, nearly 1,000 farmers came to the state's capital for a "Facts Not Fear" rally sponsored by Maryland Farm Bureau and several other agricultural organizations, including the Delmarva Poultry Industry. The next day, a number of farmers returned for hearings of similar bills in the Maryland Senate.

Both days, the message was clear—mandatory nutrient management plans are unacceptable to Maryland's farmers. Both Maryland Farm Bureau president Stephen Weber and legislative consultant Jack Miller testified that such proposals assume a farmer is guilty of water pollution. In addition, the proposals ignore Maryland's successful record with voluntary nutrient management plans and that federal and state penalties already exist for agricultural polluters. Farmers also stressed that agricultural scientists have yet to develop effective phosphorus-based nutrient management plans.

"We need more studies to help the farmers," said Maryland Farm Bureau first vice president Daniel Shortall, a poultry farmer from Queen Anne's County.

As of press time, the Senate version of Governor Glendening's bill had favorably passed out of the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee with amendments. The other three bills were still being debated by their respective committees.

Early Deadline For Conference Sign-Up Noted

The early registration deadline for the Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is fast approaching. Farmers, woodland owners, natural resources professionals, and others who register by March 16 will pay $95 for the three-day conference being held April 5-7 in Hagerstown. The fee after that date will be $115. The fee includes admission to all conference presentations and events, plus the cost of two lunches, two dinners, break refreshments, and a complete copy of the conference proceedings.

The Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Land Conference is designed for individuals interested in developing an enterprise or hobby and for public and private sector professionals that work with landowners. More than 35 speakers from Vermont to Arkansas—including landowners, consultants, foresters, and Cooperative Extension Service faculty from several states—will share their expertise on a variety of income-generating opportunities, including fishing, hunting, timber management, ecotourism, aquaculture, and the production and marketing of such products as maple syrup and ginseng. They also will explore issues involving finances, liability, insurance, and environmental impact.

"Private landowners are becoming increasingly interested in income opportunities that allow them to use their land to generate some income while maintaining the character of the property," said Jonathan Kays, regional natural resources specialist with the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. "This conference is designed to give them the information they need to make wise decisions." Participants will qualify for 13 Society of American Foresters continuing education credits (category one).

The Natural Resources Income Opportunities on Private Lands Conference is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Services of the University of Maryland, Cornell University, Ohio State University, Pennsylvania State University, Virginia Tech, and West Virginia University, along with several federal, state, and regional agencies and organizations.

For a brochure and registration form, persons may call their local Cooperative Extension Service office; phone numbers are included under county headings in the blue pages of the telephone directory. Persons may also call Cindy Mason at 301-432-2767, ext. 301, or send an e-mail message to ct11@umail.umd.edu.

Southern States Returns Profits To Some Members

Southern States will return some $12 million cash this month to qualified members across six states: Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia.

The sum includes $4.5 million in equity from 1976 patronage refund allocations, about $800,000 in dividends, and the $7 million cash portion of patronage refunds voted by the board of directors this year. The total patronage refund for this year is $17.5 million, with the remainder given to members as equity allocations.

Refunds are an agreement unique to cooperatives that makes the business of farming pay better for members while helping the co-op remain financially stable. Refunds are based on the amount of business that qualified members do with the co-op. Southern States had after-tax savings of $28.3 million on sales of $1.2 billion in fiscal 1997.

Although Southern States serves thousands of customers—farmer and non-farmer, member and non-member—only qualified members receive refunds. To be members, individuals must be bona fide producers of agricultural products for sale, and they need to acquire at least one share of common membership stock.

Celebrating its 75th anniversary this year, Southern States is a farmer-owned cooperative that serves these six states through some 530 retail locations. The co-op manufactures animal feeds and fertilizers, processes seed, and handles petroleum products, plus a wide variety of farm, lawn, garden, pet, and home supplies. It also markets grain through a series of elevators, mostly along the eastern seaboard.

Right-To-Farm Bills Return To General Assembly

Right-to-Farm legislation has once again cropped up in the state legislature. Emily Wilson, environmental resources representative for Maryland Farm Bureau, reports that though it seems absolutely ridiculous to have to have legislation to grant what should be the inherent right to farm, it seems to be increasingly necessary as farmers continually face pressure from sprawl development and strict environmental regulations.

She reports that there are two bills on this subject: Senate Bill 404 - Agricultural Operations - Nuisance Suits - Protection Against, and House Bill 1108 - Maryland Right to Farm Law. Senator Walter Baker, chairman of the Judicial Proceedings Committee, has introduced the bill in the Senate and Delegate Robert Baldwin has introduced the bill in the House of Delegates. Governor Glendening has indicated his support for such legislation and stated at the Maryland Agriculture Dinner on February 5 that he looks forward to signing the bill once (if) it is passed.

A Right-to-Farm Workgroup has been meeting since last summer to revise and improve upon last year's bill. This workgroup, chaired by Howard County Farm Bureau president Ron Cashdollar, consists of a myriad of agricultural interests, including Farm Bureau, Grange, Maryland Grain Producers, the Maryland Ag Land Preservation Foundation, Maryland Department of Agriculture, Maryland Office of Planning, the University of Maryland, forestry groups, dairy producers, poultry producers, nurseries, and aquaculture, to name a few. Additionally, the workgroup has received input from environmental organizations, the Maryland Department of the Environment, Maryland Association of Counties, and other local government interests.

S.B. 404 is the product of the Right-to-Farm Workgroup. This bill is aimed at deterring frivolous nuisance suits that may be brought against an agricultural operation.

In addition to several "whereas" clauses that justify the importance of Maryland's agricultural industry, there are a number of other improvements contained in this year's bill. The specific definition of "farm product" has been taken out, so as not to be limiting. Instead, the term "agricultural product" refers to any agricultural, horticultural, silvicultural, aquacultural, or apicultural product. This term has been modified to highlight on-farm activities and products grown by the farmer, so as not to be confused with the possibility of protecting a processing plant in the city.

Once again, the current law stipulation that an agricultural operation must have been in existence for at least one year before receiving protection has been removed. This would allow greater flexibility to a farmer who might need to modify or change his operation for any reason (economic, etc.)—a scenario that is increasingly becoming more of a reality in today's Maryland agriculture.

One of the biggest deterrents in this bill is language that states that a plaintiff is liable to the defendant for damages, costs, and attorney's fees if such a lawsuit is deemed unjust or in bad faith and the defendant is found not guilty.

Of course, the bill would not protect one that does not comply with any of the necessary federal, state, or local health, environmental, and/or zoning requirements or permits. This bill is not designed to protect those farmers who pollute, nor should it. It is designed to protect from frivolous law suits those farmers who abide by all of the rules.

Due to deadlines for being able to file bills and wanting to at least have legislation in the House, H.B. 1108 this year contains the same language as last year's Senate version of Right-to-Farm legislation, which ultimately failed. Delegate Baldwin is working with the Maryland Farm Bureau in amending the House version to be companion legislation with the Senate version.

State Cattle Inventory Shows Decrease

The inventory of cattle and calves in Maryland on January 1, 1998, numbered 265,000 head, a decrease of 2%, and 5,000 head less than the inventory of 270,000 head a year earlier.

Declines occurred for total cattle and calves, beef and milk cow replacements, and steers over 500 pounds. Other heifers and beef were unchanged. Calves under 500 pounds were up. The calf crop for 1997 totaled 115,000 head, up 2% from the 113,000 for 1996. Agricultural operations with cattle numbered 5,400, down 7% (400 farms) from last year. Agricultural operations with milk cows numbered 1,000, down 9% (100 farms) from 1996.

All cattle and calves in the United States as of January 1, 1998, totaled 99.5 million head, 2% below the 101.5 million on January 1, 1997, and 4% below the 103.5 million two years ago. Beef cows, at 33.7 million, were down 2% from January 1, 1997, and 4% below two years ago.

Milk cows, at 9.19 million, were down 1% from January 1, 1997, and 2% below two years ago.

On average, every hour, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, around $6 million in U.S. agricultural products--grains, oilseeds, cotton, meats, vegetables, snack foods, etc., will be consigned for export to foreign markets.

U.S. agricultural exports generate more than $100 billion annually in business activity throughout the U.S. economy and provide jobs for nearly a million workers.

Luck Of The Irish Dance Scheduled

The annual Luck of the Irish dance will be held on Saturday, March 14, from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at Alpine Lake Resort and Conference Center, Terra Alta.

Co-sponsored by the Terra Alta Civic Club and Alpine Lake Resort, this yearly event will feature music of all varieties by Mike Barnett, local radio celebrity from WFSP in Kingwood.

A donation will be accepted at the door of $3 for a single person and $5 for a couple. Persons attending must be age 21 or older, and identification will be required prior to admission.

Members of the civic club invite everyone in the community to attend.

TERRA ALTA

The Terra Alta Public Library has received a copy of On The Outside, Julie Pratt, editor, from the West Virginia Development Disabilities Planning Council and the West Virginia Humanities Council, sponsors of the project. West Virginia will close its last institution for people with developmental disabilities, and this book is an attempt to recognize the milestone, and reflect on what was learned, according to a library spokesperson.

Images of America Preston County, by Charles A. Thomas, Terra Alta, has been presented to the library by the author. This book is a look down "memory lane," with approximately 200 pictures of Preston County in the past.

Story hour, led by Jennifer Evans, has resumed at the library on Wednesday mornings. Plans for the children include listening to a book being read and watching film strips about Easter, and then making homemade decorations for the library bulletin boards. The story hour begins at 10 a.m.

Several audio books and VCR tapes have been donated for circulation by Cathy Nardi. Other patrons who recently donated books or magazines include Stanley Nine, Maureen Meleanz, Chip Horn, Don Stump, Mona Lothry, Milton Crum Jr., Sara Mersing, Lisa Gardner, Cecilia Cole, Pearl Gordon, Kim Taliaferro, and Jeannie McGinnis.

Everyone is invited.

The ambulance association is also planning to have baked goods or crafts on sale and would appreciate donations for this cause.

The Aurora VFD auxiliary has an interest in taking reservations for family or organization reunions and dinners. Costs will be: one meat dinner, $8 per plate, with children 12 and under, $3; choice of two meats, $10 per dinner, with children under 12, $4. To make reservations persons are asked to contact Marie Mullenex at 735-6802 between the hours of 5 and 9 p.m.

AURORA HOMEMAKERS

Ten members of the Aurora Homemakers met February 17 at the Union Ambulance squad hall, with vice president Ressie Conrad conducting the meeting. Opening devotions were based on Genesis 9:12-15 and Janice Tackett read a meditation, "A Song of the Rainbow." She concluded with prayer.

"The Art of Getting Along With Others" was the study topic addressed by Alice Penzo.

Names are still being requested for the quilt to be made for the Anna Jarvis home. Persons may contact either Janice Tackett or Ressie Conrad to add names. The cost is $1 per name.

Sandy Callahan, Aurora Elementary instructor, has asked club members for their aid in reading to the school children, and there were volunteers. It was stated that they may also need volunteer aides for the pre-K program this spring. Mrs. Conrad asked that members submit suggestions for the changed name of the state organization, none of which may include either "Homemakers" or "Extension."

Demonstrators and exhibitors are being sought for a Women's Night Out program at Kingwood in May. Each club was asked to submit devotions for two months to compile a new county devotions booklet. Months for Aurora are June and November.

Mrs. Penzo suggested that a quilt show be sponsored by the Aurora Homemakers. The purpose would be as a fund-raiser to promote and benefit the Aurora Community Building and also to display old and unusual quilts from the surrounding communities. It was decided to cooperate in this venture, and it is scheduled for late May. A county lesson training meeting is scheduled for March 16 for lesson leaders in April, May, and June.

Delores Slawter was winner of the pig-in-the-poke. Mrs. Conrad had the vice president's special, a history of Valentine's Day.

A quilt, currently in progress at the squad hall, and distribution of a "sweets" quiz, to be returned at the March meeting, were special features.

A Shamrock Shake is set for Thursday evening, March 12, at the Aurora School from 7 until 10 p.m. Everyone in the community is invited.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

Learning in depth about Sucre, Bolivia, was the result of special speaker Suzi Fike's personal experiences in the building program there, related at the March 8 meeting of Church Women United for World Day of Prayer.

The program for the day was planned by the women of Madagascar, and a background of that island country was given by Alice Penzo, acting chair, prior to beginning the printed worship material.

The next meeting will be May Fellowship Day to be held May 1 at the Stemple Ridge Church.

The offering was divided between the Sucre project and Church Women United, who use this offering to help the women of the world.

EGLON HOMEMAKERS

The Eglon Homemakers met in the home of Ruth Teets on March 3. The hostess provided devotions based on John 14:1-5 and concluded her meditation with prayer.

The treasurer reported no new expenses, but previous bills had not been submitted. Sandra Hauser, president, will take charge of the April meeting and activity. This will be the 50th year since the organization of the Eglon Farm Women's Club, the progenitor of this one, and it is planned to have a special celebration, with a tentative date of October 25 set for that.

Jean Winters brought to the group some facts and hints concerning health, including some good and proven ones plus some that are myths.

Avenell Parsons displayed a handmade wooden pin, the figure of a hummingbird, given her by her step-daughter. Ruth Teets displayed an antique "nose" glass. For those not familiar with such an item, it was used to hold a liquid to be "sniffed" into the sinus cavities, and this one was owned by Stella Fike Musser, grandmother of Roscoe Teets.

Mrs. Parsons served green refreshments in honor of St. Patrick's Day to those above named, and to Mary Rembold, Linda Lewis, and Roscoe Teets.

Chapman Stick Artist To Play In FSU Cafe

Greg Howard will bring his Chapman stick wizardry to Cafe Frostburg this Friday, March 13, at 8 p.m. in the Frostburg State University's Lane Center Greenhouse. The event, sponsored by Lane Center and Campus Activities, is free and open to the public.

Howard is one of the only full-time Chapman stick soloists in the world who composes, performs, and records on this innovative and unique American instrument. The stick itself—invented 25 years ago by Emmett Chapman—is a 10-stringed hybrid of bass and guitar and is played by tapping with both hands, rather than being strummed or plucked, allowing the player to do bass, melody, and chords simultaneously. Prominent artists like Peter Gabriel and art-rock band King Crimson have featured Chapman stickists in their bands.

A typical Howard performance will include works from artists like Miles Davis, the Beatles, Pachelbel, and dozens more, as well as original works from Howard's two critically acclaimed CDs "Stick Figures" and "Shapes."

In addition to his two solo CDs, Howard's work has been included in film and documentary scores, as well as an original score for modern dance. He has also performed as a guest artist on the Dave Matthews Band CD, "Remember Two Things."

Howard has opened concerts for Alex DiGrassi, the Dave Matthews Band and Douglas, Meyer and Berenberg, among others, and his music is often heard on Public Radio International's "Echoes" program.

For more information on this concert, persons may call the Lane Center Information Desk at 301-687-4411.

CRIME SOLVERS

The Garrett County Crime Solvers case of the week involves the theft of red oak lumber.

Someone apparently stole approximately 2,000 board feet of the lumber, which was stacked at an old sawmill site along Rock Lodge Road. The thefts occurred between Jan. 15 and Feb. 2, according to the report.

The loss in this case is estimated to be $1,000.

Persons who have information about this or any other unsolved crimes are urged to contact Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975. Callers do not have to give their names nor do they have to appear in court. Rewards of up to $1,000 are available to persons who provide tips that lead to arrests.

A Friday evening overnight guest of Tyler Southerly was Scott Bass.

Sheila Southerly was a recent guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Resh, Grantsville.

March isn't very pretty. The snow covering is gone, but it sure doesn't feel like spring. Lloyd and my brother, Barry Glotfelty, Frederick, did find some snow on Big Savage Mountain on Saturday. There was enough shade and elevation to give them several good miles of cross-country skiing. Also skiing with them was Steve Sherrard of Accident.

There are a few encouraging signs of spring. Sunday, Meredith saw a robin and I heard some birds singing. While the guys were skiing, my girls went for a walk in the woods with their friend, Jamie Haydel, and found some skunk cabbage up and blossoming. Also, Courtney Engler of the Cove saw a pair of golden eagles on his farm.

With only one week until the Accident Elementary School's Talent Show, we had all but given up on trying to find out how to do the "Watusi." We were saved by a good friend, Nancy Geisler, who came over and taught Meredith and partner Jessie Biser how to do it. Now they need to polish it up and they'll be ready for the big show.

Read. Then Recycle.

State, County Jobless Rates Up In January

While more Marylanders were employed during January this year, compared to any January on record, seasonal layoffs lowered employment levels and increased the number of unemployed people throughout the state and in Garrett County.

"Increasing unemployment levels are a seasonal norm in January," said Eugene A. Conti Jr., secretary of the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation. "Even with the unemployment rate increase, Maryland experienced a record high number of employed people during any January. Additionally, more good news is that the state's unemployment rate is lower than it was in January 1997 and is lower than the national level."

Maryland's unemployment rate did its usual seasonal increase to 5.1 percent in January. Nationally, the unemployment rate escalated by nearly a full percentage point from 4.4 percent in December to 5.2 percent in January.

Garrett County's jobless rate surged to 15.7 percent in January, from 14.1 percent in December. The January 1997 rate was 14.7 percent.

Statewide, Maryland's local levels included unemployment rates as low as 2.4 percent in Montgomery and Howard counties, 3.5 percent in Anne Arundel County, and 3.8 percent in Frederick and St. Mary's counties. Only Worcester County's rate of 20.6 percent was higher than Garrett County's.

Declining employment is the norm for January, with post-holiday and weather-related layoffs contributing to job loss. During January, the number of employed people fell by about 23,800 to 2,620,978. Even with this decline, January's employment level represented the highest number on record for the month. A larger number of job seekers chose to remain in the job market to seek alternative employment, causing the number of unemployed to rise from 123,400 people to 141,617. In January 1997, more than 147,500 people were unemployed, which resulted in a 5.3 percent unemployment rate.

Activity on Maryland's industrial payrolls, for the most part, reflected nominal seasonal trends. Layoffs in retail establishments, semester break activity at colleges and universities, downsizing in services, and cuts in construction employment were some of the seasonal occurrences affecting January's labor market. In manufacturing, temporary layoffs in auto manufacturing and printing, coupled with seasonal reductions in food processing, pulled down overall employment.

In the Western Maryland region, unemployment increased by more than a full percentage point to 8.2 percent. Locally, unemployment rates in the western part of the state increased, with Allegany County's unemployment rate moving into double-digits (10.5 percent), which is not uncommon during January.

ELEGANT ELEPHANTS, trained by Bret Bronson, will be just one of the acts included in performances by the George Hubler International Circus, slated for Sunday, March 29, in the Frostburg State University gymnasium. Tickets for the circus, which is being sponsored by the Al Ghan Shrine Club, Cumberland, are now available at Get 'N' Go and Marvin's Men's Wear in Oakland, and at Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry. Advance tickets are $7 for adults and $4 for children, while door prices will be $8 and $5. Other animal acts include Andre Skerbeckl's lions, Garden military ponies presented by Rene, dogs trained by the Goldenmily family, and the Beautiful Birds of Paradise, presented by Susie Vidbel. The Shrine organization maintains 19 orthopaedic hospitals and three burn institutes for the free treatment of children.

Retail Clothing Executive To Be Guest At FSU

The chief executive officer of a successful retail company whose sales increases are double digit each month will address the faculty, administrators, students, and community of Frostburg State University on Thursday, April 2.

Charlotte G. Fischer, chair, president, and CEO of Paul Harris Stores Inc., a chain of 223 women's clothing stores in 26 states and the District of Columbia, will present three informative lectures at FSU's Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre. "Insights Into Career Planning in the Retail Industry" will be held at 9:30 a.m.; "Marketing and Strategy Positioning in Retail Women's Wear" will be conducted at 11 a.m.; and "Challenges and Successes in Breaking the Glass Ceiling" will be at 3 p.m. An open reception in the Leake Room of the Physical Education Center will follow at 4 p.m.

Most of the company's merchandise is private-label casual clothing manufactured solely for the company under the names Paul Harris Design, Paul Harris Denim, PHD and Pasta. Apparel account for approximately 90 percent of the Indianapolis-based company's sales, with accessories making up the remainder. The company maintains a store in the Country Club Mall in LaVale.

A native of Hagerstown, Mrs. Fischer has more than 28 years' experience in retail sales and management. She has held her current position with Paul Harris Stores since 1995. She and her husband reside in Indianapolis. They have two daughters and three grandchildren.

For more information on the presentations, persons may contact FSU's Business Administration Department at 301-687-4008.

New Negotiation Skills Course To Begin March 24

A Negotiation Skills class, which will provide an opportunity to build skills in negotiating contracts and in selling, will begin March 24, according to Ken Perrin, who will be the instructor for the class.

Perrin became the postmaster of Oakland in September 1995. Before that he was involved with real estate and facilities work for the Postal Service and the General Services Administration for 24 years. In that capacity he managed real estate programs and projects in 35 states, ranging from small leased health offices on Indian reservations to acquiring sites for large postal plants in major markets. After leading the Postal Service's real estate program in Washington for a year, he requested a reassignment to become Oakland's postmaster and has started his own real estate consulting concern.

Perrin also serves as chairman of Oakland's Downtown Revitalization Committee, chairman of Oakland Rotary's Community Services Committee, is a Vestry member at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, and is an ex officio member of the Garrett County Economic Development Corporation.

Videos, text materials, and "hands-on" interaction will be used to help participants strengthen their negotiation and sales skills. In this four-session course, participants will learn how to prepare for negotiations, use techniques for creating win/win results, get to "yes," and close sales. The class will be held March 24 and 31, and April 7 and 14 from 6:30 until 9 p.m. at the Garrett Community College campus, McHenry.

Anyone wishing to register for this class or obtain additional information may call Cathy Fazenbaker, Alyce McDowell, or Julie Yoder at 301-387-3080. Registration should be made through the GCC Department of Continuing Education.

If a taxpayer elects to make semi-annual property tax payments, ½ of the municipal taxes will be deferred until January 1. The second payment, due January 1, will incur a service charge reasonably equivalent to the anticipated lost interest income associated with the delay in the payment of the second installment and covering administrative expenses associated with the semi-annual payment not exceeding 5.94% of the charge of the lost interest.

To be eligible to make this selection of semi-annual payment, all previous years' taxes must be paid in full by June 1. Taxpayers not making their first semi-annual payment by September 30 are automatically waived out of the semi-annual plan and must pay the full tax bill.

If the taxpayer wishes to participate in the semi-annual payment option, the appropriate coupon should be returned with the payment before the September 30 deadline.

The Owner reserves the right to waive any informalities or minor defects, or to reject any and all Bids. Any Bid may be withdrawn prior to the above scheduled time for the opening of Bids or authorized postponement thereof. Any Bid received after the time and date specified will not be considered. No Bidder may withdraw a Bid within 90 days after the actual date of the opening thereof. Should there be reasons why the Contract cannot be awarded within the specified period, the time may be extended by mutual agreement between the Owner and the Bidder.

Bidders must satisfy themselves of the scope-of-work by examination of the site and a review of the Contract Documents including Addenda. After Bids have been submitted, the Bidder shall not assert that there was a misunderstanding concerning the quantities of work of the nature or the work to be done.

The Contract Documents contain the provisions required for the work included in the Project. Information obtained from an officer, agent or employee of the Owner or any other person shall not affect the risks or obligations assumed by the Contractor or relieve him from fulfilling any of the conditions of the Contract.

Bid Security and Bond Requirements

There are no bid securities or bond requirements for this project. Progress payments will be made for work in place and a ten percent (10%) retainage will be held on all work until the project is completed and the contract requirements are satisfied. Retainage in the amount of five percent (5%) of the final construction cost will be held for a one (1) year warranty period. Bidder may elect to provide a maintenance bond for one hundred percent (100%) of the construction cost in lieu of the five percent (5%) retainage.

The Owner may for any reason whatsoever determine that it is not in its best interest to award a Contract. In that event, the Contract award will not be made by the Owner and the Owner will not then be liable for any payments whatsoever to the Bidder. Extension of time beyond the ninety (90) day period of the award may be made only by mutual agreement between the Owner and the Bidder.

The party to whom the Contract is awarded will be required to execute the Agreement within ten (10) calendar days from the date when Notice of Award is delivered to the Bidder. The Notice of Award will be accompanied by the necessary Agreement and contract forms. In case of failure of the Bidder to execute the Agreement, the Owner may, at his option, consider the Bidder in default.

The Owner within ten (10) days of receipt of an acceptable Agreement signed by the party to whom the Contract was awarded will sign the Agreement and return to such party an executed duplicate of the Agreement. Should the Owner not execute the Agreement within such period, the Bidder may, by Written Notice, withdraw his signed Agreement. Such notice of withdrawal shall be effective upon receipt of notice by the Owner.

A conditional or qualified Bid will not be accepted.

Award will be made by the Owner to the lowest responsive and responsible bidder.

All applicable laws, ordinances, and the rules and regulations of all authorities having jurisdiction over the work shall apply to the Contract throughout.

Time For Completion

The successful bidder will be required to fully complete all contract work within sixty (60) consecutive calendar days from and including the date of receipt from the Owner of formal notice to proceed.

Award of Contract

The award of any contract will be made by the Owner.

Bidders are cautioned that bids that are deemed by the Owner to be obviously unbalanced may be rejected.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any proposal for failure to comply with all requirements of this notice or of any of the Contract Documents; however, it may waive any minor defects or informalities at its discretion.

The Owner further reserves the right to reject all proposals, or to award a contract or contracts which in its judgment is in the best interest of the Owner.

Nondiscrimination of Employment

BIDDERS ON THIS WORK WILL BE REQUIRED TO COMPLY WITH THE PRESIDENT'S EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 11246. THE REQUIREMENTS FOR BIDDERS AND CONTRACTORS UNDER THIS ORDER ARE EXPLAINED IN 41 CFR 60.4.

Notice of Requirement for Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities

Bidders and offerors are cautioned as follows: By signing this bid or offer, the bidder or offeror will be deemed to have signed and agreed to the provisions or the "Certification Nonsegregated Facilities" in this solicitation. The certification provides that the bidder or offeror does not maintain or provide for his employees facilities which are segregated on a basis of race, creed, color, or national origin, whether such facilities are segregated by directive or on a de facto basis. The certification also provides that he will not maintain such segregated facilities. Failure of a bidder or offeror to agree to the Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities will render his bid or offer non-responsive to the terms of solicitations.

GARRETT COUNTY

GA75G007/4 - The Town of Accident, P.O. Box 190, Accident, MD 21520, has applied to increase an existing appropriation from an annual average of 35,000 gallons per day (gpd) of ground water and 50,000 gpd during the month of maximum use to an annual average of 55,000 gpd and 77,000 gpd during the month of maximum use, for a municipal supply for the Town of Accident. The water is to be taken from two wells, one well 0.4 mile east of the junction of Bittinger Road and South Street, and the second 0.1 mile southeast of the junction of Drane Drive and U.S. Route 219, Accident, Garrett County, Maryland.

The production wells, installed in a water table fractured rock aquifer, are 300 feet deep. Impacts to the resource and nearby users were evaluated using data from geological reports and investigations available to the Water Management Administration and on-site aquifer pumping tests. A 60-day pumping period of the Town's production wells resulted in no reported impacts to nearby wells.

Allegheny Energy, DQE Inc. Merger Settlement Noted

Allegheny Energy Inc. has reached a settlement agreement with parties to its filing in Maryland that, if approved by the Maryland Public Service Commission (PSC), would represent the first state regulatory decision associated with the company's proposed merger with Pittsburgh-based DQE Inc.

According to Allegheny Energy chairman, president, and chief executive officer Alan J. Noia, the settlement agreement includes provisions that enable synergy savings produced by the merger to be shared between shareholders and customers, resulting in a $4.4 million rate reduction for the company's Maryland electric customers upon merger consummation. The settlement agreement is subject to PSC approval.

"We are pleased that the Maryland Public Service Commission Staff and the other parties involved in these proceedings have worked with us to reach this agreement," said Noia. "Our merger with DQE will produce significant benefits for our customers in Maryland and the region. A larger, more efficient, more innovative, and financially stronger energy services provider headquartered in western Maryland will be an asset to the state. This rate reduction is a clear indication that our merged company will be able to offer lower rates to customers than our existing companies could on a stand-alone basis."

"We have worked diligently to make our merger a model of cooperation," said Michael P. Morrell, Allegheny Energy's senior vice president and chief financial officer. "We are working to create a stronger regional company for the benefit of customers, shareholders, and employees. This agreement supports the issuance of Allegheny Energy stock to DQE shareholders and keeps us on track to achieve our goal of having all regulatory and related approvals by the end of June."

Allegheny Energy reached the settlement agreement with the staff of the PSC, the Office of People's Counsel, the Maryland Energy Administration, the Department of Natural Resources, and Westvaco Corporation, and is hopeful that the PSC will add its approval.

In August 1997, the company filed a request with the PSC that it indicate its approval of the issuance of stock to consummate the merger. In recent weeks, the PSC has been reviewing the effects of the proposed merger on the Maryland rates and operations of The Potomac Edison Company (doing business as Allegheny Power), Allegheny Energy's electric utility subsidiary that provides service to about 420,000 Marylanders. Potomac Edison's rates are already the lowest of Maryland's investor-owned utilities, according to Noia.

In August 1997, shareholders of both companies overwhelmingly approved the merger. The required regulatory filings have been made regarding the merger, including those with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, the Department of Justice/Federal Trade Commission, and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

When the merger is complete, Allegheny Energy will serve a population of more than 4.5 million, with 2 million customers in a 30,000-square-mile service area across five states. Noia said that the new company will be strategically positioned as a major regional competitor in the increasingly competitive energy marketplace. "It will have a large regional platform from which to expand its customer base and to offer a wider range of energy-related products and services to customers," he said.

Headquartered near Hagerstown, Allegheny Energy, with operating subsidiaries doing business as Allegheny Power, provides electric service to 1.4 million customers in parts of Maryland (including Garrett County), Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia.

DQE, an electric utility holding company, has subsidiaries engaged in the production, transmission, and sale of electric energy. Duquesne Light Company, DQE's principal subsidiary, serves more than 580,000 customers in the Pittsburgh area.

"BRUSHSTROKES" FOR SENIORS UNDERWAY — "Brushstrokes," an art class for senior citizens, began in March for the residents of the Cuppett and Weeks Nursing Home. The class, which is taught by AmeriCorps member Karen Frankhouser, brings together seniors and service learning students. The youngsters socialize with and assist their elders with the drawings, Frankhouser said. She reported that the two groups greatly enjoyed their time together. She also expressed thanks to Georgiana and Melvyn Sines of the Oakland Arts Store for providing art supplies at discount prices. In the photo above, shown left to right as they work on their drawings are Vernnie Simmons, Holly Holler, and Elaine Davis. In the photo below are Joe Graham and Violet Pike.

Business Owner Charged With $150K Forgery

The owner and general manager of Snowy Creek Power Equipment Company, located just north of Oakland, was arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office on Tuesday and charged with four counts of forgery in connection with a series of fraudulent business transactions that investigators believe may have netted him $150,000 or more in illegal loans.

Thomas Steven Blakeney, 39, Terra Alta, W.Va., was released from jail after he posted a $4,000 bond set by the court commissioner. His forgery charges stem from allegations by several of Blakeney's business associates who reported that over the past year loans to Snowy Creek had been taken out in their names without their knowledge. Additional complaints were received from several former Snowy Creek customers of their reportedly being double-billed for purchases from the company. Sheriff's detectives were able to track the money suspected to have been garnered by these fraudulent business transactions to an account in Snowy Creek's name at a Terra Alta bank.

Although the investigation into the allegations is still ongoing at this point, the sheriff's office reports that in June of 1996 Blakeney allegedly went to some friends and asked them to back his business. Several of these individuals agreed, although they requested that they be left out of Snowy Creek's business operations.

One of these individuals, an Oakland resident, found out just this past month that Blakeney had reportedly formed a corporation and had named him president without his knowledge or consent. (Blakeney had allegedly named himself vice president of the corporation.) Upon learning that he was a corporation president, the alleged victim also learned that a credit application in his name for Snowy Creek had been approved by a national finance company in January

THE CEASELESS CYCLE OF SEASONS — Tomorrow the day will be as long as the night, as the vernal equinox arrives and passes. In Garrett County, this occurrence at least marks the beginning of the end of winter, and the determined crocuses pictured here are a good sign of that inevitable change. Despite frigid temperatures last week and predictions of more snow this weekend, the earliest flowers are boldly pushing through anyway and will be showing their colors soon, if they haven't already. The rhythm of life is indeed cyclical, and most find this arc of the cycle to be invigorating and full of promise. Happy vernal equinox to you and yours.

Dr. Teets Notes Changes '97-'98 School Calendar

School instruction days have been missed as a result of inclement weather. The calendar has been revised to add the required number of days in the classroom.

Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of schools, issued the memorandum of the changes this week. They are as follows:

Tuesday, April 14, will become a regular day of school. If an additional day of school is missed before April 1, then April 9 will be changed to a regular day of school. Any additional days missed will be added in June.

Friday, March 27, will be a half day instruction with students dismissed at noon, and a Professional Day in the afternoon for teachers to work on record keeping. This replaces Jan. 23, which was missed because of inclement weather.

The last day of school for students is currently scheduled for June 8, with a 1 p.m. dismissal on the last three days.

Graduation is scheduled for Sunday, May 31, at 1 p.m. for Northern High School and at 4 p.m. for Southern High School.

Funds Received To Back OCYF Safety Initiative

The Maryland Children's Trust Fund Advisory Board has awarded funds to the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families to implement that agency's proposal, Personal Safety Initiative.

According to an OCYF spokesman, the initiative establishes multiple collaboratives through the various project components. Agencies and organizations working on the initiative include: the Garrett Co. Health Department, the Garrett Co. Board of Education, the Department of Social Services, Community Action, the Oakland Police, the Maryland State Police, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, the State's Attorney's Office, Parole and Probation, the Domestic Violence/Sexual Assault Resource Center, the Garrett Memorial Hospital, the Cooperative Extension Service, the Garrett County Commission for Women, the Teen Health Theater: Pandora's Box, the Ecumenical Youth Ministry, and local faith community representatives.

The spokesman said that the initiative focuses on direct service by providing prevention-focused "safety safari" seminars on personal body safety and child abuse prevention. Elements of the initiative are comprehensive and pull together the community sources that can accomplish increasing the public's knowledge about personal safety and violence prevention.

Examples of project components include: an automated phone survey to assess the public's awareness and opinions about personal

NHS Students Shine In Science Expo; Neubert Wins Top Prize

Northern High School students brought home an impressive number of awards and honors, including the grand prize, from the Western Maryland Regional Science Expo last Friday.

Of the 12 Northern High students who participated in the competitions, eight placed first, second, or third. Joshua Neubert brought home the grand prize.

Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County Board of Education, said he was very impressed and very proud of the students. "Garrett County students did well in the special awards area, too," he noted.

Neubert also received one of the four Navy/Marine Distinguished Achievement awards and earned one of three scholarships presented by business sponsors. He was awarded a $1,000 scholarship for second place from AES Warrior Run, and Ann Sebold of NHS earned a $500 scholarship for third place.

In the TAM awards, given for engineering, earth and space science, and physics, Neubert and John Carey took a first and second, while Sebold and Jesse Shimrock won second and third place awards.

In the physics contest Neubert and Carey placed first and second.

Sebold and Shimrock took second and third in the engineering category, and NHS students Jennifer Kolbe and Lisa Beeman placed second and third in botany.

In the behavioral sciences Northern students took three of four awards. First place went to Julia Geisler, third place was won by Beverly Sebold, and Emily Green earned an honorable mention.

Students from Washington and Allegany counties were competing in the event.

Cabin Leveled By Fire; Stove Probable Cause

A fire most likely caused by a small gas stove destroyed a small wood cabin, located off Bethlehem Road south of Mtn. Lake Park, last Thursday afternoon.

Firefighters from the Deer Park, Oakland, Gorman, and Bayard fire departments were summoned to the cabin, which was owned by Roger Roderick, at 2:57 p.m. Roderick, who lives nearby, called in the alarm when he saw flames coming from the structure.

The cabin was fully involved in flames upon the arrival of the first fire units. The structure and its contents were destroyed, with the loss estimated to be $5,000. According to Bob Sweitzer, second assistant chief for the Deer Park VFD, Roderick did not have insurance on the property.

Sweitzer said that three of Roderick's relatives had spent Wednesday night in the cabin and had left Thursday morning to go trout fishing.

Also responding to the scene was the county air cascade vehicle, housed at the Deep Creek VFC, and the Southern Rescue Squad. Units remained on the scene for about one and one-half hours. There were no injuries reported.

Biannual Tour Of Grand Jury Is Completed

The Garrett County March Term Grand Jury convened this week to take the biannual tour of all county departments and agencies. The jurors were divided into committees and proceeded to visit the following county entities: the board of education (and Yough Glades Elementary School), county roads, courthouse/jail, health department, and the county landfill.

The members of the Grand Jury also heard reports from several county officials, including Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of schools; Lee Thorne, roads department administrator; P.R. Sanders, sheriff, and Maj. Gary Berkebile, chief deputy; Dr. Rex Archer, county health officer and director of the Garrett County Health Department; Steve Sherrard, environmental health director; Patty Glover, treasurer; and Garrett County Commissioners Gary Fratz, Wayne Johnson, and Wayne

Route 219, 220 Segments May Get Federal ARC Funds

The U.S. Senate approved a $214 billion transportation bill last week that included a $2.19 billion allocation to the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC), earmarked to fund completion of the entire 3,025-mile ARC corridor highway system.

Maryland's 86.8-mile portion of the ARC corridor highway system is composed of three components: Corridor N, a 2½-mile segment of Route 219 in Garrett County between the Pennsylvania state line and the I-68 interchange just east of Grantsville; Corridor O, Route 220 in Allegany County between the Pennsylvania state line and the I-68 interchange just east of Cumberland; and Corridor E, the length of I-68 that traverses Western Maryland from the I-70 interchange at Hancock to the West Virginia state line and is already upgraded to interstate status.

"Western Maryland stands to gain as much as $37.7 million for its Appalachian corridor highways over the next six years under this bill," said an ARC spokesperson. "This would cover the cost of completing the ARC corridor work in Maryland, which is already 92 percent complete."

David Moe, co-president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce and a leading proponent of a new north-south interstate through the entire county, said that Corridor O (Route 220) is far ahead in the development stage than Corridor N (Route 219). "Route 220 has been through the planning and aquisition stage, and ground is ready to be broken for actual construction. Route 219 from the Pennsylvania line to I-68 is in the initial planning stages, so it will be awhile before construction there can begin," he said.

The Senate's ARC funding action was part of the six-year reauthorization package of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA), which has shifted to the House of Representatives for deliberation there. The ISTEA measure is expected to be on the floor of the House by April 1, and, according to published news reports, is expected pass the House without many modifications. The Senate's approved version of the funding package includes $173 billion for highway construction and related safety improvement programs through the year 2003, up 38 percent from the six-year ISTEA plan that ended last fall.

The Baltimore Sun reported that "the money in

Governor Becomes Player In Sale Of Lake; Local Officials Pleased

Maryland Governor Parris Glendening issued a letter of interest to representatives of GPU Energy Inc. last week, outlining the state's desire to protect Deep Creek Lake in light of the power company's plan to sell it and the attached power plant. Local officials have expressed their gratitude to the governor for his showing of support to the county.

"The Board of Garrett County Commissioners and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce welcomes and thanks Governor Glendening for his involvement in intervening in the planned divestiture," said Commissioner Chairman H. Wayne Wilt.

In a press release late last week, Glendening described the lake as "an environmental treasure" and an "outstanding Maryland resource."

"Over the years, it has become a favorite place for recreation and tourism, generating jobs and revenue for Garrett County and the state," Glendening said. "We must be involved in the divestment process now in order to ensure the state's continued management and stewardship of the lake's natural resources and recreational opportunities."

The governor has directed Department of Natural Resources Secretary John R. Griffin and Department of Business and Economic Development Secretary James T. Brady to lead a team that will coordinate the state's efforts. The governor said he has directed these leaders to "keep all options open for the state."

"In the coming months, we will determine the extent of our participation, including possibly forming partnerships with other entities," Glendening said. "It is in the best interest of all potential bidders to involve the state."

He said he and his staff recognize the concerns of local citizens about the future of the lake and that he will continue to "inform them of, and engage them in, the state's efforts to protect everyone's interests."

Delegate George C. Edwards commended the governor for taking this step.

"This will give the state time to thoroughly evaluate the options and make the appropriate decision that is in the best interest of the citizens of Maryland, in particular those who are most impacted by a change in ownership of this out-

Fiscal Authority Hears Requests Of Library, Health Dept., School Board

The Garrett County Commissioners this Tuesday were audience to three county agency representatives, who presented their departments' budget requests for fiscal year 1999. The health department is requesting relatively the largest increase for this year, a result of lowered revenues caused by federal law changes. The library staff is asking for more competitive pay scales, and the education board has entered a request approximately 4% higher than last year's.

The commissioners will host their annual constant yield rate hearing on April 21, and will strike the budget on May 5. Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator, said this morning that the commissioners have directed him to prepare a budget on the current tax rate, which is $2.59 per $100 in assessed taxable property.

Ruth Enlow Library

Sheila Hughes, acting director of the Ruth Enlow Library system, submitted her staff's budget plan, which calls for a county contribution of $495,342. She began her presentation by informing the commissioners that library staff salaries are a concern, as they are low compared to other libraries in the state, as well as low compared to other Garrett County employee pay scales. Hughes said there are currently about 25 employees in the system, 15 of whom are full-time workers.

The chief capital expenditure request of the library staff is for a new vehicle for the bookmobile service. The vehicle in use currently is a 1982 model van. The staff would like to purchase a newer van, to be used more as a shuttle vehicle than the traditional bookmobile.

"With five branches of the library now in operation, the bookmobile use has declined. But interlibrary lending is at a very high rate and the van is used a lot in delivering books around the county," Hughes explained. The cost of a new vehicle is expected to be about $25,000. Commissioner Wayne Johnson suggested that the staff could look into the possibility of purchasing a military surplus vehicle, as they are often inexpensive, yet in good condition. The representatives reacted favorably to the suggestion.

Hughes noted that the library currently provides Internet access to all county

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU BEING STAGED — The wacky comedy You Can't Take It With You, written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, will be presented this weekend by the Southern High School Department of Theatre Arts. The play, which will feature the talents of 20 young actors, is being produced by special arrangement with the Dramatists Play Service Inc., and was funded in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. Director Jane Avery said the play, which is set in the 1930s, is about a girl from an eccentric family who falls in love with an extremely proper man. The show will be presented to the students at Southern this week, and evening performances for the general public are slated for Friday, March 20, and Saturday, March 21, both beginning at 8 p.m. in the school cafetorium. General admission will be $3 per person. Pictured are the cast and crew of the show. In the love seat at left are, left to right, Chelsea Stuck (Rheba), Mike Prohonic (Donald), and Pete Porcaro (Mr. Henderson). In the front row, same order, are Alex Hill (Ed Carmichael), Rachel Lane (Alice Sycamore), Erin Wampler (Essie Carmichael), David Nichols (Tony Kirby), Shawn Cardiff (Paul Sycamore), Andy Selb (Mr. DePinna), and Marianne Peracchio (Miss Wellington). Middle row: Mikey Virts (Martin Vanderhof), Kane Wengard (Boris Kolenkhov), Bethany Smith (Penelope Sycamore), Chris Rondeau (Mr. Kirby), and Brianna Thayer (Mrs. Kirby). Back row: David Murray, Adam Durst, Becky Newman, and Charlie Nolen, all stage hands, and Jon Wildeson (the Man), Brandon Ferguson (Mac), Alex Roth (Sam), and Russ Crosco (Jim). Not present for the photo was Evie White, who plays Duchess Olga Katrine. The set for the show was constructed by the cast and by Avery's Theatre I and II classes.

Beard Announces Candidacy For GC Commissioner

David C. Beard has filed as a Republican candidate for Garrett County Commissioner in District 1, seeking the seat presently held by Wayne Wilt.

A graduate of Frostburg State University, Beard has taken part in advanced studies at West Virginia University, Bowie State College, Frostburg State University, and the University of Kentucky.

He is currently a civics teacher at Southern High School, a position he has held for 21 years. He formerly taught at North Glade Elementary School and Friendsville Elementary School. At Southern High School he has also taught special education and served as a guidance counselor.

Beard is a member and past president of the Garrett County Federation of Teachers, and in 1997 was awarded the organization's John Dewey Award in recognition of his excellence in the field of education. Prior to his 30-year teaching career he was assistant superintendent of the Backbone Mountain Boys' Forestry Camp.

Beard is a former member of the Oakland Optimist Club, where he served as president of the local club and lieutenant governor of the district organization. He received the Friend of Youth award and the club leadership award. He is also past president of the Maryland Classified Employees Association, Chapter 105, and a past member of the Mountain Top Civic Center Board of Directors. He served four terms on the Board of Election Supervisors and was president of that board for one term.

The candidate is a current member of the American Legion, Proctor Kildow Post #71, and the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Lions Club, of which he is immediate past president. He is currently the zone chairman for Garrett County. He was awarded the Lions Club Lion of the Year honor for 1991 and the Southern Garrett Athletic Association Citizen of the Year for 1986. He was included in Who's Who Among American Teachers each year since 1990 and has been honored again this year.

"I believe good things happen to people who work hard," Beard stated. "I intend to work hard to make good things happen in our communities. The Commissioner's Office is the people's office. Taxpayers should have easy access to their elected officials, especially their commissioners."

If successful in his election bid, Beard stated that he would retire from teaching to serve the citizens of Garrett County full-time.

The Garrett County Narcotics Task Force arrested a Grantsville man yesterday for possession of marijuana.

According to a statement by the Garrett County State's Attorney, Lisa Thayer Welch, speaking for the group, Christopher S. Warnick, 18, was taken into custody on the strength of an arrest warrant, which charged him with possession of marijuana and paraphernalia. Warnick is currently awaiting a bond hearing with District Court commissioners.

Two Men Airlifted To Morgantown After Car Accident

Two West Virginia men were airlifted via helicopters to Morgantown's Ruby Memorial Hospital after their vehicles collided head-on early Sunday morning on Route 7 in West Virginia just over the Garrett County line.

Deputies from the Preston County, W.Va., Sheriff's Office reported that at a quarter after midnight on Sunday, March 15, a Chevrolet Monte Carlo operated by William Michael Kelly, 24, Albright, W.Va., was traveling eastbound on Route 7 when it collided with a westbound Chevrolet Monte Carlo operated by John Shaffer, 31, Corinth, W.Va., 3/10 mile west of the Garrett County line.

Shaffer was trapped in his vehicle following the accident and had to be freed by emergency personnel from the Terra Alta and Oakland volunteer fire departments, the Terra Alta ambulance squad, and the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. Kelly was ejected from his truck upon the impact with Shaffer's car, and was found on the pavement just over 10 feet from his vehicle.

The men were flown by the Healthnet and the Life Flight helicopters to Ruby Memorial Hospital, where a spokesperson listed them both in fair condition yesterday.

The Preston County Sheriff's Office stated that while the accident's circumstances are still under investigation, it appears that the vehicles met in the eastbound lane of Route 7. Charges are pending, with the possibility that both drivers will be charged with either driving while intoxicated or driving under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs. The drivers were the only occupants of their respective vehicles at the time of the accident.

Former Tobacco Company Scientist To Speak Locally

Victor DeNoble, Ph.D., former laboratory scientist for Philip Morris Tobacco Company, will deliver the keynote address at a Tobacco Prevention Summit sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department. The summit will take place on Saturday, April 4, at Garrett Community College's Continuing Education Building from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Dr. DeNoble received a doctorate degree in 1976 in the field of experimental psychology from Adelphi University, Garden City, N.Y. He has a postdoctoral fellowship from the National Institute of Drug Abuse.

DeNoble was hired in 1980 as a laboratory scientist for Philip Morris, a large, well-known cigarette manufacturer. The company's reported goal was to discover a chemical that would have the same effects on the brain as nicotine (the addictive substance in tobacco), but would not damage the heart and blood vessels. Once this chemical was found, the nicotine could be removed from the tobacco and replaced with this new chemical. Therefore, a "safer" cigarette could be made.

A nicotine substitute was discovered in 1981. However, Philip Morris allegedly did not allow this research discovery to be published. DeNoble's laboratory at Philip Morris was closed in April 1984 and all information was reportedly seized by the cigarette company. On that same day, DeNoble and his co-worker were reportedly fired on the basis that the research gave tobacco companies a negative image in court.

DeNoble has reported that he was committed to secrecy for the next 10 years. As a result of congressional hearings held in April 1994, he was released from secrecy and has since testified before the commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), the FDA Tobacco Task Force, and Vice President Al Gore's Tobacco Settlement Committee. He has also appeared on the "David Brinkley Sunday News," "Prime Time with Peter Jennings," "Dateline," "60 Minutes," "Good Morning America," and ABC, NBC, and CBS news programs. DeNoble also travels around the country to share his story.

The public is invited to attend the Tobacco Prevention Summit, which will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude at 2:30 p.m. In addition to the address by DeNoble, the summit will include interactive workshops, a puppet show performed by the Southern High School STEAM group, and lunch. To register for the summit, persons should call the health department at 301-334-8122 or 301-895-3111 by March 26.

Students in grades 8 through 12 are encouraged to attend and earn service learning hours.

In addition to the Tobacco Prevention Summit, the health department is also offering a Health Fair on the same day in recognition of Public Health Week. The Health Fair is open to the public and will feature such activities as blood pressure monitoring, displays and demonstrations, free blood screening coupons for the first 200 participants, and several other free items.

The Health Fair will be held 1-4 p.m. at Garrett Community College.

Car Overturns On Route 495, Injures Driver

A vehicle overturned on Route 495 near Grantsville last Friday injuring the 89-year-old driver, who was transported to the hospital.

According to a report filed by Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, Mary Anna Frye, Accident, was northbound on Route 495 (Bittinger Road) at 7:30 a.m. when the incident occurred.

Frye's car traveled off the roadway, struck a fence and a ditch, and overturned, the police said.

Bittinger Fire Department and Northern Rescue Squad responded to the scene, and the squad took the injured woman to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, where she was treated and released.

No charges were filed in the incident.

Man Arrested, Jailed Following Violent Behavior

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported an arrest that resulted from a complaint of violent behavior.

Grantsville resident Jason J. Shingle, 20, was arrested Sunday and charged after an argument with a juvenile that started about 1:30 p.m. escalated. Shingle allegedly threw the victim to the ground and kicked the victim several times.

Shingle was placed in the Garrett County Jail and later released on $500 bond.

Corinth, W.Va., Restaurant Owner Jailed For Theft

The owner of the Encore Restaurant in Corinth, W.Va., was arrested earlier this week by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and charged with the theft of over $1,500 worth of meat from the Oakland Food Lion on Garrett Highway.

Bryan Martin Shaffer, 35, faces one count of felony theft scheme, one count of felony bad check writing, and three counts of misdemeanor theft. The charges stem from a report by Food Lion store manager Barry Brown that security cameras had videotaped Shaffer entering the store's meat locker on three separate occasions and removing approximately five slabs of tenderloin and top round cuts.

Shaffer then would reportedly take the meat through the cashier's checkout, allegedly telling store employees on two occasions that the store was billing him for the meat, and on a third occasion saying that he had pre-paid for the meat. On each occasion the value of the store's loss is estimated at $500-$600.

The incidents all occurred between 1 and 3 a.m., according to Brown's allegations. He also told sheriff's deputies that Shaffer had no authorization to be in the meat cooler, that he did not have an account with Food Lion, and that Food Lion does not maintain business accounts for organizations other than non-profits.

Shaffer maintains that the entire situation is a misunderstanding, and that the allegations will be cleared as a result of further investigation.

Incarcerated Pair Face More Theft, Burglary Charges

Two men arrested two weeks ago and charged in connection with several burglaries in Garrett and Preston counties have been charged with another residential burglary by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Dwight Howard Clary, 21, Oakland, and Orval Ray Tasker, 18, Mtn. Lake Park, each face additional charges of first-degree burglary, misdemeanor theft, felony malicious destruction of property, and trespassing that stem from a March 1 burglary of an unoccupied home in the 3500 block of Sand Flat Road.

Entry was made into the home via a coal bin access window that was removed by the perpetrator(s). A number of small tools and maintenance equipment, as well as a quantity of clothing, were removed from the residence.

Clary is still being held in jail on a $25,000 cash bond. Tasker is held on a $10,000 bond.

In other sheriff's news, a March 3 daylight burglary of a house trailer in the 2000 block of Blue Goose Road near Friendsville resulted in the loss of a number of guns from the home. The front door was broken through, the contents of the trailer were ransacked, and stolen were: a Revelations .243-caliber rifle with a mounted Tasco scope, with a value of $350; a Ranger .22-caliber single shot rifle, valued at $200; a Savage 12-gauge pump shotgun, valued at $200; a Hunter Carbine .58-caliber muzzleloader, serial #397377, valued at $190; and an HNR 12-gauge shotgun, valued at $125.

DENTAL HEALTH MONTH MARKED - Giving and receiving gifts is a great way to mark a special occasion. Dr. William Yant was the giver and children at the Head Start center in Oakland were the happy recipients of gifts in recognition of Dental Health Month. The presents that Dr. Yant passed out to the children were tooth paste, tooth brushes, coloring books, and stickers. Dr. Yant, the local trustee for the Allegany/Garrett Dental Society, received the gifts from Procter and Gamble. The children pictured here with Dr. Yant are, clockwise from the left, Ashley and Amber Gordon, who are twins, and Kendra and Kenneth Hardesty, also twins.

The interior of the old Loch Lynn Elementary School was vandalized, possibly during the night of March 10, with damage to several rooms. The perpetrator(s), whose mode of entry is still undetermined, poured scouring powder on several carpets and walls, broke several glass vases, wrote profanity on a chalkboard, and scratched a symbol of an "A" inside a circle on two bulletin boards. The school had been vacated in early February when the students moved to the new Yough Glades Elementary, and the Board of Education is in the process of turning over its ownership to the town of Loch Lynn.

A theft from a barn in the 11000 block of Oakland Sang Run Road resulted on Monday resulted in the loss of a .041 Stihl Farm Boss chainsaw, orange and white in color and valued at $500, and a black Craftsman 1.5 horsepower air compressor valued at $200.

All four tires were slashed on a vehicle parked at the Long Branch Saloon on Maryland Highway the night of March 14. The damage is estimated at $400.

A theft from a car parked in storage at Buddy's Towing on Garrett Highway recently resulted in the loss of a 14-carat gold chain bracelet of the "figaro" style, valued at $200, and one set of Dodge Neon floor mats, valued at $20.

A blue 16-inch boys bike was taken from the front yard of a home in on Powles Drive in Mtn. Lake Park during daylight hours of March 9. The bike, which had been stored under a tarp near the home's front door, has a black seat and a bent white front reflector. It is valued at $100.

A stolen vehicle was recovered from the parking lot behind the Grantsville Holiday Inn on Monday. Hotel management contacted the sheriff's office about the 1995 Nissan, which had been abandoned in the parking lot for several weeks. A computer check of the vehicle's identification number revealed that it had been reported as stolen in Nashville, Tenn. The vehicle, which is missing its radio, was impounded and is being processed for release to Nashville authorities.

ACCIDENTS

Several accidents with injuries were reported to the sheriff's office recently.

At 1 a.m. on Feb. 28, a 1989 Ford pickup operated by Cecil Dwight Tasker Jr., 28, Mtn. Lake Park, struck a guardrail on eastbound U.S. Route 50 just east of Table Rock Road. The truck then skidded across the highway and struck an embankment on the westbound side, and then bounced back across the road and struck the eastbound guardrail again before coming to rest.

Tasker, who was traveling alone, was transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital (GCMH), where he was treated and released. He was then arrested by sheriff's deputies and charged with driving while intoxicated.

A second one-vehicle accident resulted in injuries to the car's lone occupant at 11 p.m. on March 8. As Eric Lester Crosco, 20, Oakland, was driving his 1995 Ford Escort westbound on Garrett Road near Fricks Crossing Road, he lost control and drove off the shoulder, striking a tree. He suffered a wrist injury, and was treated at GCMH and released.

Finally, an accident involving a vehicle that had possibly been stolen resulted in injuries to an unknown subject. A resident of Blueberry Hill in McHenry told deputies that she had received a phone call at 4:30 a.m on March 7 from an anonymous intoxicated-sounding male subject who told her that her vehicle was on its top on Deep Creek Drive. Another family member left the home to check and found the overturned 1995 Mazda near Deep Creek Outfitters. The vehicle was unoccupied, but deputies found blood, skin, and hair inside the vehicle. The Sheriff's Office is still investigating the case.

Grand Jury

Courthouse

Upon visiting the courthouse for the county, the jurors said that exterior and concrete repairs to the building are needed, but are already addressed and in plan. The jury suggested that the commissioners take into account the need for adequate parking when deciding the utilization of county buildings.

Gary Mullich, head of general services, outlined current plans for the new visitor center in McHenry. He reported that initial bids were higher than budget, so modified specifications have been reissued. The closure and award are expected in the very near future (possibly this week), according to the jury report. The new visitor center will house the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

Mullich also spent time with the Grand Jury outlining the process and procedures used for bids. The jury was reportedly satisfied with procurement procedures.

Sheriff's Office and Jail

The jury visited the jail and recommended that the ratio of correctional officers to inmates (2:45) be lowered in the interest of safety for all involved. Jurors suggested that additional correctional officers be hired. They also asserted that the quality and quantity of surveillance equipment (especially video cameras) should be improved, and that repairs should be made to the heating system.

"Keeping inmates in cells at 45 or 29 degrees, as we were informed, is unacceptable," the jury's report states. Additional restroom and shower facilities are also needed, according to the report, and "in the long run," the current jail facilities will be out-grown. "This growth currently is being accommodated by 'nickel and dime' changes and a small addition. A long-range plan is needed. Privatization options should be surveyed when a long-range plan is developed," the reports states.

The jurors commended the sheriff's office management for fiscal responsibility in two areas: 1) the feeding of inmates for $1.92 per person per day; and 2) an innovative contract with medical personnel which will save the county substantial money, according to the report.

The jury said opportunities for physical activities for the inmates should be maximized, and that the current practice of road work crews benefits the jail population and the community.

Gender Inequality...

Two letters to the editor in this issue concern gender inequality issues, one as a national problem and the other as a local concern, and we decided to jump into that arena with some of our own opinions.

The national issue is the ongoing inequality in salaries for women in the workplace, who, according to the statistics shared in a letter from a local Business and Professional Women's Club and the Garrett County Commission for Women, are paid on average no more than three fourths what their male counterparts receive. Of course, raw numbers can be misleading, so we are not prepared to defend the above statistic specifically. There are many variables that could skew the numbers. However, there is no doubt that one could identify numerous cases, particularly in the corporate world, that totally support the unfair-pay allegation.

The writers of the letter make a great point: unfair pay practices should not be viewed as a woman's issue, since the majority of working women are wives and mothers with families that depend upon their income just to make ends meet. Husbands and children are equally hurt by such disparities. More pressure, from the public as well as the government, should be placed upon employers to make sure that gender is not a factor in determining wage levels.

The local issue pointed out in the other letter to the editor centers around the 12-member Garrett County/Deep Creek Lake Advisory Committee, appointed last week by the Garrett County commissioners to study the impending sale of Deep Creek Lake, and the fact that there is not a single female among the 12 members.

We staunchly agree with this letter writer in her assessment that this was an irresponsible effort and a slap in the face to local women. In fairness to the commissioners, two women were asked to serve on the committee, but elected not to serve. However, there are scores of other intelligent, highly educated women in this county who would be outstanding members of this panel, but were not invited.

Setting the fairness issue aside, we do believe that the commissioners wanted to select the best possible group of people for this purpose. But they have failed, because the committee lacks entirely the female viewpoint, which we believe is exceedingly valuable in all matters, not just the sale of Deep Creek Lake.

It's not too late to make a change. We recommend that the commissioners reconvene on this issue and up the membership of that committee with the addition of several women, not only to save face, but more importantly, to enhance the membership and truly make it the best it can be.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The American Lung Association of Maryland supports the Attorney General's request for clarification of Section 15-120 of the Health General Article. We believe that the state of Maryland is acting in the best interest of the taxpayer by attempting to lay a solid legal defense to recoup the incredible sum of taxpayer money that has been spent to treat the victims of the tobacco industry.

The amount of money required to fulfill the existing verbiage of Section 15-120 would be prohibitive when the numbers themselves clearly show the amount of damage suffered by Maryland citizens--and the burden would fall to the taxpayers to pay. The taxpayers have already paid for the damage tobacco has done--now we have to pay again to prove the damage?

The Lung Association agrees that the intent of this legislation should be focused only on the tobacco industry lawsuit. The Milk and Paint argument proposed by the opponents of this bill do not fall into this category. When used properly, milk can add to the health of a child; when used properly, tobacco will destroy the health and possibly the life of a child.

We support SB 652 and the Attorney General's comments that if any other industry were discovered to have business practices as vile as the tobacco industry's, it, too, should be held accountable to the full measure of the Maryland law.

Sincerely,
Floyd W. Hartfield
President

To the Editor:

Quoting from The Republican editorial, "No Time For Panic," March 5, 1998, certainly this is not my desire or intent. It is just my concern for all the taxpayers of Garrett County during this year and next. I am not disputing the figures that appeared in the editorial, as I hope they are correct.

Now, let's reminisce a bit. I believe all this property at one time was acquired and developed by the Pennsylvania Electric Company some 75 plus years ago: Many of the better farms in Garrett County including other land and forests, bridges that were constructed and later removed, dam breast water, tunnels, power houses, and all the equipment, maintenance, power lines plus right of way. I would presume this all would be included in the sale of Deep Creek Lake property.

My concern is for the taxpayers of Garrett County. I have been a consistent taxpayer for 50 plus years, and I believe it would be extremely sensible for the Board of County Commissioners to be careful as to the extent the taxpayers of the entire county should be invoived. Consider any and all degree of involvement and possible responsibility that may occur.

This Deep Creek Lake plant was constructed primarily for the generating of power. I know of no other purpose for the construction. In regard to the homes and businesses located in the Deep Creek Lake area, development occurred the same as in other areas in Garrett County, this being the choice of the people. I do believe that all residents of Garrett County should be given equal consideration. May I again say to the commissioners to be very careful. This letter may be somewhat premature. However, this could be a complicated future sale.

Hubert A. Friend
Friendsville

To the Editor:

I am concerned! Concerning the position that women — females — seemingly are being ignored or their importance of being an active part of our decision-making in Garrett County government is not being properly considered.

A specific instance is the forming of the advisory group appointed to advise the county commissioners regarding the planned sale of Deep Creek Lake; 12 men — no women — puts women out in the cold in decision making or planning. The fact that two women's names were suggested to Mr. Pagenhardt, but they could not serve, is a poor excuse!

There are countless women all over Garrett County who are brilliant, well educated and they are informed. They could serve on any committee or group admirably!

Why are some men seemingly making so many of the decisions in Garrett County, or they seem to be? Where are the three men elected or appointed to be the active part of the thinking process of coming to decisions here?

Of the 20 people listed, who went to see Sen. Mikulski? All were men, business or governmental representatives! I don't know if any of those not listed were women, but there should have been and should always be.

What is the female population in Garrett County?

I know there are women who own Deep Creek Lake property. I know women whose salary money bought and/or helped to buy Deep Creek Lake property. I know women who have been concerned about the sale of Deep Creek Lake for years! This is not a new thing; it has been talked about for years; yet women are ignored when so-called important issues are being planned or decided.

Is our governing body sexist? Is our county sexist? Do we discriminate?

Our men here in power haven't done a tremendous, overall job; certainly not outstanding, overall!

Our national scene is a disgrace — the total Republican & Democratic & Presidential!

Maybe it's past time to face reality, at least to the extent that we recognize and include some of the many qualified women in Garrett County who called admirably fill any shoes I know in our county!! Give them a chance!

Do you or can you remember when in our old courthouse you could go talk to your commissioners during office hours "five" days a week? They were there in their chairs, just like our commissioners are now on Tuesday! They sat discussing and planning. The county business was not done by an administrative secretary! I remember!!

This is my opinion.

Thanking you,
Louise V. Harvey

To the Editor:

On April 3, the Garrett County Commission for Women (GCCW) and the Business and Professional Women of Garrett County (BPWGC) will join hundreds of women across the United States in a national day of action against unfair pay. The day marks the point — three and a half months into the new year — when women's earnings finally equal what man in comparable jobs made in the previous calendar year. Women have to work sixteen and a half months on average, to earn the same pay that men earn in one calendar year.

On a national level, women on average earn only 74 cents (65 cents for African-American women and 57 cents for Latin women) for each dollar a man earns. The pay gap for women in Maryland mirrors the national figures, with women's wages shortchanged by 26%.

The Wage Gap: It's not a penny-ante problem. Collectively, women lose hundreds of millions of dollars — and by some estimates, billions — each year. That hurts America's economy.

Unfair pay practices should not be viewed as a woman's issue. Women's paychecks are critical to the stability of families. When a woman does not get the paycheck she has rightfully earned the quality of life for herself and her family suffers. Families fare better with fair pay.

In Maryland the $9,000 annual wage gap would make a nice contribution to the family budget, pay for one year of college tuition in our university system, and could be reinvested in the local economy.

Over a 30-year career, women and their families lose over a quarter of a million dollars. The pensions of 46% of the workforce are literally slipping through the wage gap. It affects the lifestyle and comfort of families today, and the retirement security tomorrow.

THE EVE OF SPRING

Spring starts tomorrow at 2:55 p.m. I hope nobody thinks that means anything except that the day and night will be of equal length. To think, for example, that there might be warmer weather could be a grave error.

There are seeds in the hot bed. For the first time since I built the cold frame, I went through the extra ritual of digging out the soil and putting down a layer of manure, and then shoveling the soil back into place. I am glad I did.

There are also planted flats of tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, and parsley sitting on top of the refrigerator where they shall remain until they emerge above ground. No doubt by June or July it will be warm enough to transplant them.

My records tell me that last Thursday was the coldest day of the winter, save for New Year's Day when I computed one additional heating degree day.

A reader wrote to me several years ago and explained degree days. Add the high and low temperatures of the day, divide the sum by two, and subtract from 65. That gives heating degree days. If the quotient of the sum is greater than 65, then subtract 65 from it, and the result is cooling degree days.

No one should be surprised by the cold weather of this March after an incredibly mild winter. "One extreme follows another," a great gardener once told me. That goes a long way toward explaining why there are so many extremes in weather and perhaps in some other realms, too.

March is, above all other months, the 31 days of unpredictability. It is not just that we can have every possible kind of weather during March, but that we usually do have every possible kind of weather: the old "in like a lion, out like a lamb."

There are myriad literary testimonies to the variety of March weather. "A faire March is worth a king's ransom." "February makes a bridge and March breakes it." "March many weathers." "Clash ye bells, in the merry March air!" "All in the wild March-morning I heard the angels call." "March with grief doth howl and rave."

One old saying that I knew with respect to April and May I recently learned has a March component as well. "March winds and April showers bring forth May flowers."

Within a 40-mile radius of my home last week there were rain, snow, hail, thunder storms, lots of wind, 60 degrees variation in temperature, and even some sunshine. I am so grateful that flooding and mudslides were not part of our experience. I am also grateful that our fruit trees were not sufficiently advanced to have been frozen out, though that spectra still looms on the horizon.

March is named for the old Roman god Mars, whose principal interest was war. This year's weather has been sufficiently bellicose to justify the appellation.

My rhubarb is poking through the mulch of chicken manure which covers it. The sorrel is growing green and bright. I am still harvesting Brussels sprouts and leeks from last year (benefits of a mild winter). In the cellar there are potatoes enough and winter squash galore. A friend told me she full planted onion sets, which are doing extremely well just now, and inspired her family to a readiness which current temperatures have not ratified.

I still have plenty to do before the real spring gets here. The lawnmower blades have been rusting nicely for several months now. There are still odds and ends of garden clean-up, too. Yes, there is plenty to do if planting weather is delayed another week or two. But when the next break comes, besides onions and potatoes, there are peas and some other cool weather crops which I am ready to put into the ground.

The weather is erratic. Never mind; March does only have 31 days and will shortly make April fools of us all.

TOBACCO, TEENS, AND THE TRUTH

One of the greatest threats our children face is the addiction, disease, and death that tobacco brings. Clearly many lived would be saved if our children never become addicted to nicotine. That is why Maryland is aggressively pursuing teen smoking and the tobacco industry on several fronts.

Tobacco executives perpetuate the lie that cigarettes and other tobacco products are not addictive and do not cause cancer. They also claim they never targeted our children with cigarette advertising and that they never tried to spike nicotine to make it more addictive. We now know they lied. They lied to Congress and they lied to the American people.

We know that tobacco is addictive. We know that tobacco causes cancer. We now know that tobacco company executives, who were fully aware of the consequences, did target children and did make nicotine more addictive. The fact is, we simply cannot trust the tobacco industry, nor can we stand by and do nothing to counter their shameless, relentless efforts to target our children. They continue to present and promote smoking as an attractive, glamorous, and relaxing pastime, even though nearly every day brings forth new facts that paint a far more ugly and costly picture.

That is why Maryland is pursuing action against tobacco on three separate fronts: first, to strengthen the tobacco settlement legislation now before Congress; second, to increase substantially the state's tax on cigarettes to discourage young people from starting to smoke; and third, to remove barriers in state law that tobacco company lawyers will use to slow down or even stop the legal process in Maryland's lawsuit.

The settlement before Congress is inadequate because it would grant tobacco companies immunity from future lawsuits by individuals or the states. I spoke to President Clinton and the Maryland Congressional Delegation regarding this settlement, telling them that no justification exists to protect the cigarette industry from being held responsible for future damage to people's health that is a direct result of the industry's deadly product and its relentless promotion of it. I also recently spoke with my fellow governors at the National Governor's Association meeting and urged them to join me in demanding that the agreement with the tobacco industry be strengthened.

Our second initiative, which is before the Maryland General Assembly, will significantly increase the state's cigarette tax in order to discourage teen smoking. Of the 3,000 teenagers who start smoking today, 1,000 of them will die or suffer severe health effects from tobacco-related causes. By raising the tax on a pack of cigarettes by $1.50, we have a real chance of discouraging a significant number of these teens from ever starting to smoke.

Although it may be hard to justify a tax increase at a time when state revenues are high and everyone is talking tax cuts, this is an important exception. We need every weapon available in our arsenal in order to defeat the deadly consequences of smoking for our children. Together with members of the General Assembly who are opposed to smoking, and the Maryland Children's Initiative, in partnership with Smoke Free Maryland, I am committed to seeing this life-saving measure pass.

Our final strategy against big tobacco, which is being aggressively pursued by Attorney General J. Joseph Curran, involves a legal technicality that, if not changed, will severely limit our ability to pursue successfully Maryland's tobacco lawsuit. The change allows both sides in the lawsuit to use statistical data from the Centers for Disease Control instead of hundreds of thousands of individual Medicaid recipients with tobacco-related illnesses, to demonstrate the health effects of tobacco products. The fact is, Maryland spends close to $100 million in Medicaid costs for tobacco-related illnesses and the Attorney General's legislation will make it easier for the state to hold tobacco companies accountable for the devastating health costs that they cause.

This is what former U.S. Surgeon General Dr. C. Everett Koop, who is a Maryland resident, said recently about this legislation: "The only way to fight the industry is with the strongest case possible. This legislation goes a very long way toward doing just that by leveling the playing field and forcing the cigarette industry either to pay or to play, and do that without any more delay."

Smoking is our most preventable health problem, yet every year in Maryland there are 7,000 tobacco-related deaths. We must do everything we can to discourage our young people from smoking and thinking that smoking is attractive. After 40 years of lies, judgment day is near. We must have the courage to act—and act now, so our children will not face a future of addiction, disease, and death from smoking.

schools, saving the education system approximately $1,000 each month.

The library is currently searching for a new director for the system, in light of the exit of former director Emily Ferren last fall. Jane Fox of the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library told the commissioners that over $1,000 has already been spent in the search and there is no timeline for a new hire. She noted, too, that Ferren left for a similar position that paid about $15,000 more than what she earned per year in Garrett County.

"If we want to get a good person for this position, we need to be able to offer a competitive salary," Fox said.

Health Department

Garrett County Health Officer Rex Archer presented the budget for the Garrett County Health Department. He presented a review of services, resident health status, the current budget status, and future issues and projections. Archer said the budget was designed to provide for continued improvements in the health of Garrett County residents during an era of declining revenues.

The health department has asked for a 10% increase in county funding from last year, moving from a 5% local input to 15%. The total proposed budget is nearly $5.8 million, and the local request is $889,093. Last year's allotment from the county was $310,000.

Archer said state and federal grant funds (37% of budget) and state targeted funds (7%) will remain essentially constant from this fiscal year. He said that some key grants are being reduced or eliminated, but that his staff has been aggressive at securing additional grants.

Collections, however, which make up 51% of the current budget, are projected to decline to about 41% next fiscal year, a drop of about $700,000, Archer reported. Most of this drop is a reduction of revenue from the Home Health Program, which has been modified by new federal laws. These changes have adversely affected rural areas by making venipuncture (the drawing of blood) no longer available as a home health procedure, among other alterations.

Archer discussed changes in Medicare reimbursement for Home Health services, which he characterized as a "large and popularly supported need" within the community. He said projections for fiscal year 1999 were based on a "close analysis of trends" for the past two years and expected repercussions of federal changes.

Acknowledging that the funds from the commissioners will be about $579,000 more than currently is provided, Archer supported the increase by demonstrating that the total health department budget will be about $300,000 less next year, and about $1.1 million less than in 1995. Declining home health revenue last year resulted in a $156,000 deficit to the department, he said. A fiscal recovery plan was prepared and the health department was given, by the state, up to three years to repay this deficit. Archer projected that last year's deficit will be repaid entirely this year and that other changes within the department have resulted in continued improvements in administrative capacity, including fiscal monitoring and projections.

Based on the past 20 years' experience, Archer said he believes that any decline in home health programs will be temporary.

"The Home Health Program had steadily risen from 1989 to 1996. While home health revenue has dropped from 1996, it still is the largest program within the health department," the health officer said. "While the Garrett County budget has increased 124% during this 10-year period of time, no increase in the contribution to the health department was needed because of revenue from home health. The Home Health Program has saved the Garrett County taxpayers more than $1.5 million in the past 10 years by reducing the need for increases from the commissioners."

He proposed using county funds to support an adult home health program for next year that will provide for "gap-filling" services. Norma Bolding, personal health director, and Linda Moe, home health director, discussed the need for this program, which would provide for education and blood pressure monitoring at senior meals and low-income housing sites, county-wide flu immunizations, education and outreach services, and "Senior Aide" services for individuals who do not qualify under existing funding sources.

Archer said it is difficult to project rural service levels in a "highly volatile" Medicare environment.

"If the service levels are higher than projections, we will not need the additional money from the commissioners, and it will be returned," he said.

This budget request did not include funds for the building program for the health department, a project approved by the commissioners at a December meeting. It will be separately funded. The budget does include county support for environmental health, communicable disease, substance abuse, mental health, and administration.

School Board

The Garrett County Board of Education has submitted its request for $1.9 million in local money. This is a 4% overall increase from last year's allotment, and is only a part of the system's entire budget of $33 million. The local allotment will fund a 2% pay raise for all personnel, which will be in compliance with the current three-year negotiated agreement.

The educators also wish to continue the implementation of the technology plan, with emphasis on the administrative system, school wiring projects, and system networking. They would also like to continue renovation work at the high schools, which includes auxiliary gym and stage upgrades at Northern High, and work on the gymnasium, foyer, library, and stage at Southern.

Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent, said the current level of staffing is adequate — no hires are needed at this time. However, he and other representatives (including Al Coviello, assistant superintendent; Irene Sigel, Garrett County Teachers Association; and board members Charlotte Sebold and Patrick Riley) noted that Garrett County teachers are the lowest paid in the state in almost every category. Coviello said Garrett loses four to five teachers each year to Allegany County, where salaries are more competitive, especially for those employees with more seniority.

Coviello and Riley made note of the fact that while the budget is tight in the county school system, local students fare very well on state and national tests, regularly ranking high, if not the highest, with their scores.

"We have a quality system here," Coviello said. "We're proud that our teacher/student ratio is one of the state's lowest."

Fair pay takes real change, and we should help to make that change. Legislators should be part of that change by passing a bill in congress to strengthen the Equal Pay Act. Businesses should be part of that by examining their pay practices. And women should be part of that change by knowing their rights, speaking out, and holding legislators and businesses accountable.

GCCW and BPWGC are sponsoring local events to bring to light the disparity in wages. A local essay contest for high school students is underway. In addition to media alerts and contacts with national/state legislators, women are being encouraged to take a 10-minute break on April 3 at 2:55 p.m., the 74% mark to protest the wage disparity.

To the Editor:

The front-page article (March 12) about bear hunting really gets my hackles up. I can't understand how the citizens of this state can't pay for crop damage to feed a few bears. After all we are uninvited guests in their home.

If you have problem bears that harm people or become too destructive, then eliminate them or ship them off somewhere. The blood lust of Hafer and Edwards when they threaten to introduce a bear season bill if the DNR is too lenient on these magnificent animals is quite disturbing.

I'm not anti-hunting. In fact, I respect and think hunting has its place, provided it is done in a thankful and efficient manner. Hunters that kill for the sport of it, instead of the meat of it, have a painful karmic debt to make up somewhere along the line.

I assume that the hunting style that Maryland lawmakers will adopt is the West Virginia style, where they hunt bears with trucks, radios, and dogs. Not very sporting, if you ask me. I guess they chase the terrified and stressed bear so much and so far that eventually he just gives up and says "shoot me." I guess it would be responsible for our elected officials to consider ensuring an honorable hunt by requiring the bears be individually hunted, or maybe even with bow and arrow. Now that would take a real man deserving of respect.

It's probably just too comfortable and disturbingly fun to highball around on dirt roads in big trucks in a swat-team kind of chase. I guess that way you can roll up the windows if the bear is a little upset at being harassed by bear hunting enthusiasts.

Bears are mostly herbivores. Surprising a mother bear and cubs or semi-taming a bear may cause outbursts, especially if you try to coax them inside for that family photo. In 99.99% of cases, bears want no part of you, and they high-tail away long before you get near, or they simply ignore you (what a blow to our egos). Native Americans feel bears are especially sacred.

If we need to have bear-proof dumps, or bear-proof garbage cans, than so be it, it's not a big deal to change a few habits to become bear savvy. Many humans co-exist with bears without having to blow them away every time they get in the garbage or eat a few bushels of corn. Dogs, by far, kill more sheep and small livestock than bears ever do. Perhaps farmers can consider enlisting tough, well-trained dogs to keep the bears away? A nice bull mastiff or elk hound might be just the trick.

A little extra expense and trouble is not too much to ask to keep these creatures of God safe in a place where they rightfully belong. At least we can give them a sporting chance by adopting moral, reasonable, and honorable methods of hunting them. We'll see what the bear-thirsty Hafer and Edwards propose to propose.

I, for one, want to be at that May DNR briefing and hear from that citizens' forum. I am glad the DNR can live up to its name. Department of Natural Resources has a nice ring to it.

Sincerely,
Crede Calhoun
Friendsville

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Ferne Beachy visited Mrs. Carl Miller at Town Village in Accident last Monday.

JoEllen Graham and daughter Cheri, St. Albans, W.Va., spent the weekend with Beulah Moon. Sunday dinner guests of Beulah Moon were Jay Moon and family, Larry and Ellen Moon, and Brad Moon. They celebrated the birthday of Jay Moon.

Sheila Southerly was recently a guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Resh, Grantsville.

A Friday evening overnight guest of Tyler Southerly was Scott Bass.

About 45 youth group members and family from Emmanuel traveled to Oakland to attend the final performance of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." A good time was had by all.

Lottie Brenneman recently visited her brother in Rockville, and her friend Lucy McDowell in Gaithersburg.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Brenneman were Mr. and Mrs Richard Brenneman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Art Maust and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bender and family, Mr. and Mrs Doug Bender and family, Mr. and Mrs. David Burow and son, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Maust and family, Barney and Joy Billmeyer and daughter, and Mrs. Viola Maust and Darlene. They celebrated the birthday of Regina Brenneman.

Mary Stephens, Bel Air, visited her sister, Kathryn Bowser, over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stephens and daughter, Churchville, were weekend visitors in the area.

Sally Poholsky visited Eugene and Barb Harman in Oakland recently.

Susan and Julie Schreffras and Alex Bolton, Rockville, were Saturday overnight guests of Sally Poholsky and Torrey. They were all Sunday dinner guests of Sam and Cindy Stanton. Lea Stanton, Allison Searles and Ferne Beachy were also guests. They also celebrated the birthday of Sally Poholsky. How many is it, Sally?

Andy Yoder was a Sunday guest of Matthew Bass.

Grantsville BPW met Monday evening at Grantsville Holiday Inn. Guest speaker was Tom Rosser from Garrett County Dept. of Social Services.

Mary Brenneman Frye was in a car accident on Friday. Although her car flipped over onto a snow bank, she escaped with only a broken finger.

Alvin Frye is hospitalized in Cumberland.

Michelle Geis, Va. Tech student, spent spring break with family and friends in Garrett County.

Michelle Geis and Ellen Housley spent Friday in Frederick with Ann McLister.

Robbie Glotfelty won first prize in the Junior Division at the county 4-H Public Speaking Contest on Saturday. Robbie will go on the road to the regional competition in Hagerstown. Rob's sister Blakely won a blue ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Blue Deitrick and children of Eighty Four, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Bill Kerns, Rockville, and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Vaughn of Detour were weekend visitors or Mrs. Alvin Frye.

March Madness has hit Bittinger like a lion. During the long winter months it's good to have the college basketball tournament to look forward to. The Bittinger area has many resident basketball fans, especially on Rock Lodge Road (to some known as Terrapin Country). Since many, including Ellen and Sam Housley, Rodney Glotfelty, Joan and Lloyd Sussman, and Carol Bass were students at College Park during the Terps' glory days, they are eager to root these new Terps on. Recent games have been exciting, so exciting in fact as to add a few more gray hairs in their 40-plus heads. Saturday's game introduced a new Terp fan to the crowd. Five-month-old Ian Dorsey and his parents, Dave and Lisa, Cumberland, enjoyed the game with Rodney Glotfelty's family. However, we weren't sure if the Terps or young Ian was the star attraction to the gathered cousins. One thing I know is that he went home tired from all the attention. After witnessing the Terps pull out another win, a group traveled to McHenry to the Kyle and Valerie Morrison home to view the torchlight parade and fireworks at Winterfest. Never a dull moment in Bittinger.

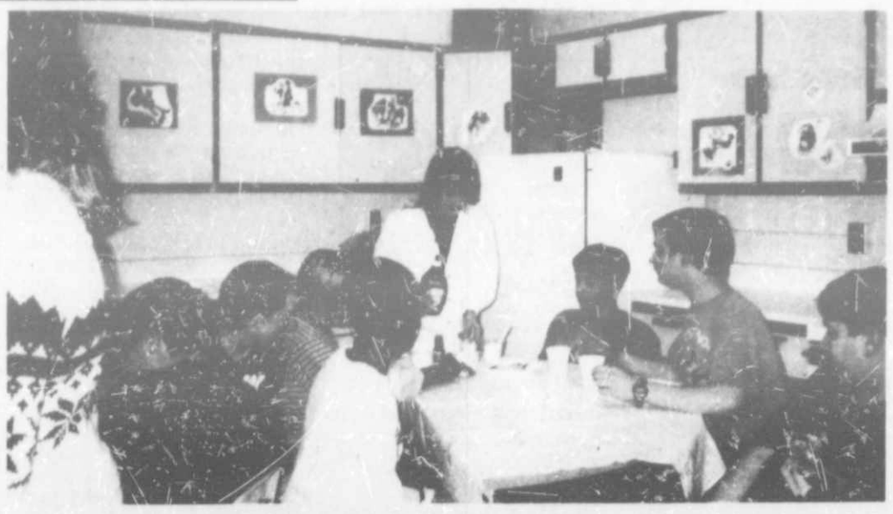
Also showing a strong effort and finish was the other team with lots of backing in Bittinger. Who else but West Virginia's Mountaineers. The cheering squad is led by Bill Southerly, or so the rumor goes. We wonder what might result if Maryland ends up playing West Virginia in the elite eight? Will it come to fist fighting? A rumble on Rock Lodge Road? I don't think so! We are lovers, not fighters, here in Bittinger.

One other aspect of this March Madness is the pool to predict winners in the NCAA to benefit GCC basketball. Many Bittinger residents take their best shot in predicting winners to support our college team. The ultimate humiliation is to end up on the back page in the standings. Dale Glotfelty fears that that's where he'll end up this year. I think I'll be all right. I've selected heavily for ACC teams to do well. Lesa Whittemore's sheet is finished though, since she picked Princeton to go all the way, and they lost their first-round game. To the back page for you, Lesa. I thought of filling out a sheet picked by our dogs Boo and Emily. They would probably do as well as Lloyd and I. Lloyd seems to be doing OK though, as he has not yet ripped his sheet into little pieces and thrown them away with much drama and emotion. Two more weekends to go, then watch out as baseball begins.

Meredith will practice her act this afternoon for the Accident Elementary Talent Show on Tuesday. Her partner in showbiz is Jessie Biser, daughter of Mike and Peggy Biser. I must admit that I've heard some good things too about Ben Morrison's comedy act. I can't wait to see the show.

Olive Bender is recovering from a case of poison oak, which she apparently contracted while handling firewood.

Sunday dinner guests of the James Glotfelty home were Tom, Cheryl, Taylor, and Tim Glotfelty, and Ida Reckner. Lillian Reckner is recuperating from shoulder surgery performed last week to repair a torn rotator cuff.



LET'S PARTY - The Northern High School Student Service Alliance class hosted an end-of-winter party at Northern Middle School for Lisa Carr's level four special education class. The SSA students had planned a variety of activities for the recent party, which included games of charades, Win, Lose or Draw, and Twister as well as face painting, clown skits, piñata breaking, and making ice cream sundaes. Before the party ended the NMS students received grab bags filled with treats. The SSA class sponsors this activity as one of their many community projects. Barbara Law is the instructor. In the photo above SSA student Priscilla Beachy helps to create scrumptious sundaes for the party-goers. In the picture below, SSA student Michele Miller guides Ricky Fike toward the piñata filled with goodies.

of this year, and that transactions in the amount of $9,947 had been carried out without his knowledge or approval. He also told detectives that a $32,000 loan had been taken out of one local bank on a Snowy Creek application, and that a $32,000 truck loan had been taken out of a second local bank on a Snowy Creek application. The alleged victim reported that both transactions had been carried out in his name without his knowledge, and that he had not authorized his signature on any Snowy Creek account.

Another alleged victim, identified as a family friend of Blakeney's who resides in Blackstone, Mass., was also reportedly asked to back Snowy Creek in June of 1996, with the promise of 10% of the business earnings as a carrot. Last month she learned that she had been named secretary/treasurer of the Snowy Creek corporation and that a $25,000 business loan application and a $14,267 credit application had been approved by two Garrett County banks in her name on behalf of the "Snowy Creek Buyers Club." She told detectives that these loans had been transacted without her knowledge or approval.

A third associate of Blakeney, a Mtn. Lake Park resident, told detectives that he was a stockholder in Snowy Creek. He reportedly learned last month that two separate credit applications had been filed in his name in August of 1997, and that they were currently delinquent by the amounts of $15,000 and $14,200, respectively.

Another alleged victim, a resident of Oakland who had been a Snowy Creek customer, told detectives that he had purchased $3,500 worth of equipment in early 1997. He recently learned that his name and social security number had since been used to reportedly file a credit application to purchase $17,500 in equipment from Snowy Creek without his knowledge.

Another former customer, also a Mtn. Lake Park resident, reported that when he had purchased a four-wheeler from Snowy Creek last October for $4,078, Blakeney requested that he fill out two separate loan applications for two different financial institutions. The alleged victim told detectives that Blakeney had explained this request by telling him that it was "in case the first application didn't go through." The customer did as requested, and when the first application went through he presented Blakeney with a check for the full amount of the purchase. Last month he received notification from the second institution that he was behind in his monthly payments for a loan approved for the purchase of his four-wheeler from Snowy Creek. Detectives suspect that Blakeney received a double payment for the one four-wheeler.

The Snowy Creek fraud investigation continues, and the sheriff's office has released a request for possible victims to contact the sheriff's office at 301-334-1911.

part will come from a decision that 4.3 cents of the federal gas tax that had previously been reserved for reducing the federal budget deficit would go exclusively to transportation needs."

Maryland's share of federal highway funding will grow from almost $310 million a year under the previous ISTEA package to approximately $415 million a year for the next six years — a one-third increase in federal highway dollars for Maryland.

At this time no federal monies have been specifically allocated for interstate highway construction, or upgrades to interstate status of any existing roads in Garrett County, south of I-68. Local proponents of such a project, led by the efforts of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, will have to compete for funds with other federal highway projects in the state. These include improvements to I-70/I-270 in Frederick County, and renovations to the Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

safety, a billboard project displaying the artwork of local youth, a Treasure Your Child contest, and a family violence prevention website.

Although considerable preparation has occurred to date, the initiative will officially commence with the Family Violence Planning Forum scheduled for April 16 from noon to 4 p.m. at the Will O' the Wisp. The keynote speaker for the event is Gloria Goldfaden, executive director, People Against Child Abuse. Ms. Goldfaden will present information pertaining to issues related to child abuse research and "best practice" interventions. Invitations will be sent to a cross-section of community service providers, community leaders, and parents.

The primary purpose of the forum is to review and select curricula for the Safety Safaris that will be implemented in the community, the spokesman said.

The Safety Safaris will be presented to children and parents together as a primary prevention activity. Curricula in three distinct developmental age groups (grades 4-6, 7-9, and 10-12) will be introduced. Topics will be relevant, age appropriate, and address issues ranging from "good touch/bad touch" in the 4th-6th grade group to date rape in the 10th-12th grade group.

Anyone interested in more information about the Safety Safaris may contact Liz Biser, family health educator, at 301-334-7236. Information related to the overall initiative can be provided by contacting Susan Athey-Oxford, project coordinator, at 301-334-1189.

Food For Thought

Party pointer: smart hostesses never serve a dish before trying the recipe out first. And there's always a backup on hand in case of disaster: ice cream or sorbet in case the souffle falls, or cheese and crackers to replace a burned hors d'oeuvre.

Marinate pork chops about 20 minutes at room temperature in ½ cup of orange juice zipped up with 1 tsp. black pepper, ¼ tsp. each chili powder and paprika, and a pinch of cayenne. Cook in the marinade in a nonstick skillet, covered, about 6 minutes per side.

Lasagna is a great do-ahead meal, and even prettier if each noodle is rolled up, jelly-roll fashion, around a filling of cheese and diced vegetables. Cut each "package" in half and place in sauce in a baking dish cut side down. Cover loosely with foil and bake.

Who says it isn't summer? Frozen or canned corn kernels can bring the sunshine back. Saute chopped red bell pepper in butter, add corn, a little thyme, and some chopped green onions.

Who says the food's good at McClives? Just about everyone who's eaten here.

Sheriff Sanders discussed plans for a combined criminal investigative unit, to be comprised of members of the sheriff's office, Maryland State Police, and the state's attorney's office. The Grand Jury endorsed this concept as a benefit to the community.

Board of Education

The main office of the Garrett County Board of Education is in need of renovation/replacement, in the opinion of the grand jury, which reported that offices are congested and the telephone lines need to be upgraded. The fire marshal's office continues to inspect the building, and all codes are being met, according to the report. The jurors said they feel it is insufficient to upgrade the education board building if in four to five years the offices are going to be moved to a new location. The jury asserted that the office "needs to be moved immediately."

A review of last fall's air quality incident at Southern High School shows the need for more emergency preparedness at all schools, the report states.

Superintendent Teets and Mike Sines, supervisor of maintenance and operations, met with the entire jury. Teets explained the priorities of the board in funding school operations, construction, and maintenance. He mentioned the continued need for renovation of Southern and Northern high school gyms. The Southern Garrett Industrial Park may be an option for relocation of the board office, transportation department, and food service. Teets said he feels the current number of personnel is sufficient and noted that Garrett County teachers are the lowest paid in the state. According to the report, local teachers' salaries are lower than those in West Virginia and some other rural areas.

Teets explained a new plan to better inform Garrett County students who are currently attending school in Allegheny County of the opportunities in Garrett County.

Yough Glades Elementary School was toured by the jurors, who thought the gym was "a little small," with the cafeteria adjacent to the gym, but found the rest of the school to be satisfactory.

Landfill

Jurors toured the Garrett County Landfill and reported that no changes need to be made in the operation. The director, Rodney Glotfelty, continues to look for new ways to increase recycling and operate more efficiently. The life of the existing cell at the landfill is expected to last into the year 2027. The one need at the landfill is a new off-road truck. This would replace the over-used vehicles inherited from the county roads department that are no longer sufficient.

Glotfelty told the jury that the Garrett County Office of Solid Waste and Recycling is sponsoring Tire Amnesty Day on April 25. Each household may bring up to 10 tires to the landfill, free of charge. The $1 Maryland tire tax on each new tire sold in the state will help fund the one-day program.

Health Department

The grand jury toured the health department facilities at the Buchmann Optical and the GW Plaza buildings. There was discussion of building new offices verses renovating the GW Plaza property. The jury recommended that the General Services Administration review the overall plans for housing the various branches of the health department.

The jurors said they feel the public should be made more aware of the services offered by the health department. Dr. Archer gave a presentation on the mission and responsibilities of the health department, including facts and figures on county health and available programs.

Archer also explained the issues relative to the complex funding situation at the health department. The major point was that the contribution from the commissioners is expected to increase from 5% to 15% (1998 to 1999). Steve Sherrard of environmental health presented the facilities consolidation plan. At present, health department offices are scattered "all over the county," the grand jury report states, and the staff has prepared a map showing all locations. A site has been purchased where, through renovation and new construction, the staff plans to consolidate, hopefully beginning in 1999. The start date for this project has been delayed because of budgetary funding problems, according to the report. Funding for the project is again complex, with dollars coming from multiple programs, federal coffers, and state and county funds.

The jury commended Archer's goal to maximize external (federal and state) funding and minimize the county's share.

The grand jury also noted that it recognizes the value of the many services provided by the health department and requests county officials to take the steps necessary to ensure that the services offered by the mental health and home health providers continue.

Treasurer's Office

Patty Glover, county treasurer, met with the jury. She reviewed her responsibilities in maintaining accounts, collecting taxes, disbursing funds, and reporting to the commissioners.

The jury report indicates that all operations are running smoothly. There is a need for more space for the office personnel, according to the report, especially during the summer months when two part-time clerks are hired to assist with the heavy influx of mail.

County Commissioners

The jury met with Garrett County Commissioners Gary Fratz, Wayne Johnson, and Wayne Wilt. They discussed the sale of Deep Creek Lake and the ramifications of this event. Other items discussed included the health department building planned at the GW Plaza, a new sign to be put in Grantsville for the Northern Garrett Industrial Park for traffic coming off Interstate 68, and the problem of dead animal carcasses on the roads. The commissioners advised the jury that a policy to address this problem is being developed with the roads department.

The commissioners told the jury that they foresee expansion at the Northern Industrial Park in the near future. A number of businesses are in discussion with the county about locating there, according to the report.

Projections by new employer Simon Pearce include the hiring of 150 people by the summer of 1999.

The commissioners reported that they are working on expansion of the airport and are gathering statistics needed to request federal funds. This is being done to enhance the access of corporations, the report states.

On behalf of all of the citizens of Garrett County, the grand jury members said they wished to emphasize the deep concern of the county relative to the sale of Deep Creek Lake. The commissioners have appointed an advisory board chaired by Judge Fred Thayer and consisting of business and private representatives. Meetings of the board are open to the public. The next meeting is scheduled for April 2. The jurors said they encourage all interested parties to actively participate in the process. To this end, the jury has recommended that county government exercise all means at its disposal for the publication and dissemination of timely and factual information regarding the sale and of public meetings pertaining to the sale.

Garrett County Roads Department

A group of jurors toured the Oakland office of the county roads department. Tar and chipped surfaces were discussed, as well as the need to replace certain roads. Lee Thorne, administrator, discussed plans to use satellite storage sites for abrasives for snowplow convenience, which the jurors felt would be cost effective.

Thorne reviewed his plan to replace older equipment and vehicles and to establish a regular rotation of replacement. With the recent hiring of 14 employees, the roads department has been brought to full strength, according to the jury report. The applications for those not hired will remain on file to assist in hiring additional personnel as current employees retire or leave. This will be done instead of waiting for a severe manpower shortage.

The administrator also discussed a computerized mapping of all county roads. Various facts will be taken into account by a computer program that will than inform Thorne of the priorities for repair and replacement of roadways. The jury felt this will be an asset to the county and the department as more objective decisions can than be made. Thorne will be instituting a similar procedure for the maintenance of bridges in the county, the report stated.

The jurors expressed the opinion that while road crews are on the job, they should be required to remove trash or anything else that could be a road hazard.

Recommendations

The March Term Grand Jury has recommended that grand jury members be sent copies of the previous two grand jury reports at the time they are notified of their selection. This would permit follow-up and would help develop questions. This was also recommended by the previous grand jury.

All county departments are required to have a five-year plan. However, the jury felt that most departments have "a very short planning and operations horizon."

"We recommend a focus on long-term goals and planning, as well as improved communication and information sharing among departments," the report states. "We believe that this would allow for better decision making and better utilization of scarce resources."

The jury also recommended that the session agenda for future grand juries be restructured so that the entire grand jury can visit all the facilities instead of visiting in small groups. This could be done either by lengthening the session or by scaling down the focus so that the March Jury would do half the departments and the September Jury would do the other half, the report states.

The grand jury members expressed gratitude to Judge James L. Sherbin; Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney; Stephen Russell, court bailiff; David Martin, circuit court clerk; Brian Schlossnagle, deputy clerk; Ruth Warnick, court stenographer; Kim Becker, secretary to Mrs. Welch; Wayne A. Anderson, foreman; Charles G. Fink, clerk; James D. Reigrut, clerk; Steven S. Glotfelty, doorman; and all other officials for their cooperation.

Boaters Reminded Of The Dangers Of Hypothermia

Following three boating accidents last weekend, Maryland Natural Resources Police (NRP) Col. John W. Rhoads reminded boaters this week about the importance of taking extra precautions when boating at this time of year.

"Each year, the warming days of spring draw boaters back to the water," Col. Rhoads said. "But while the air temperature is warming, the water temperature is still cold, and if boaters fall overboard or capsize, there is a significant risk of hypothermia."

A boating accident last Friday left two men dead as a result of hypothermia. In Western Maryland on Saturday, three people were treated for hypothermia after their canoe capsized. Fortunately for them they were all wearing life jackets, and while one was able to swim to shore, it took between 10 and 15 minutes to rescue the others. "Without life jackets, the situation could have been much worse," Rhoads said.

"When you are out on a boat, wear your life jacket," Col. Rhoads said. "And at this time of year, boaters on open water like the Chesapeake Bay should consider wearing clothing specifically designed to prevent or reduce the risk of hypothermia."

Nationally, U.S. Coast Guard statistics indicate that hypothermia contributes to as many as half of all water fatalities, usually killing victims by inhibiting their ability to swim or stay afloat.

RAMS READY TO RUMBLE - The Southern High School varsity baseball team, which is the defending area champion and defending Western Maryland Interscholastic League champion, will open its 1998 campaign this Saturday in Cumberland against Fort Hill. The Rams and their fans are anticipating another winning season, as six of nine starters from last year's 12-5 team will be back in the line-up this season. Returning for his 19th year as head coach is Jim Bosley. Pictured in the front row above, from left, are: Scott Beitzel, Jordan Uphold, Josh Bosley, Jason Weaver, Keith Parks, Derek Everd, and Nathan DiSimone. In the back row, same order, are: John Andrews, Jason Bernard, Mike Bittinger, Chad Warnick, Billy Stoner, Chris Bittinger, and Chris Ewing. See story and schedule.

HUSKIES SENIOR-DOMINATED - A good season for the Northern High School varsity baseball season is expected this year, as the Husky roster includes 10 seniors among its returning 12 players from last year. The Huskies, coached by Phil Carr, finished strong in 1997, just missing getting into the West Region 1A championship game with an extra-innings loss to Clear Spring. Northern will open its 1998 campaign Friday against a strong Fort Hill team in Cumberland. Players pictured above, left to right, kneeling, are: Jeremy Hoover, Tim Umbel, Ryan Butler, Adam Brenneman, Joey Wilhelm, Matt Houser, Matt Settle, and P.J. Workman. Standing, same order, are: Adam Bach, Matt Fritz, Zach Rawe, Corey Sisler, Jeff Carr, Chris Herman, Scott Sisler, Jeremy Reed, Josh Henderson, and Levi Schmuck. Not present for the photo was Denis Martinez. See story for team details and schedule.

Six Starting Rams Back From WMIL, Area Championship Team

The winning tradition in baseball at Southern High School will most likely continue this season, as Coach Jim Bosley, the area's most successful high school baseball mentor, will have six of nine starters back from last season's 12-5 team, a team that won both the Western Maryland Interscholastic League title and the Area Championship.

In fact, the Rams have been in the WMIL only two seasons and have won two league titles, plus six of the 11 area championships that have ever been awarded. Bosley has a lifetime record of 245-89, or just over 73% winning efficiency.

The Rams will open their season this Saturday in Cumberland against Fort Hill, a team that Bosley believes will be tagged as the favorite to win the area title this year.

The two top players lost to graduation from last season's team are Joel Uphold, one of the best pitchers in Ram history, and Seth Tressler, also a good pitcher, but possibly the most powerful hitter to ever wear a Southern uniform.

However, the six returning starters include: senior pitcher Chad Warnick, who recorded a 5-1 mark on the mound last year; senior Derek Everd, who led the team in hitting with an outstanding .482 average and who will be the number two pitcher this season; junior Jason Weaver and senior Jordan Uphold, who are both .300 hitters; and senior twins Mike and Chris Bittinger, with Mike at first base and as a pitcher, and Chris behind the plate.

Bosley said that all six returners benefitted greatly by playing 30 games last summer in the American Legion baseball program.

The pitching staff will also include sophomores Uphold and Josh Bosley.

Mike Bittinger and Chad Warnick will see most of the playing time at first base, while senior Scott Beitzel, junior John Andrews, and sophomore Josh Bosley could all spend time at second base. Everd is the returning starter at shortstop, with Weaver as a back-up. Competing for the third-base spot are junior Keith Parks, senior Jason Bernard, and Bosley.

Chris Bittinger is the only player at the catcher position right now. "Chris is an excellent defender with a strong, accurate arm," Bosley said. "His hitting has also improved, so we look for big things from him this year."

The Ram outfield will be led by returning starters Weaver and Uphold, along with juniors Chris Ewing, Andrews, and Nathan DiSimone all competing for the third spot.

Also adding hitting depth this year is junior Billy Stoner, who had to mass all of last season because of injury.

"Our strengths this year should be our pitching staff and defense, plus overall good team speed," Bosley said.

"But this year has been no different than most others, with the weather being such a major factor in our first few weeks of practice," he said. "We open Saturday against an outstanding Fort Hill team without a single day of practice outside. Our all-day scrimmage that we had scheduled for last Saturday was rained out."

But, the 19-year-veteran coach said he and his players are anxious to get started. "Anytime you are 'locked up' inside for three weeks in practice, you are really anxious to get into your first game," he said. "But without having any practices outdoors, it takes four or five games just to figure out our best line-up. After that things usually fall into place."

The Rams will play their first four games on the road and will open their home schedule on April 7 against Beall. A new addition to their slate this year is their own Easter tournament, set for April 11, which will include Meyersdale and Petersburg.

"High school baseball in the area will be very strong this year," Bosley said. "Fort Hill and Keyser look to be two of the strongest teams, with Allegany, Westmar, Preston, and Northern being very competitive as well."

Assisting Bosley with coaching this season are Dan Holler, Steve Weaver, and Keith Cain.

Senior-Dominated Husky Team Anticipating Successful Season

With 12 players back from last year's successful team, and 10 of those 12 being seniors, Northern High School Coach Phil Carr is anxiously awaiting the Huskies' 1998 season opener, slated for this Friday in Cumberland against a strong Fort Hill team.

Carr hopes his squad will pick up where it left off last year, which was one out away from reaching the West Region 1A finals. The Huskies upset top-seeded and arch rival Southern in the opening round of the playoffs last year, then pounded Oldtown before losing a heartbreaker in extra innings to Clear Spring in the regional semi-finals.

Two key players were lost to graduation, however: first-team All-Area player Herman Arndt and second-team All-Area selection Zach Leverenz, who were both power hitters for the Huskies with averages of over .400.

Returning to first base will be senior Zach Rawe, who hit .389 last season, while others battling for infield positions include seniors Adam Bach and Jeremy Hoover, along with juniors Jeff Carr and Matt Settle, and sophomores Tim Umbel and Levi Schmuck.

Outfielders back this year are seniors Matt Fritz, Scott Sisler, who finished with a .300 batting average, and Matt Houser. Others challenging them for their positions are seniors Jeremy Reed, Joey Wilhelm, Denis Martinez, juniors Ryan Butler and Josh Henderson, and sophomore Adam Brenneman.

Returning to his spot behind the plate will be senior catcher Chris Herman, with junior Corey Sisler and sophomore P.J. Workman seeing some action there as well.

"Having this many returning players makes it nice at practice," Carr said. "They know the drills and a lot of things are review. We've been working hard and there is a tremendous amount of competition at each position."

The Husky pitching staff should also be solid, with the return of three seniors to the mound who accounted for all 10 of the Huskies' victories last year. They are Matt Fritz, who finished with a 5-4 mark, Jeremy Reed, with a 3-2 personal record, and Scott Sisler, who led the team in strikeouts with 52.

Others expected to see time on the mound will be senior lefty Joey Wilhelm and juniors Jeff Carr and Matt Settle.

"This is probably the deepest pitching staff I have had in my eight years as head coach," Carr said. "I feel all of these guys have the potential to keep us in ball games."

Carr said he believes his team strengths will be defense and senior leadership. "We've been working hard on fundamentals to try to improve our defense," he said.

Among the negatives has been the usual problem this time of year in Garrett County: being able to practice outside. "Like every year, we've really been limited in getting outside," he said, "which could cause problems for us early on."

Because of weather conditions, Carr has scheduled the Huskies' first seven games away in their 18-game slate (plus an Easter tournament). The home opener will not be played until April 6 against Allegany.

Preston earned three first place awards for her performances on the balance beam, vault, and floor exercise. She placed sixth on the uneven bars. In the all-around competition, Preston collected third place honors, with a total score of 34.00

Oakland Team Captures Title In Tournament

The Senior Division All-Stars (8th grade boys) of the Southern Garrett County-based Service Club Basketball League used balanced scoring and stifling man-to-man defense to win three games by comfortable margins and take the championship of the 4th Annual Service Club Basketball League Senior Division Invitational Tournament, held in Oakland March 7-8.

The first game of the tournament turned out to be the most challenging for the Oakland squad, as Keyser jumped out to a four-point lead (15-11) at the end of the first quarter. Keyser's Brad Yutsy nailed two three-point goals in the quarter.

Oakland closed the gap on defense by holding the Keyser squad to 7 points in the second quarter while pouring in 15 points of their own to take a slim 26-22 halftime lead. The SCBL All-Stars were led in the first half offensively by Chad Panther, who scored 8 of his game-high 14 points in the first quarter, and Joel Helbig, who scored all 7 of his points in the second quarter.

SCBL TOURNEY CHAMPS - Pictured are the members of the Senior Division Service Club Basketball League all-star team, which won the SCBL Invitational Tournament. In the front row, from left, are: Chad Panther, Danny O'Brien, and J.B. Murphy; and standing, same order, are: Joel Helbig, Bryson Meyers, Mike DeWitt, D.R. Parsons, and Ricky Reams. See story for tourney details.

The Oakland squad extended the lead to 11 at the end of three quarters (42-31) behind excellent defense on the perimeter by Ricky Reams and dominating defense and rebounding by Bryson Meyers.

In the semi-final game for the local all-stars, Mike DeWitt exploded for 21 points while Ricky Reams' and Chad Panther's defensive pressure led to easy points for all the Oakland players in a 78-54 defeat of Braddock Middle School, Cumberland. Oakland jumped on the Cumberland squad early and had a commanding 44-19 halftime lead.

Four players besides DeWitt scored in double figures, with Reams totaling 16 points, Meyers, 11, and Helbig and Parsons adding 10 points each. D.R. Parsons played outstanding defense. J.B. Murphy, along with Panther and Reams, provided excellent ballhandling. Braddock was led by Ryan Strother with 23 points.

In the championship game the Oakland eighth graders doubled Petersburg's halftime score (30-15) behind balanced scoring and strong team defense. DeWitt led Oakland in scoring with 12 points, Meyers scored 10, and Parsons scored 9. Helbig, Reams, and Panther shared 24 points, J.B. Murphy chipped in with 7, and Danny O'Brien added a bucket. The final score was 64-31.

The SCBL is sponsoring the 8th grade boys' team, as well as a 7th grade boys' team, 8th grade girls' team, and 7th grade girls' team in the Gene Scaletta Memorial Basketball Tournament at Westmar High School in Lonaconing over the next few weeks.

Lakers Hit Stride On The Road, Take Five Straight

After splitting an opening-day doubleheader two weeks ago, the Garrett Community College (GCC) baseball team has gone on a tear, winning five straight games on the road in last week's action as it outscored opponents by a combined score of 52-21. With a 5-1 record (results from a second Mercer County matchup yesterday in North Carolina were not available as of this writing) the Lakers are poised for a busy week ahead, facing Pitt Community College at Greenville, N.C., tomorrow, a Sunday doubleheader at home against Essex Community College, and visits to Potomac State on Tuesday and Frederick on Thursday.

The GCC nine opened last week at Catonsville with a doubleheader sweep on Friday. A 6-5 victory led off the Lakers attack, as Chris Powell blasted a two-run homer to account for half the runs of a four-run first inning. Matt DiAngelo, occupying a base when Powell connected, was driven in by the home run. Jason Davis then followed with a single, stole second, and when Brian Hays rapped out a single Davis scampered around third to score. Hays made it to third on an error, and came home on a Denny Rulli sacrifice fly to account for the fourth run of the first inning off Catonsville starter Shawn Hornes.

Hays batted 2-for-4 for GCC, with a double, two runs scored, and one RBI. Mike Johnston's arm carried the Lakers through the first four innings without a great deal of defensive help, as three GCC errors accounted for all five unearned runs. Matt Stallings came in to hurl the closing fifth inning.

The second game was a different story, as the Lakers clubbed Catonsville 16-5 in five innings. Garrett attacked for seven runs in the second, two in the third, one in the fourth, and six in the fifth.

The Lakers 16 runs came on 13 hits, including a Rulli grand slam in the fifth. The slugger also tallied a double, scored two runs, and drove in a total of five runs. Powell also had a big day, going 3-for-4 with two doubles and scoring two runs, Jeff Davis drove in three runs and scored two runs as he went 2-for-3, and Dave Collins went 2-for-2 with two runs scored. Mike Maravich took the win from the mound.

The Lakers' Saturday outing, at Baltimore City Community College, saw a GCC barrage rock Joe Cannon Stadium for 17 runs to the host's three-run total. The maulers from McHenry got off to a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Powell's solo homer, but Baltimore battled back by scoring one run in the bottom of the inning and two runs in the third to take a 3-2 lead.

GCC answered with two runs in the fourth, one in the fifth, and then unleashed the fireworks for a seven-run seventh inning and a five-run eighth to put the game away. Although their hitting was strong, the Lakers committed four errors on defense for the day.

Powell went 2-for-6, scoring three runs and whacking a double in addition to his home run. DiAngelo's two hits in his six at-bats were both doubles, and he scored three runs. Hays went 3-for-4 with a single, double, and triple, while former Southern High standout Jeremy Fitzwater was 2-for-3 with a double

DNR Releases Maryland's First Statewide Deer Management Plan

More than 4,000 citizens, diverse interest groups and Maryland's Wildlife Advisory Commission have participated in drafting the state's first white-tailed deer management plan, released this week by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR). "Charting the Course for Deer Management in Maryland" sets forth, in draft form, strategies to address the state's rapidly growing deer populations, which are higher now than ever before. While extremely rare in the state at the turn of the century, Maryland's deer populations have grown to an estimated 250,000 animals.

"Increasing deer populations are causing unprecedented levels of concern among motorists, farmers, and suburban residents, said DNR Secretary John R. Griffin. "Greater numbers of deer are also negatively impacting parks and other natural areas by destroying native plants and habitat for other forest animals. The draft plan seeks to maintain healthy deer populations as a valuable component of Maryland's natural ecosystem by first stabilizing the populations, then adjusting populations to bring them into acceptable ranges given social and environmental conditions of individual communities.

Conflicts between humans and deer have grown dramatically in recent years, resulting in increased personal injury and property damage. Reported deer/vehicle collisions have doubled in Maryland over the past eight years, from 1,500 in 1988 to more than 3,200 in 1996. Property damage related to deer/vehicle collisions is conservatively estimated to be in excess of $9.7 million annually.

"The over-population of deer, as they have spilled onto our highways, has become a very serious safety hazard for Maryland motorists," said Lon Anderson, spokesman for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "Not only have they caused many serious accidents, they have also caused millions upon millions of dollars in property damage, which raises insurance rates for all drivers. We commend DNR for its efforts to find ways to protect the environment and motorists, while managing the deer population."

On farms, a recent University of Maryland study found that 92 percent of Maryland farmers suffered deer-related crop damage in 1996, with a total economic loss estimated at $38 million. "The Maryland Farm Bureau supports anything within reason that can be done to help manage Maryland's deer overabundance," said Emily Wilson of the Maryland Farm Bureau. "We appreciate the opportunity to have participated in DNR's public process, and our significant involvement in that process is evidence of our level of support."

According to Secretary Griffin, the plan blends proposed statewide actions with approaches to significant increase local community involvement in setting target population levels and choosing management techniques. "One of the most important lessons we have learned from working closely with the public in developing the plan is that determining how many deer can co-exist with people in a given community is often a social question that can best be answered by that community," said Griffin.

Local task forces have already begun to implement deer management plans in Howard and Montgomery counties, and around the Loch Raven watershed in Baltimore County. "The local task force concept for addressing the abundant and growing white-tailed deer population affords citizens and representatives of the public, as well as private agencies, the structured forum for understanding the concerns of all stakeholders involved in this complex and controversial issue," said Chick Rhodehamel, chair of the Howard County

PUT AND TAKE TROUT SEASON

Local streams are stocked and ready for the opening of Maryland's "Put and Take" trout season on March 28 at 5:30 a.m. Catchable trout stocking provides a short-term fishery, where fish are expected to be caught quickly and survival of these fish over the year is not expected except in our cooler regions here in the western part of the state. Most of the stocked fish are rainbows 10 to 12 inches long. Some are a year older and are stocked as trophy trout in the 18-inch range.

NORTH BRANCH MONITORED FOR WHIRLING DISEASE

There was a notice on the DNR website that fish were being monitored for whirling disease on the North Branch below the Jennings Randolph dam. Harold Harsh of Spring Creek Outfitters informed us that this monitoring has been going on for the last couple of years. Apparently, some incidents had been detected in the rearing pens near the dam about three years ago among rainbows. Since that time, the pens have been devoted to brown trout and it seems that the whirling disease has been stopped. Continued monitoring is a prudent tactic.

Harold also informed us that Spring Creek Outfitters is now operating from its new location on Deep Creek Lake with a new phone number, 301-387-2034.

NEW DEER MANAGEMENT PLAN

Western Maryland is the only part of the state deemed to have a stable deer population in the recently released Deer Management Plan authored by the DNR. The study concluded, based on public meetings held throughout the state, that deer populations are too high in many sections of the state and action is required to avert further negative impact. Options that were discussed are expanded deer bag limits, relocation, repellents and fencing, contraceptive agents, food to reduce deer damage, predators, and regulated hunting.

Interested individuals can review the plan at local libraries, and executive summaries are available from the DNR by calling 1-410-260-8540. Summaries and complete plans are available on the DNR website at http://www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/dmp.html. Written comments on the draft are being accepted through March 31, 1998.

THE CONTINUING SEARCH FOR FELIS CONCOLOR COUGAR

Felis Concolor Cougar, otherwise known as mountain lion, puma, cougar, catamount, etc., has been believed by many to be extinct in Maryland. But not everybody shares that opinion.

As we had reported here over a year ago, there is a group based in Baltimore, the Eastern Puma Research Network (EPRN), that believes just the opposite. Indeed, they have been involved in a quest to prove that there is a viable breeding population of big cats in the states east of the Mississippi.

Some individuals who have sighted big cats are reluctant to talk of their experiences; yet others discuss them freely. John Lutz, director of the EPRN, said, "The Garrett County area has been fairly active with sightings of big cats and has been for some time."

The statistics generated since the EPRN program's inception in 1983 are impressive. Consider that in Maryland alone, there have been reports of over 350 sightings. Most of these encounters have been in the western part of the state. In this same time period, New York reported 347 spottings, Pennsylvania reported 975, and West Virginia checked in 345.

In 1997 alone, a total of 323 alleged sightings of big cats were reported to the Eastern Puma Research Network from a total of 20 eastern states. The EPRN reported in its January 1998 newsletter that in Maryland there were 22 sightings in 1997. Of these three were of the black-panther type and two were cubs. The cubs are particularly significant as they are indicative of a breeding population.

EPRN data contends that the reclusive behavior of the mountain lion and the tendency to live in remote areas is one explanation of why the presence of these fascinating animals is so difficult to prove. At full maturity, an adult female cat can attain a weight of up to 100 pounds. Her male counterpart will rarely exceed 150 pounds. The colors can range from solid tan, bronze, brown to reddish brown to gray. Cubs are silver with black spots that will disappear by the time they reach 6 months. Adult males may be more than eight feet long, from nose to end of tail. Adult females can be seven feet long.

The black-panther type cat may be a color variation. However, a distinct possibility exists that the black panther may belong to the Panthera pardus species, which is of the Leopard family. No carcasses of a black panther are known to currently exist. And until one is found, it is not possible to determine to which species the mammal belongs. It is possible that the black cat may be of an unknown subspecies.

If you have seen what you believe to be a mountain lion, you can help in this research by reporting it to the Eastern Puma Research Network. Contact John or Linda Lutz at the Eastern Puma Research Network, P.O. Box 3562, Baltimore, MD 21214. They have a 24-hour telephone hotline at 410-254-2517 or can be reached by e-mail at epuma@flash.net. Reports substantiated with photographs and/or videos are of primary interest.

1997 DNR Studies Reveal Local Bear Facts, Highlight Concerns

With spring around the corner, the black bears of Garrett County and the surrounding region will be stirring from their dens shortly. The coming of spring also harbingers renewed reports to local Department of Natural Resources (DNR) offices of bear sightings, which tend to fall into one of two categories — curiosity or complaint.

This article by a local DNR forest game biologist addresses the current state of Maryland's black bears and some of the concerns raised by their increasing numbers.

by Steve Bittner

Where are we today in regard to the black bear? The situation in Maryland is very similar to what has happened in New Jersey, where bear populations in the northwestern part of that state have increased dramatically in the last decade. New Jersey does not yet have a bear hunting season, but wildlife officials there have recently discussed the merits of hunting black bears. Bear nuisance complaints have become more numerous in New Jersey in recent years, which is faced with the dilemma of properly handling these bear incidents.

As you can see, problems with black bears are not just restricted to Maryland. They have become more common across the natural range of this magnificent animal as bear populations have increased.

In Maryland, 1997 was a very busy year with bears. It all started in February when DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division technicians conducted aerial surveys of radioed bears, noting den locations. Ground checks were conducted after aerial surveys were completed, and the presence of cubs was noted for all females. Those with yearling cubs (born the previous year) are noted, and the survival rate of these yearlings is determined. Newborn cubs are tagged in mid-March after the female has been immobilized. The female's radio collar is also replaced at this time.

In 1997, we tagged nine cubs from three radioed sows. Two radioed sows that were too young to produce cubs, and three sows with yearling cubs were found as well. One of these sows had slipped her radio collar prior to denning; therefore, yearling survival could not be determined for that litter. One sow had successfully reared four cubs to yearling age, while another sow reared at least one of four cubs to yearling age. We could not determine if more than one cub survived to yearling age because we could not get a good observation at this den site. However, there was yearling sign at the den site. On average, Maryland female black bears produce 2.9 cubs per sow, with at least 58 percent of the cubs surviving to yearling age.

Black bear activity increases in late March and early April. We can tell when bears become more active because the number of calls received at wildlife field offices concerning bears increases dramatically at this time. In 1997, DNR Wildlife and Heritage staff received 331 complaints regarding bears across Maryland. Garrett County's 208 complaints were the most of any Maryland county, followed by Allegany with 85 complaints, Washington with 18 complaints, and Frederick with 11 complaints. Also, there were sightings of bears in Montgomery, Carroll, Harford and Baltimore counties in 1997.

The largest number of complaints were 66 of bears in trash, followed by 61 sightings in all areas except Garrett County. We do not monitor sightings of bears in Garrett County because they are so numerous. We also recorded 46 calls concerning safety issues and 45 complaints of bears in birdfeeders. The majority of the birdfeeder complaints arise in March and April, as bears find this ready source of food shortly after den emergence. If you live in bear country and feed birds, PLEASE be aware that bears will destroy birdfeeders while eating your birdfood. It would be advisable to take your birdfeeders in at night to reduce the chance of bears destroying them.

In come cases, problem bears will be trapped and relocated. In extreme cases, such as livestock-killing bears, they will be euthanized. In 1997, DNR Wildlife and Heritage personnel trapped and relocated one nuisance bear in Garrett County. No nuisance bears were euthanized by DNR personnel in 1997.

Agricultural damage was very high in 1997. We investigated numerous complaints of bear damage to crops and beehives in 1997. Thirty-five different landowners were found to have black bear damage and were deemed eligible for compensation under the guidelines of the Black Bear Compensation Program. A total of $49,782 of bear damage was recorded in 1997, of which $41,445 was eligible for reimbursement.

Black Bear Conservation stamps are sold to raise revenue to reimburse landowners for black bear damage. Stamp sales were not very high in 1997, so DNR contributed General Funds to the Bear Compensation account to allow landowners to receive 42 cents on the dollar for damage. This is the same amount received by landowners for damage caused in 1996.

Bear mortalities were also noted throughout the year. In 1997, 20 black bears were confirmed to have died in Maryland. The largest mortality cause was collision with vehicles, where 13 bears were reported to have died as a result of these collisions. We also documented three bears killed illegally and three bears dying of unknown causes. Two bears were killed on Interstate 70 in Washington County, both tagged in Pennsylvania and one of which was a lactating female, indicating cubs were nearby.

Teeth are pulled from all bears so ages can be determined. In the past, the age structure of Maryland bears indicates a young and growing population.

Next month, I will present the results of this winters den checks, as well as explain the sequence of events at den emergence time.

Task Force

Deer Task Force.

"We have found that by working through options at the local level, we can create a much more effective management effort with broader acceptance by diverse interest groups," added Dr. John E. Hench, Natural Resources supervisor for the Maryland National Capitol Park and Planning Commission. Many additional local efforts are envisioned in the near future in conjunction with the management plan.

Statewide actions under the plan began in early February with a proposal to expand hunter bag limits for white-tailed deer. The new bag limits, along with strategies to increase hunter access to private lands with high deer populations, are expected to reduce deer numbers in many areas, particularly adjacent to farms and rural roadways.

"We are pleased with DNR's continued commitment to emphasize hunting as a primary deer management tool, as reflected in the proposed changes in bag limits and regulatory zones," said Rob Jepson, Annapolis area hunter and assistant manager of Angler's Sport Center. "I realize that the plan must include other management techniques that are not hunting related as well, but continuing to emphasize hunting while potentially increasing recreational opportunities is the right way to go."

The new plan enhances DNR's commitment to exploring and using alternative means of population management. New management techniques, such as fertility controls and behavior modification, are suggested in the plan to address site-specific concerns, particularly in many urban and suburban areas.

"The new deer management plan shows that DNR has worked hard to incorporate the diverse views of Maryland residents, including those of the animal protection community," said Dr. Allen Rutberg, senior scientist for Wildlife and Habitat Protection with the Humane Society of the United States, headquartered in Gaithersburg. "We believe that the plan lays a strong foundation for cooperation in tackling challenges posed by thriving deer populations in urban, suburban, and rural communities."

DNR is accepting written comments on the draft plan through March 31, 1998. Because of the extensive public involvement in developing the plan, minimal adjustments and clarifications are expected. Interested individuals may review the draft plan at their local public library. To receive a free copy of the plan's four-page executive summary, persons may call DNR's Wildlife & Heritage Division at 410-260-8540. To receive a copy of the full 68-page plan, persons should send a $10 check or money order to: The Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife & Heritage Division, 3 Pershing Street, Cumberland, MD 21502.

Hit Stride

and two runs scored. Collins hit a two-run roundtripper in the seventh inning, and doubled as well.

GCC began a spring break visit to the Tar Heel state on Tuesday with a 13-8 drubbing of Mercer County (N.J.) Community College at Coastal Carolina University. Collins had four singles in five at-bats, and DiAngelo and Davis added three hits apiece to spark the Lakers' 18-hit offensive production for the day.

Mercer held a 5-4 lead at the opening of the fourth inning. GCC tied the game in the fourth, then scored eight runs in the top of the sixth for a 13-5 lead. Mercer answered with two runs in the bottom of the sixth, and scored another run in the seventh as the game was halted on account of rain.

DiAngelo tripled, singled twice, and scored three runs, while Davis doubled, singled twice, and scored two runs. Rulli had a two-bagger of his own. Maravich tallied his second victory, improving his pitching record to 2-0 as he struck out six batters in six innings. Fitzwater took the mound in the seventh and struck out two batters. GCC's defensive woes continued, as four of Mercer's eight runs were unearned and stemmed six Laker errors.

THE MAN IN THE IRON MASK

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:10

Still riding high on his popularity from Titanic, Leonardo DiCaprio is sure to skyrocket to the top of every schoolgirl's list with Randall Wallace's remake of The Man In The Iron Mask, which stars the young hearthrob in dual roles: that of French king Louis XIV and his unknown twin brother Philippe, who was locked in a dungeon for the simple crime of being the king's twin. The production quality of this version of Alexander Dumas's classic story is rich and beautiful in every detail, and for the most part, the acting matches the film's general quality. With a supporting cast made up of people like John Malkovich, Gérard Depardieu, and Jeremy Irons, it would be hard to miss. Yet in some areas it comes perilously close to doing just that.

The trouble comes with DiCaprio's acting. These "evil twin" stories are always challenging for the person playing the twins, crafting two different characters for the price of one, especially when one twin has to pretend to be the other. Not only does DiCaprio have to give us 1) King Louis and 2) Philippe, but he also must pull off 3) Philippe's characterization of King Louis. Keeping in mind that Philippe is by no means a professional actor, DiCaprio must show us the flaws in his impersonation of his brother, but they must be so subtle that other characters in the movie believe he is the king. Very tricky.

DiCaprio's characterizations, especially of the king, leave a little to be desired. It is obvious that he was told by director Wallace to play Louis as a spoiled brat, but he overdoes it. A teenage king like Louis might be petty and conceited, but he would have been trained to have some sort of regal bearing; he would not look like a 20th century American teenager. DiCaprio reads his lines as if there is absolutely nothing behind them; he fails to show thought before speaking. In life, conversation is not written and memorized, it is constantly ebbing and flowing, evolving, in a state of flux. DiCaprio is too rushed, too stilted at the beginning. But as the story swells toward the climax, he allows both his characters to live, and to be different, and to be the same.

The characterizations of the now-retired Musketeers are all impeccable, as may be expected by the cast. The vengeful Athos (Malkovich), spiritual Aramis (Irons), lustful and fun-loving Porthos (Depardieu), and D'Artagnan (Gabriel Byrne), the one who remains loyal to the king, all give a satisfyingly well-rounded feel to the story. We see it from all sides, and we see the love and mutual respect between these old friends, who sometimes quarrel so angrily that we expect them to draw swords against each other, and indeed they do. It's all part of their comfortable yet intensely competetive relationship. What a fine foursome.

No less praise should go to the two principal women. Anne Parillaud, who plays Queen Anne, mother of the twins, is at once regal yet powerless, sensual yet wracked with grief. Judith Godreche, playing the lover of Athos's son Raoul (Peter Sarsgaard), must deal with the affections of the king who sent her fiancé away to his death on the battlefield.

The Man In The Iron Mask is a luxurious piece of eye candy all the way through; the costumes (by James Acheson), cinematography (by Peter Suschitzky), music (by Nick Glennie-Smith), and production design (by Anthony Pratt) all match Wallace's top-quality screenplay adaptation of Dumas's story. At this time of year, it's tempting to say that there will be several nominations headed in The Man's direction, but because of the timing of its release date, chances are this movie will be a distant memory by Oscar-time next year. ★★★★½

KRIPPENDORF'S TRIBE

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 1:33

You know, for a hugely wealthy corporate enterprise such as Disney, they certainly seem to have a great deal of trouble doing the one thing that got them there in the first place. I applaud them for their many classic achievements, but lately I'm becoming more and more convinced that the writers have all left the building.

In this terribly stupid story, penned by Frank Parkin and Charlie Peters and directed by Todd Holland, college professor James Krippendorf (Richard Dreyfuss) is an anthropologist who has gone on an expedition to New Guinea to discover a tribe that doesn't exist. This, of course, begs the question: why did he think it was there in the first place? After the death of his beloved wife, he is left with three children: a teenage daughter, Shelly (Natasha Lyonne), who runs the house and openly regards her disorganized father as a loser; a preteen son, Mickey (Gregory Smith), who supports James so enthusiastically that he frequently gets him in trouble; and a younger boy, Edmund (Carl Michael Lindner), who hasn't spoken to his dad since his mother died.

James wakes up one day to discover that he is supposed to make a speech in front of a huge crowd of students, faculty, and the general anthropological community, describing his findings in New Guinea. This comes as a complete surprise to him, as if he didn't even know it had been scheduled. When he arrives at the packed auditorium, knowing that he must not admit that he has spent all his grant money and come up with nothing, he quickly makes up a name for his lost tribe--the "Shelmikedmu"--based on the first letters of his children's names.

Despite the skepticism of his nasty, conceited fellow anthopologist, Ruth Allen (Lily Tomlin), and the bothersome, overzealous support of another professor, Veronica Micelli (Jenna Elfman), he gets through the speech. When asked to produce film footage, he converts his back yard into a movie studio and his children into African natives, and makes a tape using this film interspersed with some real footage he and his wife took in Africa before she died. From there on, the movie is simply James's attempt to deceive the world, despite his ineptness, his daughter's disapproval, and the obvious certainty that eventually he'll be found out. And there's plenty of bathroom humor and sexual innuendo to go around.

This piece of tripe could be a clever idea, if the script weren't so full of incongruities. Statements are made and later patently contradicted. Relationships are inexplicably hostile, and then just as inexplicably friendly, or vice versa. None of the characters are developed beyond the need to fulfill some lame plot contrivance. And when the film wraps up, we have hammered home the shining moral of the story: "Dishonesty, if it can provide financial gain or political respectability, Is The Best Policy". Thanks for the gumball, Mickey. ★ standing resource," Edwards said.

Gerry Polansky, president of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association, said he is "delighted" with Glendening's action.

"This is a Maryland issue, as well as a local issue," Polansky said. "Having the state behind us means an awful lot."

The governor has asked GPU to separate the Deep Creek Lake interests from a bundle of 34 plants scheduled for sale, and to in fact separate the lake from the power plant. This, he said, will best protect the lake itself.

Jerry Geisler, co-president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, said this request is "only appropriate."

"The Deep Creek Lake facility is unique among GPU's power generating plants," Geisler said. "Its dominant recreational use has resulted in major tourism, hospitality, and real estate industries along its shores. That attraction in turn is used to market the entire county as an asset in our economic development tool box."

Geisler's co-president David Moe said GPU has thus far been a "good corporate neighbor and participant in the community," and expects that this spirit will continue throughout the divestiture proceedings.

GPU currently owns the land under the lake, the 100-foot buffer strip around the water, and the power plant. This is all to be sold within the next 10 months, with the closing date slated for Dec. 30. The county has already submitted a letter of interest to GPU, and officials seem to be in agreement that some form of local ownership would be beneficial to the county.

Any individual or entity considering potentially partnering with the state should declare their interest by writing to Sec. John Griffin, Maryland DNR, Tawes State Office Building, 580 Taylor Avenue, Annapolis, MD 21401; or Sec. James Brady, Maryland DBED, 217 East Redwood Street, 23rd Floor, Baltimore, MD 21202.

Historical Society To Expand Hours Starting April 1

The hours of the Garrett Historical Society Museum in downtown Oakland will expand on Wednesday, April 1, in conjunction with the Main Street Maryland program. The museum's hours will be: 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesdays through Fridays; 1 to 4 p.m., Saturday and Sunday; and special evening hours of 5 to 8 p.m. on Mondays.

The public is invited to visit the museum at its new location on Second Street to see the many Garrett County artifacts on display. The genealogical library in the museum is available for research to people wanting to trace their roots.

The purpose of the historical society is "to discover, secure and preserve whatever relates to the history of Garrett County and its people, and to disseminate knowledge of the history of Garrett County and its people by the publication from time to time of books, papers, and bulletins" pertaining to such history. All members of the society receive its quarterly publication, The Glades Star. New members are welcomed by the society.

The historical society continues to seek donations and memorials, and conducts fund-raising activities to meet the mortgage payments on the building. It is a 501(c)(3) corporation, which may be a tax advantage for donors. A fund-raising homestyle dinner and program is set for April 23 at the Pleasant Valley Community Center at 6:30 p.m. Reservations may be made by clipping the reservation form on page C-3 of this newspaper.

That First Step

"Let go, little one. We're waiting right here to catch you. Now, just take that first step. You can do it!"

That first step is an important milestone. There may be some initial faltering, but with trust, determination, encouragement and loving guidance, that all important self-assurance is only one courageous step away.

In Psalm 8:2, David tells us the Lord has "set my feet upon a rock, making my steps secure." At times, events in our lives leave us insecure and unsure as to which steps to take and what decisions we must make.

You can take your most important step this week as you enter your church or synagogue. God is waiting with outstretched arms to love you…to encourage you…to guide you. Trust Him. As unequaled strength and assurance surrounds you, you will falter no more. Each step will be a step toward God.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

TROUBLING THE TEACHER
March 22, 1998

Background Scripture:
Mark 5:21-43
Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 1:18-31

From 1965 to 1975 a weekly worship service of spiritual healing was part of the ongoing program of my pastorate at Calvary United Methodist Church in Mohnton, Pennsylvania.

There was nothing dramatic about the mechanics of this service. It was quiet, supportive and often surprisingly effective. While I would never claim that either I or my associates—another UMC minister and a prominent local medical doctor—ever healed anyone, God alone does that—we were nevertheless aware that this ministry was beneficial to hundreds of people who were seeking healing of mind, body or spirit. At least three local physicians referred one or more of their patients to us or asked us to put them on our prayer list. Some physicians who knew little or nothing about us told their patients that "whatever it is you're doing, keep on doing it!"

What did we experience? We saw a large number of people improve and get well over a period of time; practically all of these were under a doctor's care. We saw a significant number of people who experienced remissions of their illness or the lessening of pain and suffering as their illness progressed.

ULTIMATE HEALING

We saw some of our patients die and we learned to help them to die—as victors, not victims. We came to regard death as part of God's plan for life and, in effect, the opportunity for ultimate healing. And we saw a much smaller number of people healed almost spontaneously, although these were the exception, not the rule.

There were lots of other benefits from this ministry. It taught people to forgive and be forgiven. Receiving prayer requests from all over the world, this ministry helped to widen our horizons and bring us into contact with a wide variety of people. It involved many in a lifelong commitment to pray as intercessors for others. It made real to some the power of God in the most tangible way. We came to realize that we needed to pray and work for healing of relationships, families, churches, communities and our broken world.

Even after I left that parish in Pennsylvania, I continued my interest and involvement in the church's ministry of healing, conducting seminars, traveling around the world to examine other healing ministries, and in 1977 writing a book, Rediscovering the Gift of Healing, published by Abingdon Press and later reissued by SamuelWeiser Co.

3-FOLD MISSION

All of the above is simply an introduction to my perspective on the healing ministry of Jesus. I believe that Jesus came with a three-fold mission of preaching, teaching and healing—and that he commissioned his disciples and the Church to continue that mission. Over the years I have been associated with scores of medical doctors —but fewer clergy—who have shared that conviction.

There are lots of healing accounts in the four gospels, including Mark. In Mark 5:21 through 3:6 there are two healings that are very instructive for us. First, both Jairus, the ruler of the synagogue, and the unnamed woman with a hemorrhage, come to Jesus because they believe he can effect healing. Notice the faith with which Jairus says to Jesus, "My little daughter is at the point of death. Come and lay your hands on her, so that she may be made well, and live"(5:23). And the unknown woman says to herself: "If I touch even his garments, I shall be made well" (5:28).

Neither apparently know of Jesus except by reputation, but they trust him to be able to provide healing. "Daughter," says Jesus to the unknown woman, "your faith has made you well; go in peace, and be healed of your disease"(5:34). When Jairus is told that his daughter is already dead, Jesus appeals to his faith, saying: "Do not fear, only believe" (5:36). The result: the woman is healed of her hemorrhaging and the little girl is restored to life.

This is not magic or supernatural hocus-pocus, but simply the recognition that faith in Jesus Christ can open the door through which healing must come into our lives. The friends of Jairus said to him, "Your daughter is dead. Why trouble the Teacher any further?" (5:35). Yet that is exactly what Jesus wants us to do, to continue to 'trouble' him so that we may experience the wholeness for which God created us.

COVER STORY

Titanic in for smooth ride at Academy Awards

By Jennifer B. Miller
©TVData Features Syndicate

Gloria Stuart

On Monday, March 23, ABC broadcasts the 70th annual Academy Awards, and Hollywood will finally determine whether bigger is better. Titanic, James Cameron's $200 million blockbuster, will have to navigate past a group of smaller, more thoughtful films as it seeks Oscars in 14 categories.

The movie is widely expected to win best picture, which is frequently awarded to high-grossing epics. The two comedies nominated, As Good as It Gets and The Full Monty, seem particularly fluffy in the wake of Titanic. Good Will Hunting is equally unlikely to win, despite its neatly packaged story of local boys making good. L.A. Confidential, the critically acclaimed film noir mystery, is the only iceberg that Titanic needs to dodge.

Will win: Titanic.

Could win: L.A. Confidential.

The Academy is unlikely to award the best actor Oscar to Matt Damon (Good Will Hunting), who wasn't even alive when some of his rivals were first receiving accolades. Peter Fonda is the probable winner, having made a comeback in Ulee's Gold with a subtle, intelligent performance that strongly recalls his late father, Henry Fonda. Previous winners Dustin Hoffman (Wag the Dog) and Robert Duvall (The Apostle) will be overlooked. Fonda's sole competition comes from his old biker pal, Jack Nicholson, at his sneering best in As Good as It Gets.

Will win: Fonda.

Could win: Nicholson.

Helena Bonham Carter's passionate performance in The Wings of the Dove is likely to win her the best actress Oscar. Her primary competition comes from Judi Dench, who has been lavished with critics' praise for her work in Mrs. Brown. But the public has been mad about Helen Hunt (As Good as It Gets) and Kate Winslet (Titanic). Neither has a serious chance, however. Julie Christie (Afterglow) is also a long shot.

Will win: Carter.

Could win: Dench.

Like Fonda and Christie, Burt Reynolds (Boogie Nights) and Robert Forster (Jackie Brown) made comebacks this year, but Reynolds' wry performance as an avuncular pornographer is likely to win him the best supporting actor Oscar over Forster. Anthony Hopkins (Amistad) and Greg Kinnear (As Good as It Gets) will have a restful evening in their seats. Robin Williams (Good Will Hunting), however, has been nominated in the past and can be relied on to make an entertaining acceptance speech.

Will win: Reynolds.

Could win: Williams.

Minnie Driver (Good Will Hunting) and Joan Cusack (In & Out) shouldn't spend too much time polishing their best supporting actress acceptance speeches. The only performance rivaling Kim Basinger's work as a self-destructive femme fatale in L.A. Confidential is Julianne Moore's in Boogie Nights, in which she brought a wistful tenderness to a sordid porn star. However, the academy might be overcome by the whimsical pleasure of honoring 1930s starlet Gloria Stuart for her brief appearance in Titanic.

Will win: Basinger.

Could win: Stuart.

IN FOCUS

Damon Wayans keeps law and order on the streets of Chicago as an inventive undercover police officer in Damon. The Fox sitcom premieres Sunday, March 22, then airs two more Sundays before moving to its regular Monday time slot.

With his creative disguises and quick wit, Damon usually comes out ahead in both his career and his personal troubles. But that's not always the case for his brother, Bernard (David Alan Grier), who has marital troubles and a miserable job.

Documentary marks American milestone

By Suzanne Gill

American history classes often overlook the war that launched the United States onto the world stage. The conflict gives its name to a Learning Channel special, The Spanish-American War, debuting Sunday, March 22.

Timed to commemorate the centennial of the sinking of the battleship USS Maine in Havana, the two-hour documentary depicts the defeat of the Spanish at the hands of an expanding industrialized nation.

The program features some of the earliest film footage ever shot, including New York's turn-of-the-century skyline and the first scenes of battle caught on film. As befits an American movie, the war starred larger-than-life characters: Theodore Roosevelt and William Randolph Hearst for the United States; poet-revolutionary Jose Marti for Cuba. Also among the celluloid treasures are vintage interviews with Cuban veterans.

When the Maine's sinking was blamed on Spain, the American public was outraged. In declaring war, the United States expanded its focus beyond the Monroe Doctrine, confronting the enemy in both the Caribbean and the Philippines.

One of Roosevelt's friends called it "a splendid little war," despite the deaths of thousands of American servicemen from tropical diseases.

The work of Britain's Cafe Productions Ltd., The Spanish-American War is somewhat grudging in its portrait of Roosevelt, and it downplays the obvious foreshadowings of current Cuba-U.S. relations. But it organizes clearly the elements that have shaped the 20th century and will possibly affect the beginnings of the 21st.

Theodore "Teddy" Roosevelt rode to fame with the Rough Riders in the Spanish-American War. The Learning Channel memorializes that conflict on Sunday.

Andrea Parker

Q: What can you tell me about Miss Parker on The Pretender? I find her very intriguing. –C.E.O. via e-mail.

A: When she read for the role of Miss Parker in The Pretender, Andrea Parker (the last names are coincidental) exclaimed, "Why, my name is all over this script!"

And she's proven that with her gutsy performance as a valiant but confused woman whose search for her own roots parallels that of main character Jarod Russell (Michael T. Weiss) on the show.

A native of Southern California, Parker began studying ballet at 8 and left home at 15 to join the San Francisco Ballet, which helped build her self-confidence immensely – and prepared her to run in those high heels on Pretender.

Her first speaking part was as the silhouetted nurse who drove George Costanza (Jason Alexander) mad with desire while he was visiting his hospital-bound mother in the classic Seinfeld episode "The Contest."

Parker is active in several charities and spends time at the firing range for her role.

I can personally attest that she also has a wicked sense of humor.

Write to her c/o her series at NBC Television Network, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Burbank, CA 91523.

Q: Who is Jay R. Ferguson? Someone mentioned his name recently, and I remember that he used to be in teen magazines. –Kathryn MacPherson, Fredericton, N.B., Canada.

A: Ferguson, now 23, is best known for playing Burt Reynolds' oldest son, Taylor Newton, on Evening Shade.

Q: On Bewitched, there was an actor who occasionally appeared in the role of Dr. Bombay. In Titanic, there is a rich old gentleman who looks a lot like him. Is it, in fact, the same actor? –Joe Trevison, Erie, Pa.

A: Yes. Bernard Fox, who played Dr. Bombay on Bewitched, currently plays Col. Archibald Gracie in the box-office blockbuster Titanic.

Q: Is Alexandra Vandernoot, who plays Tessa on Highlander, the same actress who appears in the Taster's Choice commercials? My wife says no, but I think she is. –Henry Beckwith via e-mail.

A: No, that's Sharon Maughan with Anthony Stewart Head (Buffy the Vampire Slayer) in those popular commercials.

Q: Is Gloria Grahame, who played Ado Annie in Oklahoma!, still alive? –Melody Dupre, New Iberia, La.

A: No. I am sorry to report that Grahame died of cancer and peritonitis on Oct. 5, 1981.

EMT Pediatric Emergency Class To Begin April 4

The Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems is sponsoring a Pediatric Emergencies—Illness and Injury training at the Cumberland Memorial Hospital auditorium on April 4 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

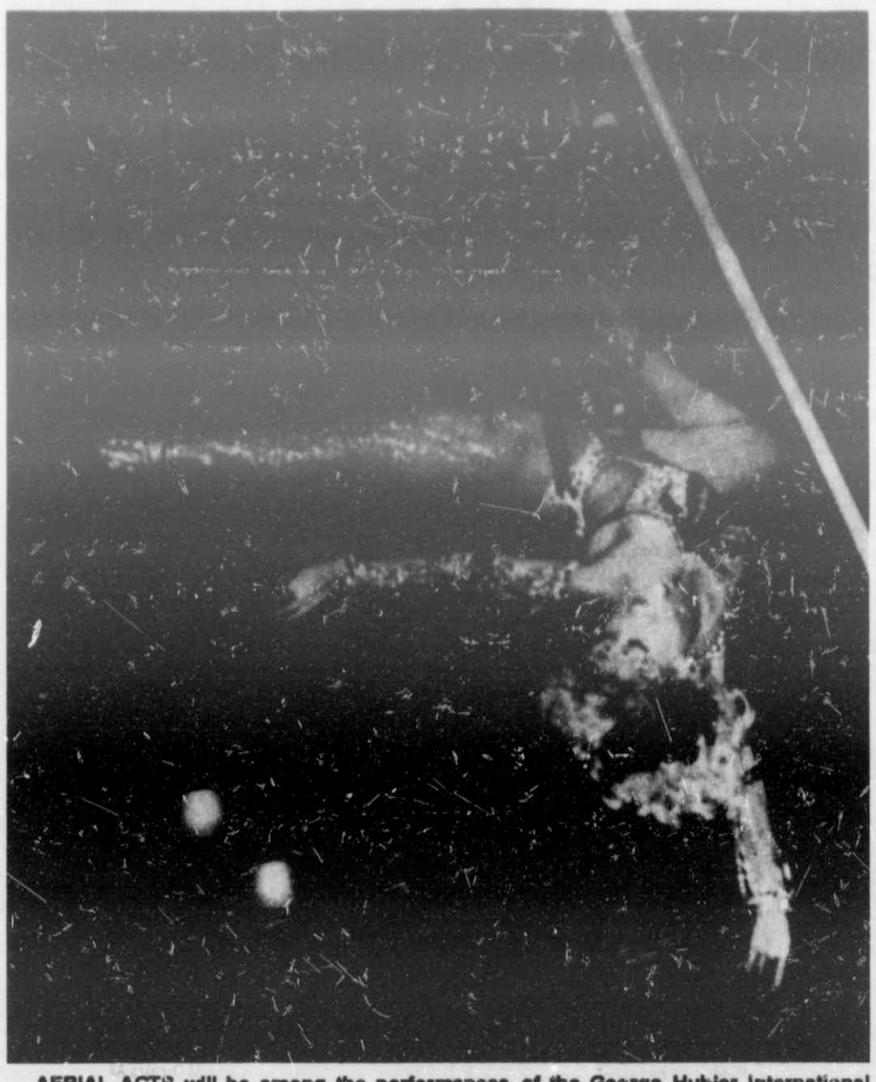
The class is divided into two sections, medical and trauma emergencies, and is designed for Emergency Medical Technicians.

The morning session will cover pediatric medical emergencies, which statistics show make up two-thirds of all pediatric ambulance calls. This session will present a review of pediatric assessment, followed by specific scenarios with hands-on skills.

The afternoon session will concentrate on pediatric trauma emergencies, which are the leading cause of death and disability in children. This session will review how children are injured and the techniques for primary and secondary surveys for the injured child. The lecture will be followed by hands-on scenarios of the most common mechanism of injury for children of different ages.

The class will provide the following continuing education credits: BLS—3 hours each, medical and trauma; ALS—6 hours Category B.

To register for the class, persons may call the MIEMSS Region I Office at 301-895-5934 or 301-746-8636 no later than April 1.



AERIAL ACTS will be among the performances of the George Hubler International Circus, which will be presented twice in the Frostburg State University gymnasium on Saturday, March 29, with show times set for 2 and 6 p.m. Advance tickets are currently available for the circus, which is being sponsored by the Ali Ghan Shrine Club of Cumberland, of which a number of members are from Garrett County. The price of those tickets is $7 for adults and $4 for children, with the gate prices $1 additional. Tickets are available in Garrett County at Get-N-Go and Marvin's Men's Wear in Oakland and at Deep Creek Pharmacy in McHenry. Medical emergencies are a topic that many of us don't wish to think about, but to be realistic an emergency can happen anytime, anywhere. Many people have survived heart attacks because a person knowing CPR was nearby when the attack occurred. After a person stops breathing and the heart stops beating, permanent brain damage occurs in four to six minutes. CPR is vital in any situation that causes breathing or pulse to cease. CPR should be administered until paramedics arrive.

In any emergency call 911 as soon as possible. Make sure house numbers are visible from the road, and put outside lights on when emergency happens after dark. Keep all medicines you are taking listed in your billfold and also at home. The S.A.L.T. organization has cards available on which medications can be listed. The card is then put in the refrigerator. A magnet is also provided to place on the door of the refrigerator to alert the emergency personnel. Remember to keep all records of medications up to date. To obtain a medical card, interested persons may call Bill Heise of S.A.L.T. at 301-334-6863.

CPR classes are held twice a month in the Community Services Center next to Garrett Memorial Hospital. More information may be obtained by calling Beth Newcomb or the education director at the hospital at 301-334-2155. A small investment of time could save a life.

The following are signs of a medical emergency, provided by the American College of Emergency Physicians: difficulty breathing or shortness of breath; chest or upper abdominal pain or pressure; fainting; sudden dizziness, weakness or change in vision; confusion or change in mental status; any sudden, severe pain; bleeding that won't stop; severe or persistent vomiting; coughing up or vomiting blood; and suicidal or homicidal feelings.

The Maryland Cooperative Extension Service's programs are open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, disability, religion, age, or national origin.

Notice

On Jan. 30, 1998, the Office of People's Counsel (OPC) filed a petition for a Reduction in the Rates and Charges of The Potomac Edison Company (PE). OPC alleges, inter alia, that PE's rates exceed just and reasonable levels by at least $15 million annually. OPC requests that the Commission docket a proceeding to consider the petition forthwith.

On Feb. 5, 1998, the Company filed a responsive pleading. Among other arguments, PE suggests that OPC has not presented a sufficient prima facie case justifying the Commission's review of the Company's current level of earnings. The Company, therefore, urges the Commission to deny the relief sought by OPC. If the Commission dockets a case, however, PE requests a procedural schedule that will provide enough time to develop cost of service results for an appropriate test year.

In a memorandum dated Feb. 6, 1998, the Commission's Technical Staff filed its comments. In short, Staff agrees with OPC that is is necessary to review PE's earnings and rate levels. Staff also suggests that the procedural schedule of this proceeding should be expedited.

The Commission has concluded that these pleadings raise significant questions of fact regarding the appropriate level of PE's rates. Accordingly, the Commission hereby dockets a proceeding to consider OPC's Petition.

The Commission will hold a prehearing conference on Tues., Mar. 24, 1998, beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the 16th Floor Hearing Room, 6 St. Paul Street, Baltimore, Maryland. Any person or entity that wishes to intervene in this proceeding shall file a petition to intervene (an original and 15 copies) with the Public Service Commission's Executive Secretary, Daniel P. Gahagan, 6 St. Paul Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21202-6806 before March 24, 1998. Petitions to intervene should contain the name of the party seeking intervention and the purpose of intervention.

Experiences In Africa To Be Topic Of Talk

Personal experiences of 16 years in war-torn Africa will be discussed by linguist and Bible translator Roger Van Otterloo during a banquet to be held in Salisbury, Pa., on Monday, April 13. Seating for the event is scheduled at 6:30 p.m., with the banquet to be served beginning at 6:45 at the Salisbury VFD.

While living for 16 years in Zaire in central Africa, Van Otterloo and his wife Karen translated the New Testament in Kifuliiru, developed a literacy program for women, began a reforestation program for the region, and built a recording studio to encourage the writing and sharing of scripture songs in Kifuliiru.

The Van Otterloos worked in Zaire as members of Wycliffe Bible Translators, and it was in Africa that their five sons were born. The family lost all their possessions in the war in which Zaire became the Democratic Republic of Congo. "The people need God's word more than ever. It's a word of forgiveness in a world that says 'retaliate,'" Van Otterloo said.

"Banquet gifts will help raise funds for Wycliffe missionary projects around the world," a spokesperson for the organization explained.

Complimentary tickets to this event may be arranged by calling 301-334-4515 or 301-895-5928. Confirmation of reservations by April 3 is requested.

Safe Return Aids Families, Patients With Alzheimer's

The Alzheimer's Association's Safe Return program has been assisting family members in Western Maryland for five years. Through this program patients with Alzheimer's disease who wander from their homes can be identified and returned.

Since its creation in April 1993, Safe Return has returned to their homes or nursing facilities nearly 2,700 individuals nationwide who have wandered. "Wandering is a common and potentially life-threatening behavior that may accompany Alzheimer's disease. Individuals with the disease may become disoriented and lost, in their own neighborhoods or far from home," stated Barbara Pilgram, executive director of The Alzheimer's Association of Western Maryland.

Nearly 60 percent of the four million Americans with Alzheimer's disease may wander off and get lost sometime during the course of the disease. "All patients who are ambulatory are at risk," Pilgram said.

Wandering behavior can be triggered by a variety of circumstances, including an individual's medication, stress level, time confusion, fear, and lack of recognition of the surroundings.

For a one-time fee of $40, program registrants receive a stainless steel identification bracelet or necklace, clothing labels, and wallet cards. These identification products are inscribed with the Safe Return 24-hour crisis number and alert others that the individual is memory-impaired and may need assistance.

The Safe Return operator alerts the family members or caregiver listed in the database so the person who has wandered can be returned. The local Alzheimer's Association provides family support and assistance while police conduct the search and rescue. To aid in the search, Safe Return can create photo flyers and fax them to local hospitals and law enforcement agencies.

To date, over 70 people in Western Maryland have registered in the Safe Return Program, nearly 38,000 people nationwide. For more information about Alzheimer's disease, or to request an application for the Safe Return program, persons may call the Alzheimer's Association, Western Maryland Chapter at 1-800-696-6830.

One Million Md. Tax Returns Now Processed

With one month to go in the filing season, Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says his office has received nearly one million of the expected 2.5 million state and local income tax returns so far. "If you haven't filed yet, don't delay—file today. There are no backlogs in processing. That means you'll get your refund check fast. And you'll get it within 48 hours if you file electronically and choose to have your refund deposited directly into your bank account," Goldstein said.

More choosing electronic filing

The comptroller noted that the state and local income tax returns received so far included 170,000 returns filed electronically through commercial tax preparers.

"While taxpayers were slower starting the filing process this year, we're not seeing as much of the traditional March lull in filing. We continue to see dramatic increases in the number of taxpayers filing electronically. This is a nationwide trend—even though electronically filed returns traditionally drop off at this point in the filing season," Goldstein said.

"One additional incentive for filing electronically is the new option to have your refund directly deposited into your bank account," he added.

Paper refund checks are averaging $462, while refunds directly deposited into bank accounts for taxpayers filing electronically average $670.

Taxpayers who owe additional tax can also take advantage of the speed and accuracy of filing electronically. "They can file now and pay by April 15," Goldstein said.

How to choose a tax preparer

Comptroller Goldstein reminded taxpayers seeking professional help with their income tax returns to proceed with care.

"The vast majority of tax professionals are knowledgeable, competent, and honest," Goldstein said. "But you should exercise the same care in selecting a tax preparer as you would if you were seeking another professional, such as a doctor or lawyer."

The warning signals consumers should watch out for include:

- tax preparers who guarantee a refund without seeing the taxpayer's records;
- tax preparers who ask that the refund be sent directly to them instead of the taxpayer; and
- tax preparers who base their fee on a percentage of the taxpayer's refund.

"Be sure you and your preparer both sign the completed return and always insist on a copy, especially if it was filed electronically," Goldstein said. "And make sure your preparer will be around after the filing season in case there's a question about how your return was prepared."

Many ways to get tax forms and assistance

"If you're still looking for Maryland tax forms, they're available from many sources—including our website and Forms-by-Fax system 24 hours a day, seven days a week," Goldstein said.

Taxpayers can download Maryland state and local income tax forms and other information from the state comptroller's website at www.comp.state.md.us or by e-mail at forms@comp.state.md.us. "Through our website you also have access to other states' forms and to federal forms," Goldstein said. "We've had more than 1.5 million hits on our website since January, as taxpayers look for forms and other filing information."

Maryland tax forms are also available by fax, 24 hours a day, from the comptroller's Forms-by-Fax system at 410-974-FAXX (974-3299).

"You can also get Maryland income tax forms from your local library, many post offices, any one of our 20 local taxpayer service offices, or by calling our forms service at 410-974-3951," Goldstein said.

Taxpayers can also send state tax questions to the comptroller's taxpayer service e-mail address at taxhelp@comp.state.md.us 24 hours a day, seven days a week. "About half of our filing season correspondence continues to come from e-mail. This is a great use of technology to make our services available to taxpayers when it's convenient to them," he added.

Free tax preparation

The telephone numbers and addresses of the taxpayer service offices are listed on the back of the Maryland state and local income tax booklet and in the blue pages of most local telephone directories.

"We'll complete your Maryland income tax return for free during regular office hours if you bring in a completed federal form and your W-2 statements," the comptroller said.

Representatives of the comptroller's office will also join IRS representatives in providing income tax assistance at several shopping malls across the state between now and the April 15th filing deadline.

Taxpayers can also receive free Maryland tax assistance by calling 1-800MD TAXES. To check the status of Maryland state and local income tax refunds, persons may call 1-800-218-8160, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Insure Your Grandchildren's Future

As a grandparent, you want to provide your grandchildren with something more than toys they will outgrow. Now, Woodmen has the answer.

You can give your grandchildren the security and protection of a Woodmen life insurance certificate. It is a gift that will keep giving. One that they will never outgrow.

The cash value of your grandchildren's certificates could help them pay for an education, make a down payment on a home or provide security for their future families.

While the cash value builds, your grandchildren, ages 8-15, can enjoy Ranger lodge activities, hours of fun at Woodmen summer camps and participate in community service activities.

If you are looking for a special gift your grandchildren can use long after they have outgrown their toys, ask your Woodmen representative about the Grandparent Gift.

Q. I've seen several drip coffeepots made of china in my travels. I think they were made by Hall. They seem fragile to be coffeepots. What do you know about them?

A. During World War II, many consumer items were rationed because they were needed for the war effort. Aluminum was one of them. The Enterprise Aluminum Co. of Massillon, Ohio, stopped making the aluminum parts of china coffeepots for Hall.

Hall's engineers quickly came up with the idea of an all[china drip coffeepot. The pots have four pieces: The base, lid and dripper and a diffuser, which was placed on the inside.

Unfortunately, the pots couldn't keep coffee warm, and they had a tendency to chip or crack.

Hall made the pots in 1943 and 1944, when aluminum again became available for consumer use.

Complete-pottery coffeepots in good condition are hard to find.

Q. I've been collecting flatware marked with the names of railroads, hotels, restaurants, etc. Some of it is marked "silver solder." What does that mean?

A. Flatware intended for public use is referred to as "hotel ware." Some of the best quality hotel ware was made of a base metal called "nickel silver," which is composed of copper, zinc and nickel. When making the flatware, pieces were joined by soldering with a mixture of silver and bronze, or silver and zinc. Those pieces were marked "silver solder."

Q. The bottom of my red-and-blue glazed pottery vase is marked with a sketch of a log cabin. Can you identify the maker?

A. Cecil Auman and Jonah Owen operated the Log Cabin Pottery at Guilford College in North Carolina from 1927 through 1932. Auman and Owen were members of prominent North Carolina pottery families.

Pieces with that mark sell for $100 to $250.

Home Tips

EASY SPOT — This tip would be helpful to all delivery people, as well as police, firemen and emergency-vehicle drivers. You would be amazed at how many different places on the house people will have this important piece of hardware situated.

The first place delivery people look is the front door, so if you have an outside storm/screen door, the number should be on the outside door.

People should walk out to the curb, turn around and see if they can see the number from there. If they don't live on a busy street, they should walk out to the middle of the street or even across the street and see if they can see their house number.

It's amazing how many people will spend hundreds or maybe thousands of dollars to have a house painted, resided, even remodeled with an enclosed porch or an awning and never think twice about moving the house number to where it can be easily spotted. John T., Arkadelphia, Ark.

CLEAN MIRROR — When my daughters became teenagers, they started doing their own hair in the bathroom. They used hair spray and it left a mist on the mirror. Most commercial cleaners didn't clean it.

Out of desperation one day, I tried using rubbing alcohol on it and it came off so easily. I hope this helps other moms with daughters! Jill G., Bloomfield, N.J.

QUEEN VICTORIA: SYMBOL OF AN ERA

On June 20, 1837, King William IV of England died. Victoria, barely 18, ascended the throne. After a strange childhood in which Victoria was isolated from other children yet never allowed to spend a moment alone, her first act as queen was to boot her mother from their shared bedroom. Scarcely five feet tall, Victoria was quick-tempered and stubborn. Yet, she was completely dedicated to the throne. After generations of family excesses, she vowed to be a "good" monarch. The British were thrilled.

According to March's Biography magazine, Victoria relied heavily on Lord Melbourne, her Whig Prime Minister, who taught her the workings of government. Two years later, when Melbourne resigned to make way for Sir Robert Peel and the Conservatives, Victoria refused to dismiss her Whig ladies of the bedchamber. In what was called the "bedchamber crisis," Peele felt unable to take office and Melbourne remained.

The young queen bowed to pressures to marry and produce heirs. She was betrothed to her cousin, Albert, with whom she was smitten years earlier. Initially, Albert was not involved in governing. As the queen became preoccupied with raising nine children, Albert's role grew. He became her most trusted and constant adviser.

During their 21 years together, Victoria and Albert weathered much, ranging from the Crimean War and assassination attempts (seven in all) to the intellectual shortcomings of heir Albert Edward ("Bertie"). In 1861, Albert caught typhoid and died. The most famous widow in history was inconsolable, choosing to wear no color but black for the rest of her life. She isolated herself among Albert's favorite haunts until then Prime Minister Benjamin Disraeli convinced her to return to her duties.

As she aged, the longest reigning British monarch became the very symbol of her country. When she died in 1901 at 81, her name and her reign became one.

Teleparty Set To Help Fight Heart Disease

A fund-raising event, the annual Teleparty, has been announced by First United National Bank. The American Heart Association is the benefactor of this event to be held on Tuesday, March 24.

Staff members of First United participate in the Teleparty by contacting last year's donors and new donors throughout Garrett County to ask for pledges to help the AHA fight heart disease and stroke.

The focus of the AHA this year is women and heart disease. "Many people are unaware of the fact the 53 percent of all deaths due to cardiovascular disease are women," stated Jay M. Jack, AHA area director.

There are risk factors for heart disease which can be controlled, he explained. "Each year our area counties loose hundreds to the number one killer in the U.S. Many of these deaths could have been prevented through education and behavioral changes," Jacks said.

The Teleparty team will be contacting county residents but may not be able to reach everyone who would wish to donate. Those who would like to pledge funds to the American Heart Association may call First United National Bank at 301-334-4715, ext. 310, or the AHA at 1-800-684-1000.

Booklet For Victims Of Domestic Violence Published by GCCW

The Garrett County Commission for Women (GCCW) has announced the publication of Pathways to Freedom: Help for Victims of Domestic Violence, a booklet that provides information on domestic violence and what options are available for its victims.

"Pathways is a comprehensive booklet that defines domestic violence, details the court system and legal process as related to domestic violence, and describes domestic violence services in Garrett County," said GCCW spokesperson Susan Athey-Oxford. "It was developed as a proactive response to victims' rights to be informed and to seek and obtain the services that best meet their individual needs."

Initiated by GCCW, which then collaborated with cosponsoring entities the Domestic Violence Sexual Assault Resource Center and the Garrett County Department of Social Services, Pathways is authenticated and endorsed by the Garrett County Family Violence Coalition. The principal layout and design was completed by Lucia Ayers, MSW, and clerical support was provided by the customers of Garrett WORKS, the local welfare-to-work initiative directed by Leslie Crosco, Esq.

The first printing of 2,000 copies will be distributed to the county's primary health and human service agencies, and programs dealing specifically with issues related to domestic violence. Pathways will be maintained on a Zero-tolerance Domestic Violence Website currently under construction.

For further information about Pathways, interested persons may write to the GCCW, PO Box 623, Oakland, MD 21550, or E-mail sao@gcnet.net.

Potted Plants Reap Drug Conviction For Deer Park Man

A Deer Park man was sentenced to two months in jail on a charge of possession of marijuana that stemmed from his arrest when police found several marijuana plants growing inside and outside his house.

William Thomas Sachs Jr., 37, had pleaded guilty in his Garrett County District Court hearing to a charge of possession of marijuana. An additional charge of possession of marijuana with the intent to distribute was not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

Sachs had been arrested in September by members of a drug task force unit of the Maryland State Police who were investigating allegations that Sachs was growing marijuana at his home. When officers told Sachs that they could see marijuana plants through the windows, he consented to a search of his residence. Inside the home detectives found 13 marijuana plants, and one was found growing in the garden outside.

In other district court news, Jason Anthony Whitaker, 21, Baltimore, pleaded guilty to second-degree assault stemming from a July fight at the Honi-Honi Bar at Deep Creek Lake. Whitaker was handed a 30-day suspended sentence and a $100 fine, placed on six months of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 60 hours of community service.

Whitaker had been arrested by the Maryland State Police as he fled the scene of the fight on July 3. A search of his vehicle as he was being arrested uncovered a quantity of suspected marijuana and drug paraphernalia as well. Additional charges of possession of marijuana and paraphernalia were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

Neil Ray Savage, 30, Oakland, pleaded guilty to misdemeanor theft and was sentenced to seven days in jail. His charge stemmed from his January arrest by Garrett County Sheriff's deputies for allegedly stealing license plates off a truck on Cranesville Road and putting them on his vehicle.

A stet ruling was handed to Michael Paul Broadwater, 20, Grantsville, who faced a charge of felony malicious destruction of property. Broadwater had been arrested by state troopers after he reportedly confessed to flattening the tires on another person's vehicle. A condition of the stet is that Broadwater complete 40 hours of community service.

Motions to revise previous convictions for possession of marijuana were granted in the cases of Robert William Telegraphis, 26, Bentleyville, Pa., and Leo Mark Lassooy, 26, Roscoe, Pa. Both cases will now reflect a probation before judgment.

Kenneth Lee Stinson, 39, Oakland, who faced one count of second-degree rape, two counts of indecent exposure, and four counts each of second-degree assault, second-degree sex offense, and third-degree sex offense, was not prosecuted on any of the charges. Stinson had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in November as a result of allegations that he had sexually assaulted an acquaintance several times over a several-month period.

Gregory J. Moats, 38, Rowlesburg, W.Va., was not prosecuted on a charge of fraud stemming from his February arrest by sheriff's deputies for allegedly attempting to keep a Sega video game in his possession that had been rented from Reel Video.

LOCAL WOMEN AMONG STATE'S FIRST CERTIFIED SPECIALISTS — The Maryland Addictions Counselor Certification Board (MACCB) has certified 123 Marylanders as specialists in alcohol, tobacco, and other drug prevention. This is the first group of professionals to be certified in Maryland as prevention specialists, and three of those certified are local residents. Pictured above, left to right, are Gail Dever, APS; Nancy Brady, CPS; and Donna Knox, APS. The women are from the Garrett County Health Department. Sandy Wilson, prevention chairperson of MACCB, said certification is important for two reasons. "It's important that the public knows the quality of services they are receiving, and it provides a structure that supports the on-going professional development of prevention specialists," Wilson said. Certification standards include the mastery of alcohol, tobacco, and other drug prevention knowledge, and demonstrated competency, skill, work experience and commitment to high ethical standards as defined by the International Certification and Reciprocity Consortium. MACCB offers two levels of professional certification in prevention: associate prevention specialist (APS) and certified prevention specialist (CPS). Wilson said prevention specialists concentrate on developing healthy individuals, families, and communities through research, program development, strategic planning, education, training, grant/proposal writing, marketing, advocacy, and evaluation.

Miss Glotfelty And Mister O'Connell Exchange Vows In December Ceremony

Michelle Lea Glotfelty and Bryan Tucker O'Connell were united in marriage on December 27, 1997, at the Loch Lynn Church of God, with the Reverend Robert H. Fletcher officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Michael and Debbi Glotfelty, Oakland, and the groom is the son of Michael and Becky O'Connell, Williamsburg, Va.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white tissue taffeta. The fitted bodice had a pearl-edged sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves with pearl-edged, tulip-like overlap. The basque waistline held a full skirt sweeping to a chapel train. Heavily sequined and pearled milano lace embellished the bodice, skirt, and train. She wore a tiara-style veil made of white pearls, a pearl bracelet, and her mother's diamond earrings. As a gift to her from the groom's grandmother, Frankye Edwards, the bride wore a cameo necklace/pendant which the groom's great-grandmother, Sarah Elizabeth Tucker, had worn when she married in 1902.

The bride carried a bouquet of white silk peace lilies accented with purple and lavender larkspur, and white baby roses. The bouquets were made by the bride's mother. All corsages were made by the bride's aunt, Sandy Fitzwater.

Serving as maid of honor was Paula Dove and the bridesmaid was Jennifer Harvey, both of whom wore long purple gowns and carried bouquets of larkspur and baby roses. Flower girl was Nicole Glotfelty, the bride's cousin, and Gavin Murphy, also a cousin of the bride, was the ring bearer. Dawn Upton attended the guest book.

Serving as best man for the groom was his brother, Matt O'Connell, and Shawn Strawser was the groomsman. Michael Glotfelty Jr., brother of the bride, and Tim Upton served as ushers. The groom wore a black long-tailed tuxedo with a white vest and tie. The bride's father wore a black tuxedo with black vest and tie, while the best man and groomsman wore black tuxedos with matching purple vest and tie.

The wedding ceremony was videotaped by Terry Murphy and Theresa Ringer, an uncle and aunt of the bride. John C. Skipper took the pictures, while Brad Stewart operated the sound system.

The reception followed in the church hall, where the meal was prepared by the bride, her mother, her grandmother, Jean Peterman, and a special friend of the bride, Betty Friend. The cake was made by the bride's mother, with the assistance of Amelia Wolf, another friend of the bride's family. It was decorated with ruffles of white icing, and all three tiers were accented with purple scallops. The cake was cut and served by Ms. Wolf and Ms. Friend.

Songs chosen by the bride and groom were Rod Stewart's version of "Have I Told You Lately," and George Strait's version of "I Cross My Heart."

The bride and groom honeymooned at Deep Creek Lake and left the next day for Fort Hood in Killeen, Texas, where they set up residence.

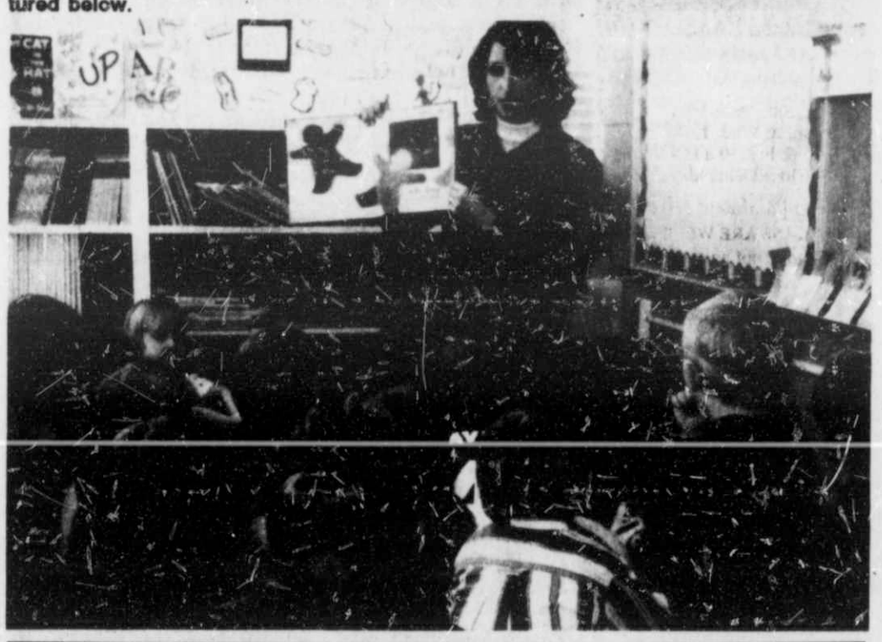
CELEBRATING SEUSS IN SCHOOLS - First grade students at Crellin Elementary enjoyed celebrations of Dr. Seuss's birthday this month starting with a visit from the Cat in the Hat himself (resource teacher Carole Ann Lovett). The children explored three forms of matter while making "oobleck," cooked-up green eggs and ham, made hats like the one wore by the well-known cat, and worked with fourth/fifth graders to illustrate a new book cover. They were also entertained by guest readers who were participating in the Rising Star program. In the photo above first grade student Mikella Hershman, center, is read to by older students Amanda Herman and Bryan Sisler. Garrett County Commissioner Wayne Johnson, right, was a guest reader at the school as was Pam Neal, program coordinator of staff development for the school system, pictured below.



STUDENTS READ SEUSS - Students from the Northern High School child care classes traveled to local schools recently sharing the joys of reading Dr. Seuss's books to young children. Included in the Seuss experience were stops at Grantsville, Route 40, and Friendsville elementary schools and Friendsville Head Start center. In the photo above, April Walsh reads from The Cat in the Hat to children at Friendsville Head Start. Below, April Lewis celebrates the birthday of Dr. Seuss by reading to the students at Grantsville Elementary. New GCC Courses Scheduled To Begin Next Week

Three new Garrett Community College credit courses are scheduled to start next week, according to a college spokesperson. These courses are open to current students and other interested persons. No pre-requisites or placement tests are required.

A two-credit course in Personal Wellness (PE 117) will be taught by Ann Wellham, professor of physical education, health, and outdoor education, on Mondays and Wednesdays from 3 to 4:15 p.m. in Room 161 from March 23 to May 6. This course, which includes both lecture and application, is designed to develop an appreciation for the importance of lifelong wellness and physical fitness activities in every lifestyle. Students will plan, implement, and evaluate their own personal health fitness program, considering the basic components of fitness, their own current lifestyle, nutritional plan, exercise regimen, causes of stress, and risk factors in prevention of cardiovascular disease. According to Wellham, the application component of the course will consist of vigorous activity to assess flexibility, cardiovascular endurance, and muscular strength and endurance.

Another two-credit course, Keyboarding and Document Development (LS 115) will be taught by Tammy Manthos, associate professor of office technology, on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10:10 to 11:40 p.m. beginning March 24 and ending May 19. In this course students will learn or improve typing skills and basic word processing needed to produce reports and business letters.

A one-credit course in Lifeguarding (PE 260) is scheduled to be taught by Deb Clatterbuck at the B&R pool beginning March 30. A qualifying session for interested students is set for March 28 at 4 p.m. Ms. Clatterbuck will then meet with students who qualify to determine class times.

GCC Ag Alumna Rexroad Receives Award At WVU

Tiffany Rexroad, a recent graduate of Garrett Community College's Agricultural Management Program, has received the Presidential Award for Excellence in Scholarship at West Virginia University. The Bruceton Mills, W.Va., native is a student in WVU's Agricultural Education program, where she earned a perfect 4.0 grade point average over the 1997 fall semester.

"All of the courses Tiffany took at GCC were accepted as transfer credits at WVU," said GCC agricultural instructor Willie Lantz. "I'm not surprised to see her excel. She is a good student, is very receptive to the learning process, and was a leader in all of our activities here on campus."

While enrolled at GCC, Rexroad served as vice president of the Agriculture Club, a judge for a dairy show in Louisville, Ky., and as a member of the Maryland Student Legislature.

Project completion includes submitting a feed and management record and exhibiting two bird samples.

Those wishing to participate or who need information should call the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

Ag Panel Looks At Crop Ins.

Farm Bureau and other farm groups expressed qualified support last week for Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Dick Lugar's (R-Ind.) proposal to reform the federal crop insurance program.

Many agricultural producers have recently turned to crop insurance to provide a safety net. But although the crop insurance program has been reworked to better fit the needs of today's agriculture, problems remain—including a shortfall in funding and the need for a permanent funding mechanism.

Last year, Congress crafted a short-term solution for funding crop insurance delivery expenses for 1998 by redirecting funds from other agricultural discretionary spending accounts to the crop insurance account. Estimated administrative and operating expenses are projected to cost $200 million per year between 1999 and 2003, for a total of approximately $1 billion.

Lugar has maintained that "there should be no money without reform" of the crop insurance program, and last week held a hiring in the Senate Agriculture Committee to discuss reform proposals. Dee Vaughan of Dumas, Texas, vice president of the Lone Star Corn Growers Association, testified on behalf of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the American Soybean Association, National Association of Wheat Growers, National Barley Growers Association, National Corn Growers Association, National Cotton Council, and the National Grain Sorghum Producers.

Vaughan pointed out producers' concerns that affordable crop insurance products continue to be available and that inadequate funding could limit program delivery. Congress must find adequate offsets, he said, to fund a majority of the delivery costs through the federal crop insurance program rather than through annual appropriations. The practice of redirecting funds from other agricultural discretionary spending accounts is unsuitable, he said. The Agriculture Department proposes funding the $200 million for 1999 by reducing the export enhancement program and cotton marketing payments.

"We need a more permanent, mandatory spending solution," Vaughan said. Regarding the $1 billion shortfall in delivery expenses through 2003, Vaughan said the groups believe that a "workable solution that shares the 'cost' equitably among all parties with an interest in the crop insurance program—insurance providers, agents, producers, and the federal government—can be found."

The farm groups called for "partial privatization" to achieve budget offsets and enhance competition to reduce overall insurance costs to producers. Lugar's plan eliminates federal insurance policies, except in areas where private products are not sufficiently available.

"This requires a leap of faith that we are not prepared to make without further assurances that the private sector will offer competitive products at affordable prices for higher risk crops in all geographic areas," Vaughan said.

New crop insurance products such as crop revenue coverage and revenue assurance, a pilot program, are examples of the private sector's ability to be creative and responsive to growers' needs for new crop insurance products, he said. Vaughan said Lugar's proposal to disallow new crop insurance pilot projects or policies for minor crops raises concerns. He said the producer groups are not convinced that the private sector will address the needs of all crops. He urged the committee to request a status report of all pilot projects currently under review. The committee can then "make an informed decision regarding the importance of implementing these pilot projects," Vaughan said.

The farm groups also support efforts to disclose the total premium cost to producers, including administrative payments to insurance providers, Vaughan said.

"Unlike other insurance products that include all of the costs in the premium quoted to consumers, federal crop insurance premiums are confusing and incomplete," he said.

Genetic Control of Corn Earworm

Sweet corn growers will soon have sweet corn varieties that will combat corn earworm and the European corn borer. Novartis Seeds Inc. has genetically engineered seed that incorporates the naturally occurring protein Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt) to fight off these two main pests of sweet corn. Several trials in 1997 showed the Bt-protected plants to be highly effective against both insects.

Sweet corn accounts for only 1 percent of the country's corn acreage, but growing it uses about 40 percent of the total pounds of insecticides sprayed on corn for lepidopteran control. Of course the seed will cost more, but saving in spray cost averages between $35 and $160 per acre. Customers do not like to find the corn earworm in their corn. In fact, many retailers have a zero tolerance policy on corn earworm.

Time to Prune Fruit Trees

If you want to have nice size fruit it is essential that you prune your fruit trees. Ideally, pruning should be an annual management practice. If you're interested in learning the procedures for pruning, contact my office (301-334-6960) for printed materials.

Planting Asparagus

Asparagus is a popular home garden perennial vegetable. It is one of the first vegetables harvested from the garden each year. Once you have established a planting, it will last for many years.

Plant asparagus early in spring. You can start asparagus from seed, but germination is slow and difficult; therefore, I recommend gardeners buy the rooted plants to be set out. Choose large, one-year-old crowns. They transplant easier, produce plants as vigorous as two-year-old crowns and are cheaper. I prefer the Jersey Giant variety. When planting:

* Space the asparagus crowns 12 inches to 18 inches apart in the row. When you want more than one row, space rows 4 feet to 6 feet apart.

* Traditionally, crowns are planted in a deep trench or furrow. Recent research shows no benefit from planting crowns deeper than 4 inches to 6 inches in the trench. Spread out the fleshy roots at the bottom of the furrow. Lightly cover the crown with soil. Gradually fill in the furrow as the shoots emerge. Never completely bury the developing asparagus fern.

* By mid-season of the planting year, a ridge forms that is 4 inches to 6 inches high and 2 feet wide over the asparagus crowns. Maintain this ridge for the duration of the planting.

* On heavy soils, there may be some benefit to planting asparagus in raised beds for better drainage and soil aeration.

World Guernsey Conference To Be Held In U.S.

The American Guernsey Association and U.S. Guernsey breeders invite all dairy enthusiasts to attend the 9th World Guernsey Cattle Federation Conference. The conference will be held in Louisville, Ken., in conjunction with the American Guernsey Association's National Convention March 26 through 30.

The World Guernsey Cattle Federation conferences are an opportunity for breeders around the world to share ideas and information. Several educational seminars will be offered during the conference. In addition, participants will visit many of the top Guernsey herds in the U.S., where they can observe many of the best management, feeding and breeding programs in the world.

The pre-conference and post-conference tours offer a unique way to tour the country. The eastern states offer historic sites; the midwest states offer Amish communities where many large dairies are housed; and southern hospitality will be experienced at the conference meetings in Louisville. After the conference concludes, tours will be taken through the bluegrass region of Kentucky, on through the Old South, and end in Disney World in central Florida.

The American Guernsey Association is the national organization for the registration and promotion of Guernsey cattle and is headquartered in Reynoldsburg, Ohio. For more information, those interested may contact Becky Payne, director of promotion, at 614-864-2409.

Celebrate Agriculture

by Joyce Spicher

If you eat, you'll want to celebrate the week of March 15-21. Those are the dates of National Agriculture Week. This year's theme is "Growing Tomorrows." And each of us have a stake in agriculture's todays and tomorrows!

My husband, Daryl and I, along with our grown sons and their families, own and operate a family farm in north central Montana. We are dependent upon the weather to grow the crop, but also dependent upon everything from political climates to world stock markets to obtain a price for the wheat we raise.

American agriculture has much to be proud of in 1998. But the industry certainly is not one to rest upon its laurels. We continue to make advancements in every area. We are proud to present to the American people the safest, most abundant, and most affordable food supply on the face of the earth.

But that's not all—22 million American workers produce, process, sell, and trade the nation's food and fiber. Four point six million of the 22 million live on farms—slightly less than two percent of the population. Consumers spend $547 billion for foods originating on U.S. farms and another $100 billion is generated annually in exports to foreign markets—that's BLACK ink on our nation's ledger and a large contribution to commerce.

Farmers and ranchers are indeed proud of their contribution to America. We will continue to work and care for the land, water, and air that provides for us. Technology and agriculture go hand in hand. (Tillage practices to conserve precious soil, computers that assist in applying only amounts of crop protection agents necessary, satellite systems to help diagnose soil problems and needs are all part of American agriculture in 1998.)

Just as you work to leave the world a better place for your children, today's farmers and ranchers will do everything they can to protect, preserve, and improve the land they plan to hand down to their children and grandchildren. In order to do that, they too, must realize a profit on their investment.

Yes, March 15-21 is National Agriculture Week—join the nation and CELEBRATE! And as you sit down to dinner, remember the farmer and rancher who provided the food.

Joyce Spicher is currently serving as chairperson for the Agriculture Council of America (ACA). Spicher is a past president of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) and lives on the family farm near Hingham, Mont. Spicher has lived all her life in rural Montana and has been involved in community affairs including education, economic development, and rural health issues.

New Strawberry Production Guide Now Available

A new release from the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES) is available for strawberry growers or advisors to growers. Strawberry Production Guide for the Northeast, Midwest, and Eastern Canada, NRAES-88, is the most comprehensive production guide ever produced for strawberry growers, according to the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. The guide focuses on production practices popular in northeast North America, but it contains pertinent information for anyone involved in growing berries.

The Strawberry Production Guide is 162 pages long and contains 14 chapters, 37 figures, 47 tables, and 115 full-color photographs. It provides up-to-date, in-depth coverage of every aspect of strawberry culture—from preparing the production site to harvesting and marketing. It is sure to be a valuable resource for both experienced and novice growers. The guide comes in a three-ring binder.

Chapter 1 traces the history of the modern cultivated strawberry and provides a detailed discussion of the structure and development of the plant and the development of flower clusters and fruit. Chapters 2 through 4 focus on the basics of production.

Chapters 5 through 7 cover the management of temperature, water, and nutrients.

The management of troublesome pests, diseases, physiological disorders, and weeds is reviewed in chapters 8 through 10. Many of the color photographs in the book will help readers identify pests and symptoms of diseases and disorders. Several strategies are offered for weed control before and after planting, either with or without chemicals.

Spray equipment for applying crop protectants and nutrients is reviewed in Chapter 11. Several types of sprayer nozzles are discussed at length. Methods for calibrating powered and hand-held sprayers are also covered. Chapters 12 and 13 give tips for harvesting, handling, transporting, and marketing fresh fruit.

The final chapter, budgeting, guides readers through sample budgets that reflect typical costs as well as costs that many growers overlook. The budget spreadsheets used in the chapter are provided on a floppy disk included with the book at no extra cost. Growers can adjust the values in the spreadsheets to reflect their actual costs, and the program will automatically calculate the resulting effect on total costs and profits. Microsoft Excel, version 4.0 or higher, or a compatible spreadsheet program is required to access the spreadsheets.

The book also features a key to common strawberry pests and problems, a glossary, a table of conversion factors, and information about membership in the North American Strawberry Growers Association.

The guide was written by 16 experts representing eight universities. It was edited by Marvin Pritts, a horticulturist with the Department of Fruit and Vegetable Science at Cornell University, and David Handley, an extension horticulturist with the University of Maine at Highmoor Farm.

The Strawberry Production Guide for the Northeast, Midwest, and Eastern Canada, NRAES-88, is available for $45 per copy (plus shipping and handling) from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, New York 14853-5701. Growing your own garden plants from seed may take some extra work, but it does have its advantages.

You'll have a much wider choice of species and cultivars since most garden centers have limited space and tend to carry primarily the plants that sell quickly. Rather than having to buy a dozen of one type of tomato when you only need one or two, you can grow just the amount of each plant you need. Or you can grow five flats of flowers all in the same color for that border garden you've been planning.

On the other hand, growing plants from seed does present some challenges, including finding enough space with the appropriate environment for healthy plants. They'll need bright light; high humidity; warm, but not hot, temperature; and good air circulation. If your space for plant production is limited, plan on buying the more commonly found plants from the garden center and save the home production space for the special, hard to find items you can only obtain as seed.

Start with high-quality, fresh seed; look for the freshness date on the packet. Almost any container can be used for planting, as long as excess water can drain out of the bottom. Use a fine textured, well-drained media, such as a peat moss vermiculite mixture. Seeds need high relative humidity for good germination, so place a plastic bag around the container until plants are growing. Too much humidity also can be a problem, so poke a few holes in the plastic to allow ventilation.

Be sure to check your seedlings frequently for moisture needs. The planting media should be kept reasonably moist throughout the germination period. Water gently to avoid physically damaging the tender seedlings. Once plants are up and growing, allow the media to dry slightly between waterings.

Most home growers get into trouble after the seeds come up by not supplying the plants with enough light. Low light causes plants to become spindly and weak, so place them in as sunny a location as possible. Use artificial lights if necessary.

Proper timing is crucial if you want the transplant to be the right size at planting time. Seeds of tomatoes, peppers, and eggplant should be started about seven weeks before your outdoor planting date. Pumpkins, melons, and squash should be started about four weeks before planting outdoors. Flower seeds will need anywhere from four to 14 weeks, depending on the species. Most seed packets have this type of information on the back.

What's In Store For Tomorrow?

Thanks to the American farmer, there will be even more food and fiber to meet the global demands in the future. That's because farmers are working just as hard to protect our natural resources for tomorrow as they are to increase production today.

Farm organizations are creating programs to maintain and improve air, water and land quality. There's a reason farmers are the best conservationists and environmentalists, they plan to pass their land on to their kids. There's no stronger motivation for being good stewards of our resources. That makes for good todays and better tomorrows.

Garrettinfo Line Lists Services For Children, Youth, Families

The Garrett County Local Management Board/Office for Children, Youth, and Families announces the start-up of an information and referral service for families in Garrett County. The Garrettinfo Line is a multi-agency project coordinated by the Garrett Information Centers Committee. At the Children's Summit in March 1995, the community identified information about programs for children and families as a priority need. In response to this identified need, the online Garrett County Family Services Directory with over 340 program listings has been available since March of 1997. The Internet address for the garrettinfo web site is http://www.gcnet.net/garrettinfo/.

According to a committee spokesperson, the purpose of the Garrettinfo Line information and referral service is to give up-to-date, accurate information about services for children, youth, and families to members of the community. Information available includes: contact person, a description of services, location of services, ages served, referral method, income eligibility (for some programs) and what papers to bring when one applies for a program. The Garrettinfo Line is for routine, non-emergency information. All emergencies should go through 911, and this is not a counseling service, the spokesperson said.

The numbers for the Garrettinfo Line are 301-334-4998 or 1-800-747-2732. The central telephone line is located at the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families. Calls will be forwarded to participating agencies. The GC Health Department, the GC Department of Social Services, the GC Community Action Agency, and the Garrett Information Center at GCC will each take a turn at staffing the I&R service one day a week. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The I&R service will not operate during state holidays or on weekends.

The Garrett Information Centers Committee is currently working on putting an online Family Activities Directory on the Garrettinfo web site. Over 120 family activities programs have been identified. Before web site posting, the sponsor reviews the information, and a signature giving permission to post the program description is obtained.

For additional information about how to get a program or service listed in either the Family Services or the Family Activities directory, persons may contact Susan Athey-Oxford at OCYF at 301-334-1189 or Lucia Ayers at 301-387-3135.

OAKLAND/MTN. LAKE PARK LIONS SUPPORT GCCF - The Garrett Community College Foundation (GCCF) recently received a donation from the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club to fund the Bill Ravenscroft Memorial Scholarship, which it has sponsored for many years. GCCF advancement officer Bretta Reinhard, left, is presented with the donation by Jay Bateson, president of the club. "GCC is an important asset to this county," Bateson commented. The Bill Ravenscroft Memorial Scholarship will be awarded to a Garrett County resident who demonstrates financial need and meets other criteria outlined in the GCCF scholarship booklet, which may be obtained at GCC and at all local libraries. The scholarship application deadline is Wednesday, April 1.

D.A.R.E. Educates County Youth On Dangers Of Drugs

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office handled 52 reported CDS (controlled dangerous substance) cases that resulted in 73 arrests in 1997; when combined with similar arrests made by Barrack W of the Maryland State Police, there were a total of 99 CDS arrests in Garrett County last year, 10 of which involved juveniles.

According to Sheriff P.R. Sanders Jr., this was "10 too many" juvenile drug arrests. "It's very important that the Sheriff's Office reach out to our young people and show them the dangers of illegal narcotics and underage drinking," Sheriff Sanders said. "That's why I am a strong advocate of the D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) Program."

The D.A.R.E. Program was started by the Los Angeles Police Department in the 1980s, and has grown to become a nationwide initiative. D.A.R.E. brings police officers to where the kids are — their classrooms. D.A.R.E. arms young people with the facts they will need to make an educated decision about drug use, and gets them to think about the hard choices they have to make in today's world. Since its adoption here by the Sheriff's Office in 1992, the D.A.R.E. program has reached over 2,200 Garrett County fifth and sixth graders, some of whom are now high school seniors preparing for graduation.

The Sheriff's Office is the only agency that provides the D.A.R.E. Program to schools in Garrett County, including Bloomington Elementary and Northern and Southern middle schools. Since its local inception, D.A.R.E.'s instructors have been deputies Randy Shaffer, Pat Kelly, and the current instructor, Deputy 1st Class Dave McLaughlin. Instructors undergo two weeks of training in the teaching and delivery of the program to their young audiences, and then spend four weeks in classrooms with the children.

"This is great interaction for both the students and myself," said DFC McLaughlin. "The young men and women see that we as police officers are human, just as they are. We're out of our cruisers and they see and speak to us one on one. I feel if we stop just one young person from trying drugs or alcohol, the whole program is a success," he observed.

Crediting a team effort as one of the reasons for D.A.R.E.'s accomplishments here in Garrett County, DFC McLaughlin said "We've been able to bring this program to our young people with the help of the Board of Education, and especially the teachers in these schools. I'd like to thank Mrs. Nichols at Bloomington Elementary, Mrs. Glotfelty, Mrs. Hershberger, Mrs. Brenneman, Mrs. Raley, and Mrs. Dye at Northern Middle, and Ms. Zollner at Southern Middle for their help and outstanding support of the program," he said.

DFC McLaughlin also commended Sheriff Sanders for his strong support, and the Oakland Elks Lodge #2481 for its financial contributions that aided in the purchase of drug and alcohol awareness handouts and materials.

"The D.A.R.E. Program has been a success due to the fact that we've had outstanding support from the community," Sanders agreed. "I'm sure the support will continue, because the results can last for a lifetime."

Social Security

WORKING BENEFICIARIES SHOULD KNOW WHEN TO REPORT EARNINGS

by Thomas W. Armbruster
Cumberland Dist. SS Office

Although a recent change in the law makes it unnecessary for most Social Security beneficiaries who work and earn over certain limits to file annual earnings reports with Social Security, you should be sure to determine if you are required to file one.

Under the new procedure, Social Security uses the earnings information it gets from the wage reports and self-employment tax returns filed with the Internal Revenue Service. Benefits are adjusted for people who exceed the earnings limits. However, sometimes the earnings information on the W-2 or the self-employment return is not correct for purposes of applying the earnings limits. This could happen in the following situations:

- Some or all of the earnings shown on your W-2 were for work that you did prior to the year of the report.
- You earned wages above the exempt amount and you also had a net loss in self-employment.
- You have wages reported on a W-2 that you will include on a self-employment tax return (e.g., ministers).
- You filed a self-employment tax return but you did not perform services in your business.
- You are a farmer and you get Federal Agricultural Program payments or you have income from carry-over crops.
- You file self-employment returns on a fiscal year basis.

If any of these special situations apply to you, you should contact Social Security after the close of the tax year and give us the information we need to correctly adjust your benefits.

When your earnings are expected to exceed the earnings limits during the year, Social Security is required to withhold some benefits. You may receive a letter in August asking you to submit an estimate of your earnings for the year, or to update an estimate that you previously submitted. Social Security will pay you benefits during the year based on your estimate.

At the end of the year, when we know exactly how much you earned, we can determine the exact amount of benefits you were due and make any necessary adjustments. If you were paid too little, we'll issue a payment.

CELEBRATING OUR SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY

To the Editor:

This is an election year, and we need those people who have apathy to get registered to vote. Those are the ones who say that all politicians are corrupt. Well, it is time for them to stand up and vote instead of complain.

In the early 90s, I as a sportsmen's representative was contacted and told about a land exchange that was going on with Potomac Garrett. It was talked about at our meetings for a while and the discussion abated after we asked questions of our elected representatives and the Department of Natural Resources. Everything was kept quiet and we knew nothing about what was going on behind closed doors in General Services, with the DNR and our representatives. They knew that if this became public, there would be a lot of explaining to do, especially in an election year. They wanted this done before Governor Shaefer left office in 1994.

Also we had been promised open hearings on Rocky Gap at the same time and when did we have them?

In August of 1994 I was running for county commissioner for Garrett County, and some of the candidates were at a meeting of Allegany and Garrett sportsmen at the Haystack Sportsmen's Club. I had a chance to talk and I told the sportsmen that the land exchange for the Potomac Garrett to have mining under it was still in the works, and also that the state was still after the Youghiogheny Corridor and if need be will take it under eminent domain through General Services.

Delegate Edwards was at the meeting and stated that he could not believe that I had heard of such a thing, that the land exchange that I referred to with Potomac Garrett was off the table and was not even being considered. In December 1994 the exchange was signed by the governor, and Delegate Edwards and Senator Hafer both approved the deal.

When I saw that our county was to have an "ethics" hearing on Commissioner Braskey over having a conflict of interest in January 1997, I felt that it was fair to do this. He was receiving two paychecks, one from the county and another from the state. In an April issue of The Republican newspaper, Commissioner Braskey announced that he would resign in June 1997. In the very same issue they announced that they were canceling the ethics hearings. I cannot understand why these hearings would have been canceled if there were reasons to call for them to begin with. He would have received six months of double checks.

If you feel that public and state property belongs to everyone, then you have a right to register to vote and should replace all elected representatives this year. We can no longer allow them to continue to trade off our state properties for commercial businesses to profit and pay no taxes on them and say that it is job creation. That's a bunch of bull.

We do not have a two-party system in Allegany and Garrett counties. We have one party and that is the "Republicans." These clique members decide on who shall run unopposed and they win because we feel our votes don't count. They are right, because of voter apathy. Please, let's work to preserve and maintain Garrett County for our grandchildren. We must register and vote. Let's kick them all out of office this year and gain our county and state back for the citizens.

This is just the beginning. If this state and our representatives were working for a stock market, they would all be indicted for insider trading.

Old Frostburg Road

To the Editor:

We recently had the dubious distinction of being the last people to witness the demise of one of Garrett County's dwindling cultural and historic ties to its rich historic past. To say that what has happened "is a crying shame" would not be an overstatement; but in light of other changes that I have seen, it is not surprising.

The sad thing is that not only were we (family and friends) the last, we were the only customers there. I mention this fact because, it seems to me, that with just a little effort a crowd could have been assembled to give this place a more dignified send-off.

We had made reservations to have dinner and toast my son and our friend Harry (both Wisp ski patrollers) for being the only two people to successfully complete the water cross at Winterfest this year. When we arrived, we were told that this was the last meal to be served in this restaurant; it was going to be remodeled and reopened as a "more modern" establishment.

Stated on the front page of the menu: "You are seated in the heart of WISP! Our German 'Rathskellar Restaurant' was built in the spirit of Old World Germany, but with the talents and materials of our mountaintop community. When WISP's ski trails were cut, the trees were hewn into beams and logs for the walls, and some were carved by hand into barposts and barrel heads. The wall decorations were handpainted, and even the door hinges were fashioned locally."

Like everything else, the decision to close it probably was made based on "the bottom line." It seems like money is the driving force behind many of the decisions made in the county.

The Bavarian Room is no more.

To the Editor:

On April 3, the Garrett County Commission for Women (GCCW) and the Business and Professional Women of Garrett County (BPWGC) will join hundreds of women across the United States in a national day of action against unfair pay. The day marks the point — three and a half months into the new year — when women's earnings finally equal what man in comparable jobs made in the previous calendar year. Women have to work sixteen and a half months on average, to earn the same pay that men earn in one calendar year.

On a national level, women on average earn only 74 cents (65 cents for African-American women and 57 cents for Latin women) for each dollar a man earns. The pay gap for women in Maryland mirrors the national figures, with women's wages shortchanged by 26%.

The Wage Gap: It's not a penny-ante problem. Collectively, women lose hundreds of millions of dollars — and by some estimates, billions — each year. That hurts America's economy.

Unfair pay practices should not be viewed as a woman's issues. Women's paychecks are critical to the stability of families. When a woman does not get the paycheck she has rightfully earned the quality of life for herself and her family suffers. Families fare better with fair pay.

In Maryland the $9,000 annual wage gap would make a nice contribution to the family budget, pay for one year of college tuition in our university system, and could be reinvested in the local economy.

Over a 30-year career, women and their families lose over a quarter of a million dollars. The pensions of 46% of the workforce are literally slipping through the wage gap. It affects the lifestyle and comfort of families today, and the retirement security tomorrow.

Fair pay takes real change, and we should help to make that change. Legislators should be part of that change by passing a bill in congress to strengthen the Equal Pay Act. Businesses should be part of that by examining their pay practices. And women should be part of that change by knowing their rights, speaking out, and holding legislators and businesses accountable.

GCCW and BPWGC are sponsoring local events to bring to light the disparity in wages. A local essay contest for high school students is underway. In addition to media alerts and contacts with national/state legislators, women are being encouraged to take a 10-minute break on April 3 at 2:55 p.m., the 74% mark to protest the wage disparity.

Sincerely,
Susan Athey-Oxford, Chair
GCCW
June Hesselbach, President
BPWGC

THERE WAS MAGIC IN THE AIR at the after-school program in Grantsville when Morris Resh, a magic practitioner, mystified the children with his sleight of hand. Karen Wood, the after-school program coordinator, pictured right, assisted Resh as the students gathered around to enjoy the mysteries presented. The after-school program, held at the Grantsville Senior Center, is sponsored by Community Action through the HotSpot initiative.

To the Editor:

It's the bottom of the ninth, and both Senator John Hafer and Delegate George Edwards have struck-out, so now the coach send in the team's best hitter. Up to home plate steps Maryland Attorney General Robert A. Zarnock. The opposing team's pitcher delivers a fast ball straight across home plate, as the rookie swings, wildly missing the ball. "Strike one," calls the umpire! The rookie turns with indignation toward the umpire and states, "In my view" a referendum vote by the citizens of Garrett County, on whether or not they want a new interstate highway, would constitute an unconstitutional delegation of legislative power. Any Maryland legislation created that would give a direct vote to the citizens [taxpayers] would likewise be unconstitutional as an "impermissible" [meaning: not to be permitted] delegation of legislative power [control] to the voters of Garrett County and the citizens of Maryland. The umpire looked at the rookie and said, "Tell that to the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team." Legislators in the Pittsburgh area wanted to lay the cost of two new stadiums on the backs of the taxpayers. That pitch didn't fly, and was also a strike-out [Case Law, stare decises] at election time!

It is this writer's opinion that the Maryland legislature shall make no law abridging the freedom to petition [referendum] the [local & state] government for redress of grievance [Interstate Highway Construction Project]. It seems that the 1st Amendment to the Constitution of the United Sates leans toward this legal concept. Under Section 1, 15th Amendment, it states, the right of citizen of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged [meaning: to lessen the rights or authority of "We the People"] by the United States or by any State [including Maryland] on account of previous condition of servitude [since taxpayers work more than three months out of the year to pay their numerous taxes (debt), then we citizens can be considered servants of the government, don't pay your taxes and see what happens]. Under the 14th Amendment, no state [including Maryland] shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges [right to vote] of citizens of the United States.

Finally, it is this writer's opinion that it is starting to get deep in Garrett County and I think it is about time for its citizens to put on their rubberized barn boots.

To the Editor:

Thanks for your generous space given to so many worthy endeavors! I am specifically alluding to the "Mental Health Players" article in Section C1, March 12 issue. We would hope many people would avail themselves of the opportunity to learn more about mental illness, as we move into a new concept of caring for our mentally ill in Garrett County by the way of Mental Health Associates, which is being originated now.

The Mental Health Players performances (two) are free, being sponsored by the Garrett County Alliance for the Mentally Ill and Garrett Community College; students are given co-curricular credits for attending.

The two performances at 2:30 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 8:30 p.m. are Thursday, March 26. Any further information may be obtained by calling 301-895-5366 or 301-245-4349.

Thanking you,
Louise V. Harvey

God watched you as you suffered,
He knew you had your share.

and saw you fade away, although we loved you dearly, we could

Mortgage Moment

by Jerry Merrick

What is a point? Am I required to pay it?

A point is a fee equal to 1% of the loan amount and is used to reduce or buy down the interest rate. For example, on a $100,000 mortgage, a point would cost $1,000. A $100,000 mortgage with zero points would have a higher interest rate than a $100,000 mortgage with points. The more points you pay, the more you reduce your interest rate. Typically, interest rates are quoted in a 0 to 3 point range.

By paying points now, you can make your monthly payments lower. It is often a good option if the borrower: a) has plenty of funds for downpayment and closing costs; or b) plans to own the house long enough to allow the cost of the point to be gained back over time.

Most lenders do not require you to pay points, but be cautious with lenders who claim to offer a low rate on a zero point loan. You may find a point masquerading as another kind of fee at your settlement.

What is private mortgage insurance? When is it required?

Private mortgage insurance (often referred to as PMI or MI) has made home ownership possible for millions of people who would otherwise be waiting much longer to save enough money for a downpayment. Without MI, borrowers must have a 20% downpayment, not including closing costs. With MI, many borrowers purchase a home with as little as 5% down; sometimes even less, depending on the lender. Taking the example of the $100,000 home again, 20% down is $20,000; 5% down is $5,000. That's a huge difference of $15,000!

So what is exactly is MI? It is insurance that the borrower pays to protect the lender in the event of the borrower's default. Historically, there is more risk of default with higher loan to value mortgages. That's why MI ends up benefiting more people than just those with less than 20% down. This means less pressure to increase rates to cover losses, which helps all borrowers.

MI can usually be dropped once you have made enough payments to build that 20% equity in your property. MI should not be confused with homeowner's insurance. That is completely different. Homeowner's insurance protects you against damage to your property, while MI may help you buy the property.

Gasoline Prices Lowest Since '89

Dropping to an average of $1.033 a gallon, self-serve unleaded gasoline prices in Maryland are at the lowest point since April 1989, when gas was $1.016 per gallon, reports the American Automobile Association. Regular, self-serve unleaded averaged $1.033 in the March AAA survey. This price is 8.5 cents lower than in February and 22.7 cents lower than last March's price.

Reasons for the decrease include crude oil prices falling to $15 a barrel, crude oil inventories rising above 325 million barrels, and a steady downturn in domestic demand for gasoline and heating oil.

NOTICE
To All Property Taxpayers of Grantsville, Maryland

Senate Bill No. 93 of the Annotated Code of Maryland requires counties and municipal corporations to notify taxpayers of the availability of the semi-annual property tax payment option for owner-occupied residential property that is the principal residence of a homeowner.

If a taxpayer elects to make semi-annual property tax payments, ½ of the municipal taxes will be deferred until January 1. The second payment, due January 1, will incur a service charge reasonably equivalent to the anticipated lost interest income associated with the delay in the payment of the second installment and covering administrative expenses associated with the semi-annual payment not exceeding 5.94% of the charge of the lost interest.

To be eligible to make this selection of semi-annual payment, all previous years' taxes must be paid in full by June 1. Taxpayers not making their first semi-annual payment by September 30 are automatically waived out of the semi-annual plan and must pay the full tax bill.

Selection of payment schedule for property taxes may be made upon receipt of tax bill. If taxpayer wishes to pay in full, he must choose the appropriate coupon and return it with the proper payment. If the taxpayer wishes to participate in the semi-annual payment option, the appropriate coupon should be returned with the payment before the September 30 deadline.

It is the responsibility of the taxpayers to notify their mortgage company of their wishes to pay on a semi-annual basis if they have an escrow account. The town is not responsible for any involvement in the semi-annual payment process.

Whatever payment plan the taxpayer elects shall remain in effect until the taxpayer decides to change it.

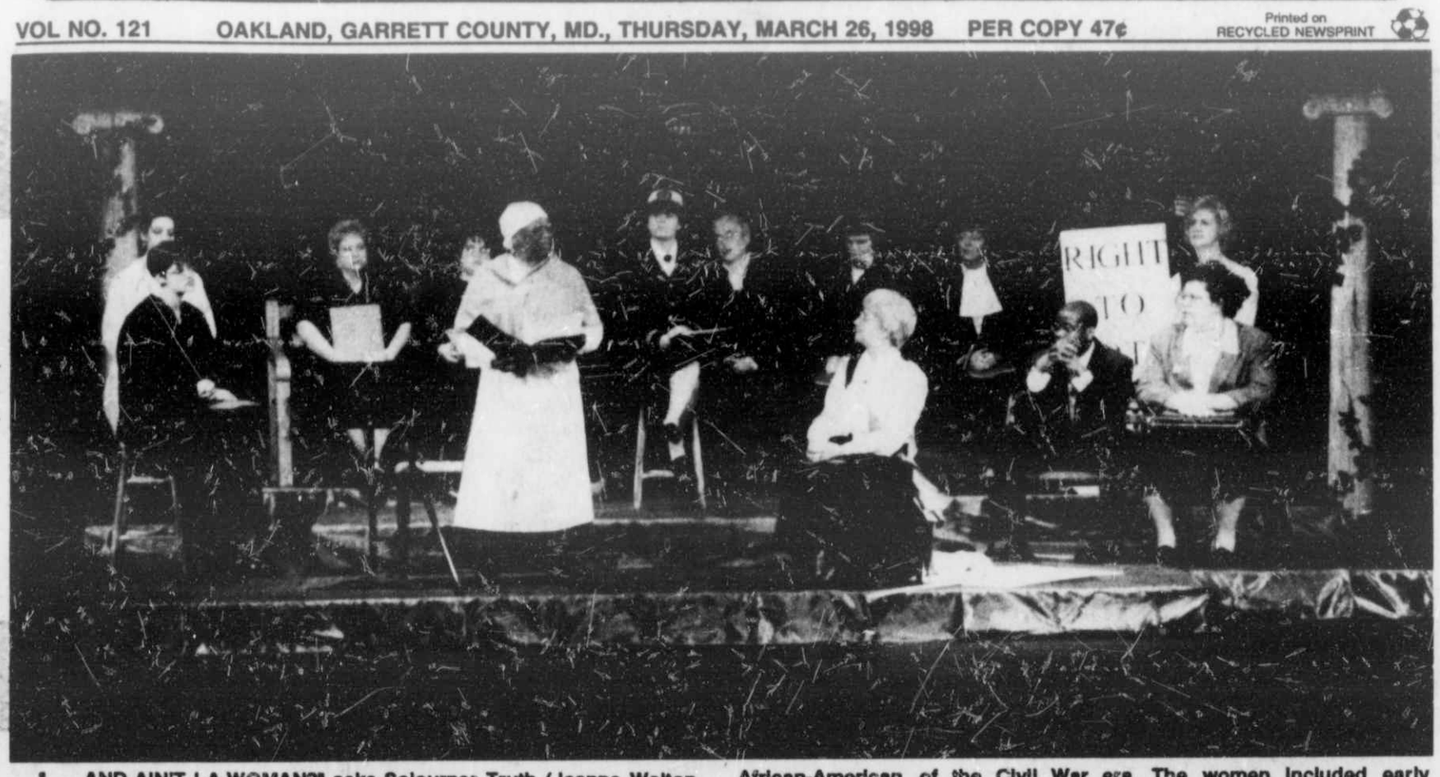
VOL NO. 121 OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., THURSDAY, MARCH 26, 1998 PER COPY 47¢ Printed on RECYCLED NEWSPRINT



". . . AND AIN'T I A WOMAN?" asks Sojourner Truth (Jeanne Walton, standing), as she lists the strengths she has as a woman even though she has been told all her life that she is less than a man. This, of course, was a speech the African-American heroine made in 1851 in her courageous efforts to promote not only equality between the races, but between the sexes. Her message and many others, messages that changed the world, were heard yesterday at Garrett Community College in a program titled Living the Legacy: Women's Rights Movement 1848-1998. Compiled and directed by Barbara Frey, the program featured 14 historical people, all of whom worked for the advancement of equality among human beings. Frederick Douglas (played by Andre Fields) was the lone man in the group, who was a highly respected African-American of the Civil War era. The women included early "movers and shakers" who took the chance to promote their cause — like Lucretia Mott (Gail Herman) and Susan B. Anthony (Virginia Jeffrey) — as well as more modern achievers, such as Sally Ride (Shonna DeWitt) and Sandra Day O'Connor (Randee Mitchum). The crowd of nearly 200 listened to their life histories and their achievements. Other characters portrayed were Elizabeth Cady Stanton (Phyllis Furr), Elizabeth Blackwell (Jamie Resh), Emma Lazarus (Francis Cabe), Eleanor Roosevelt (Alyce McDowell), Alice Paul (Gail Herman), Amelia Earhart (Carol Newman), Grace Murray Hopper (Matia Egan), and Vilma Martinez (Michelle Flores). More about the presentation will be published in next week's issue of The Republican.

Three Women Added To Lake Advisory Group

In response to the concerns of various local individuals and organizations, the Garrett County Commissioners this week added three women to the 12-man Garrett County/Deep Creek Lake Advisory Committee. This is a newly formed group which is to offer advice and guidance to the commissioners concerning their role in the pending sale of Deep Creek Lake.

The women now a part of the committee are Cathy Lohr (business woman), Elaine McDonald (business woman), and Beverly Beard (county resident).

The women were appointed Tuesday, according to a press release from the commissioners' office. The addition of the women, according to the release, was at the request of the Garrett County Commission for Women, the American Association of University Women, and the Garrett County Business and Professional Women.

The next meeting of the committee is slated for Thursday, April 2, at 7 p.m. in the meeting room of the Garrett County Office of Economic Development, located in the courthouse in Oakland. The meetings are open to the public.

British Crew Spends Four Days Filming Feats Of ASI Students

Scenes of a snow-covered Garrett County will be seen by approximately 55 million viewers on April 10, as the London News Network's Five Star Adventure is broadcast. The show, which focuses on adventure sports activities in the county, was taped two weeks ago by a three-member British television crew. They were accompanied by Anne Mannix, media coordinator for the Maryland Office of Tourism and Development, and by director Mike Logsdon and other instructors of Garrett Community College's Adventuresports Institute (ASI).

Producer Petra Burgin, cameraman Jason Shorey, and show host John Taylor spent four "action-packed" days filming the activities of the institute's students and instructors. They followed them on excursions of mountain biking, ice-climbing, and survival training.

Filming began on Tuesday, March 10, when the group went to the Wisp Resort to film students and instructors as they built fires and made shelters in 15 minutes, all part of survival training. Students taking part in this event were Crystal Shaffer (Kitzmiller), Craig Mariani (N.H.), Gordon Machay (Pa.), and Josh Lyons (Mich.). They were headed up by instructor Jack Neal.

That evening, the crew gathered at the Deer Park Inn to film and to dine at the historic home.

Wildlife was the subject for Wednesday's early filming, with the crew traveling to New Germany State Park, where they interviewed Mike Decker and Steve Bittner. Because of the amount of snow on the ground, the filming then was moved to Allegany County for a short segment about mountain biking. The site was Green Ridge State Forest. Taylor, the host of the show, attempted to bike up the mountainside, but apparently had some difficulty.

"John is a pretty fit guy, but he wasn't quite up to the rugged conditions out there," said Mannix. "When the program airs, viewers will see a bit of television trickery in that segment. Stunt double Eric Recker [who is a mountain biking instructor for the ASI] is the one who does the hard peddling and John admits to it at the end of the scene."

ASI assistant professor Steve Tomb was the mountain bikers' lead instructor during this scene.

The second day of film-

Healthy Families Funds Included In Gov.'s Budget

Healthy Garrett County Families (HGCP), an early intervention nurse/social worker home visiting program developed by a group of county human service providers, has been included in Gov. Parris Glendening's Supplemental Budget.

Glendening ear-marked $250,000 for the Garrett County project, which had been supported by the Garrett County Commissioners, Del. George Edwards, and Sen. John Hafer.

HGCF is a comprehensive and resource-integrated, voluntary program that will be available to pregnant women and to their children from birth to age 5. It is estimated that the program will serve up to 325 children per year. The intensity and duration of the service(s) will depend upon the individual needs or desires of the family.

The Garrett County Health Department will administer and implement the project, and the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth, and Families (OCYF) will monitor and evaluate the program.

HGCP is one of six components of a project proposed to the governor for funding. Known as the Vision-to-Scale Project, it was developed by the Local Management Board (LMB)/ Office for Children, Youth and Families.

When the Garrett County proposal was selected by the governor's sub-cabinet, the county became a "vision partner" and entered into negotiations with the state to reform and streamline the delivery system of health and human services provided to children, youth and families.

For the past nine months, negotiations have been underway. In addition to HGCF, the project includes promoting stable and economically independent families through programs like Garrett WORKS, Individual Development Accounts, Micro-Enterprise, and Building Community Capacity; community-based services integration; comprehensive child care planning; before- and after-school program planning;

"1776" Coming In Summer; Auditions Scheduled At SHS

Auditions for the summer Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) production of the musical/historical comedy "1776" will be held in the Southern High School cafetorium at 7:30 p.m. each evening on Friday, March 27, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 7 and 8, and Tuesday, April 14.

There are roles available for 21 adult men and 2 adult women, with spoken and singing parts. Persons interested in a speaking role are asked to bring a passage from a play or story to recite, while those seeking a singing role should bring a song to perform.

Currently receiving rave reviews in a second Broadway revival, "1776" had a long Broadway run in the 1970s and was made into a successful feature film. Written by Peter Stone, with music and lyrics by Sherman Edwards, the play's main setting is Philadelphia's Independence Hall, where the debates over the Declaration of Independence, the future abolition of slavery, and the establishment of the United States are portrayed in comedy and song.

"1776" will be presented by the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival on June 26-28 and July 2-4. The Garrett Choral Society, under the direction of Nancy Learey, will prepare and produce the performances, and the play will be staged in the circuit courtroom of the Garrett County Courthouse.

Pa. Pair Arrested For Drug Offenses Near Friendsville

Two Pennsylvania men were arrested, along with two juveniles, and charged with possession of marijuana and marijuana paraphernalia on Friday at a residence near Friendsville.

Timothy Bryan Ringer, 19, West Salisbury, Pa., and Michael Matthew Tressler, 18, Salisbury, Pa., were both arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, working in conjunction with the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, as a result of an anonymous tip.

Following an appearance before the District Court commissioner, both men were released on their own recognizance. The two juveniles also apprehended during the incident, were released to their guardians and will be processed through the Department of Juvenile Services.

In other sheriff's news, an alleged domestic assault in Oakland resulted in the arrest of James Milton Reckart, 44, on Monday afternoon. His live-in girlfriend reported to authorities that he had struck her during the course of an argument on Saturday, March 21.

According to the complainant Reckart had come home in an intoxicated state Saturday and that as the two argued over his drinking, he allegedly punched her in the face. After she gave her statement on Monday and displayed a black eye and bruises on her face, Reckart was arrested by sheriff's deputies and charged with second-degree assault. He has since been released on his own recognizance.

In other sheriff's news, a bicycle was stolen from the front yard of an N Street residence in Mtn. Lake Park shortly after midnight on Thursday, March 19. The resident, who reported hearing his dogs carrying on with a lot of barking at the suspected time of the theft, discovered the 24-inch pink and purple girls 5-speed bike, valued at $124, missing from the front yard the next morning. It had been left unsecured by the front door of the house.

A one-vehicle accident on the evening of Saturday, March 21, resulted in trans-

GCC April Activities Mark Community College Month

The month of April has been designated as National Community College Month by the National Council of Marketing and Public Relations. The month will be observed with a series of special activities at Garrett Community College (GCC), according to GCC director of enrollment development Joan B. Crawford.

An employer round table is slated for former Bausch and Lomb employees who will be completing the Computer Applications program in May. Students will hear prospective employers discuss their specific needs and job opportunities in the program, planned by Julie Yoder of GCC's Job Placement office. "We want to give our students as much help as possible in finding jobs when they complete their programs," Crawford said, indicating that GCC intends to schedule similar sessions for students in other programs.

A Tobacco Summit will be held in the Continuing Education Building on Saturday, April 4. The program features interactive workshops geared to teens, and a presentation by Victor DeNoble, former research scientist for Philip Morris Corporation, who was sworn to secrecy for 10 years and is now sharing his experiences. The Tobacco Summit is sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department.

The annual Career Day for high school juniors is slated for Friday, April 17, and will give high school students the opportunity to interact with persons representing various careers they may be considering. Co-sponsors of the event are the Garrett County Board of Education and GCC.

Wednesday, April 22, the college's Office Technology program will be the object of a Developing A Curriculum (DACUM) process to update that program. Tom Kierstead will facilitate the session, and all interested persons who are currently employed in automated offices or in positions where they work with the latest computerized technology are invited to attend.

"Social Justice and Conscience Movements in this Century" is the topic of a presentation by Marsha Jean Darling, scheduled for Thursday, April 23, in the college's auditorium.

The annual Spring Open House will be held on Saturday, April 25, from 10 a.m. to noon. Members of the public will be able to speak with program directors of GCC's three outdoor programs and representatives of other programs as well. Financial aid, student activities, and other various services and activities will be discussed. For further information on the open house, interested persons may call the GCC Admissions Office at 301-387-3010.

Fire Damages Former Tavern; Arson Alleged

An unoccupied building located along U.S. Rt. 40 near Keysers Ridge that once housed the Grandview Tavern was damaged by fire early Friday, and the incident has been ruled an act of arson by the State Fire Marshal's office.

Volunteers from the Grantsville, Accident, Deep Creek, and Addison fire departments were called to the scene at 12:53 a.m. after a passing motorist saw the fire and called 911. The front porch and the front wall of the 30-by-40-foot woodframe building, owned by Paul Jacob Tasker, were in flames upon the arrival of the first fire units.

According to Bruce A. Shafer, deputy fire marshal, the area of origin of the fire was the porch. Damage to the building was estimated to be $10,000 and to the contents, $5,000. Shafer said that Tasker does have insurance on the property.

Some 50 firefighters responded to the property and brought the fire under control in about 40 minutes, but remained on the scene for about three hours. Also responding was a unit from the Northern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Shafer said that the investigation into the incident is continuing.

Local Anti-Litter Contest Winner Meets Governor

Brooke Fitzgerald, daughter of Anna and Russell Fitzgerald of Long Stretch and a Northern Middle School (NMS) 7th grader, was a guest of Governor Parris Glendening at the State House last week as one of the finalists in Maryland's anti-litter slogan contest for elementary and middle school students. Fitzgerald's contest entry, "Give Maryland a Hug — Don't be a Litterbug," had been selected as Garrett County's first-place winner in the competition.

Over 4,000 children between the ages of 5 to 14, grades 1 through 8, submitted slogans from across the state. The anti-litter campaign is aimed at reaching children and promoting public awareness about Maryland's effort to put an end to littering. It is estimated that the state and local governments spend more than $10 million on litter clean-up annually.

Fitzgerald's Garrett County-winning slogan gained her an invitation to the governor's reception for county winners from across the state. Fitzgerald, her mother, and NMS teacher Carolyn Tice, who sponsored the contest at the

Four Taken To Hospital After I-68 Accident

A one-vehicle accident Saturday on I-68 near Friendsville resulted in injuries to the driver and four passengers.

Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, reported that a vehicle driven by Wayne S. Taylor Sr., 32, Charlestown, W.Va., was westbound on the interstate around 10:30 p.m. Taylor allegedly traveled off the road and struck a ditch. The vehicle then overturned injuring Taylor, a passenger, Douglas Adams, 26, Millville, W.Va., and three children.

Friendsville VFD and Northern Rescue Squad responded to the scene. The injured persons were transported to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va. All have been released.

Charges were filed against Taylor

BRITISH FILM CREW, ASI STUDENTS ATTACK THE ICE — The rigorous activities of Garrett Community College's Adventuresports Institute (ASI) will be the subject of a London News Network program called Five Star Adventure. The show, slated for broadcast on April 10, explores the facets of the local program, as well as the scenic qualities of Garrett County. In the photo above, show host John Taylor is pictured center as he is filmed by cameraman Jason Shorey. These photographs were taken by ASI director Mike Logsdon, who said the ice-climbing took place near Swallow Falls, across the river from the walking path and just below the site of the former Dinky track. Student ice-climbers filmed were Janet Amello, Jason Powell, Scott Hrabar, and Josh Lyons, all under the leadership of Steve Tombs, an assistant professor of the ASI. Taylor also took a crack at the climbing, according to Anne Mannix, media coordinator for the Maryland Office of Tourism Development, who also took part in the four-day event. Logsdon said Mannix played a key role in organizing the project. See story.

House Committee Approves Most Of Governor's Budget

Most of a $57.3 million supplemental capital budget proposed by Maryland Governor Parris N. Glendening was approved by the House Appropriations Committee Tuesday evening. The lawmakers trimmed about $1.6 million off the original proposal, according to reports. The plan will now be reviewed by the Senate.

Among the numerous revitalization projects given support by Glendening is one for the Oakland train station. He has asked for $226,000 to be allotted to the town to replace the slate roof. This project is one of more than 45 construction, renovation, or land purchase items in the lengthy plan.

Other items listed under Western Maryland include athletic facility renovations at Fort Hill High School ($500,000) and partial funding for the construction of a library in Lonaconing ($300,000). The remaining projects and their costs range from $30,000 for a redevelopment plan in Sykesville to $5 million for the purchase of open space in Charles County bordering the Potomac River to protect sensitive environments and habitats.

According to Frederick Puddester, the state budget secretary, the money for all the projects will come "almost entirely" from legislative budget cuts — not from the $135 million in unanticipated income tax revenue announced recently. Puddester also said that at least $27.8 million of the new capital spending requests are connected with Glendening's Smart Growth Initiative.

A large portion of the money to be spent will go to Montgomery County, which is to receive about $6 million, mainly for revitalization projects in Gaithersburg and the redesign of Strathmore Hall into a "second home" concert hall for the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra.

Other money included in the budget plan is aimed at statewide programs, such as a $5,900,000 program to give financial assistance to farmers in reducing soil and nutrient run-off; asbestos abatement in state-owned facilities ($1,900,000); and modifications to state-owned facilities to provide accessibility to persons with disabilities ($2,000,000).

OUCH!!! It was a prickly situation that Mocha found herself in last week. The 4-year-old Akita, who lives with her owners Maronda and Joe Wilt in Finzel, had been out for a stroll when she encountered an unknown neighbor who apparently was not pleased about the introduction. Maronda Wilt said that it was Mocha's grandson Maverick, a 6-month-old Akita pup, who came home first with the tell-tale signs of the piercing encounter. "The puppy came home with what looked to me to be four porcupine quills stuck in him. They have barbs at the end, you know. He had three in his nose and one in his chest," she said. She and her husband checked carefully, discussed the problem with her father, and decided to go find Mocha and see what shape she was in. The answer was "bad." In the photo above, Mocha is pictured with the hundreds of quills that pierced her fur, her tongue, the roof of her mouth, and her nose. It was 11:45 p.m. when the Wilts met Dr. McFawn at the LaVale Veterinary Clinic for a procedure that would take many hours. "The doctor removed hundreds of quills," Maronda explained. Mocha is doing very well now, she said. "More quills are working their way out now. Mocha had tried to get some out herself and they had broken off. With her thick coat it was difficult to find all of them at first," she added. Mocha is on the mend but probably won't go near any other neighbors with long quills.

House Approves New Restrictions On Teen Licenses

Teenagers in Maryland might have to wait an additional six months to get their permanent driver's licenses, as a result of yesterday's action by the House of Delegates. The lawmakers overwhelmingly supported new restrictions for teenagers, reportedly in an effort to decrease the injury and death toll from automobile accidents caused by young drivers.

The senate gave preliminary approval to the new law, so it now faces one remaining hurdle: to get official and final approval from the senators.

Currently, young drivers must keep their learner's permits for two weeks before receiving their permanent licenses. If the new law passes, they will wait four months. After this waiting period, the provisional license is earned, which currently must be kept for one year. The new law would extend the waiting period to 18 months.

The provisional license dictates that the driver must not be on the road past midnight. The original proposal of this new law included a roll-back of that curfew to 10 p.m., but this was rejected by the elected officials, who apparently heard from teenagers, who complained they would no longer be able to go to long-playing movies, such as Titantic.

Basically, the new law will mean teenagers will not be issued their permanent licenses until they are nearly 18 years old, and only then if they have a clean driving record. Adults obtaining driver's licenses will also be affected by the law, should it be passed. Currently, an adult has only to pass a driving test to get a license. With this law, he or she will have to complete driver's education classes and will use a provisional license for 18 months. The adults will not have a curfew, however.

Provisional drivers who are ticketed will face greater penalties. First-time offenders will be sent to driver improvement courses, and second-timers will have their licenses suspended. If a third offense is recorded, the driver will lose his license completely.

According to reported statistics, traffic accidents are the leading cause of death among 15- to 20-year-olds. The main causes of the accidents are excessive speed, driver error, and/or alcohol influence. Newly licensed 16-year-olds are 10 times more likely to have an accident than 35-year-olds, as reported by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. While teens make up just 7% of the country's driving population, they are involved in 14% of alcohol-related fatal crashes.

Senate Rejects Increased Tax On Cigarettes

To the dismay of health advocates, the Maryland Senate Budget and Taxation Committee rejected legislation Tuesday that would have increased the state's tax on cigarettes. The proposal also had called for the creation of Maryland's first tax on cigars and smokeless tobacco products.

The vote by the committee has apparently put an end to the debate on the tobacco tax issue for the remainder of the General Assembly's 90-day session.

The bill, which proposed a tax increase from 36 cents per pack of cigarettes to $1.50, failed on a vote of 7 to 6.

Sen. Christopher Van Hollen Jr., a Montgomery County Democrat, said he was "very disappointed."

"It's an issue where the public is way ahead of the legislature," Van Hollen said. "All the polls suggest there's support for a large tax increase in cigarettes, let alone smokeless products."

Gov. Parris N. Glendening was in favor of the cigarette-tax bill, which was also greatly supported by a coalition of health-advocacy and consumer groups.

Advocates maintain statistics show that an increase in the tax on cigarettes leads to a reduction in smoking by teenagers. Once fully phased in, the cigarette tax increase was reportedly expected to generate more than $300 million in state revenue. This money was then to have been used for substance abuse treatment programs, as well as a campaign to educate the public about smoking-related risks. A lesser amount of the revenue was to have been allotted to tobacco farmers to assist them in harvesting different crops.

The tobacco industry reportedly lobbied strongly against the bill, as did some retailers. According to reports, some legislators were reluctant to approve any tax increase in an election year.

Maryland is one of eight states that does not tax either smokeless products (chewing tobacco, snuff) or cigars.

"To allow this not to pass is unbelievable to me," said Sen. Ida G. Ruben, a Montgomery Democrat, who said the money generated by the tax was needed to help educate the public, particularly youngsters, about the dangers of smoking.

But Sen. Thomas M. Middleton (D-Charles Co.), who voted against the bill, defended his position by questioning state officials about the major new spending on smoking education.

"We could have asked the health department why they haven't spent more on smoking cessation programs," Middleton said. "Now we have to have a tax."

school, traveled to Annapolis for the event, which was held in the Governor's Reception Room in the State House.

Maryland Secretary of Transportation David Winstead, representing the contest's sponsor, the State Highway Administration, introduced the county winners. Each received several prizes from the governor, including a framed certificate, a T-shirt bearing the inscription "Squash the Bug," a $100 U.S. Savings Bond, and a $100 gift certificate from Toys-R-Us. A follow-up contest will seek poster submissions based on the state winner slogan "Don't be a Litter Critter," which was submitted by a Charles County student.

"Governor Glendening was very nice," Fitzgerald commented, "and the tour of the State House after the reception was very interesting." The tour featured portraits hung in the Senate Chamber that were painted by Charles Wilson Peale. Fitzgerald and Tice reported that the tour guide informed them that Peale charged for his work by the number of body parts he portrayed. According to Tice, the tour guide claimed, "That's where we get the saying 'It will cost you an arm and a leg.'" port of two Baltimore residents to Garrett County Memorial Hospital (GCMH) by the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. As Adrian John Taylor, 59, was driving his Chevrolet van southbound on Cranesville Road near Maple Glade Road, he lost control of vehicle on the icy road, slid into the left embankment, slid back across the road to hit the right embankment, rolled on its side, slid back across to hit the left embankment once again before rolling back up onto its wheels in a ditch. Taylor and his passenger, Jean Taylor, age not stated, were both wearing their seatbelts and shoulder harnesses at the time of the accident. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department assisted at the scene. GCMH was not able to provide the condition of either patient.

Deputies arrested two Oakland men for driving while intoxicated last week, Terry Allen Tasker, 35, and William Samuel Caslow, 34.

Oakland Police Arrest Man On Multiple Charges

An Oakland man was arrested by town police yesterday and charged with multiple offenses.

A report filed by the investigating officer stated that Eric L. Bendler, 19, was observed traveling westbound on Oak Street. It was noted that he failed to dim his headlights to oncoming traffic.

When Bendler was stopped, and his driving record checked, it revealed that his license was suspended. He was charged with failure to avoid projecting glaring light within 500 feet of approaching vehicles, failure to display registration card on demand, driving a motor vehicle on a highway with a suspended license, and possessing a suspended license.

Bendler, who was arrested on $2,000 bond, has been released.

Cantata Set To Raise Funds For Fire Victims

The Grantsville Community Choir will present an Easter Cantata titled "My Faith Still Holds" on Sunday, April 5, 7:30 p.m., at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Grantsville. The handbell choir of St. John's United Church of Christ will join the community choir for this special performance.

Noted for raising money for people in need, the community choir will collect a free-will offering at the Easter Cantata to help two local families that have been burned out of their homes within the past two months. One family lost their home while away on their honeymoon, and the other family, which includes three children, lost their home while at work.

This year's Easter Cantata is performed under the direction of choir director Gloria M. Martin, with piano accompaniment by Gale Ringer and narration by St. Paul's pastor Brenda Shreve.

The Grantsville Community Choir, currently representing eight churches and six denominations, is celebrating its 22nd year of singing. "We sing to give glory to God for His goodness and mercies and to praise Him," Martin said. "The choir has become a Christian family to each other and is a great asset to the community."

Garrett County Singer, Songwriter Releases New Tape

LINDA FLEMING

Major Gospel Recording, Waynesboro, Va., has recently released a tape of songs written and performed by a Garrett County resident. The artist, Linda Fleming, Swanton, titled this collection of 10 songs "For His Name's Sake."

Fleming began writing songs while she was a seventh grade student in Bessie Price's music class at Southern Jr./Sr. High School. Her first composition was in honor of her mother, Mareva Teets, as a Mother's Day gift. "Mrs. Price was instrumental in securing the copyright for that piece," Fleming said.

Since that time she has written the words and music for many songs which have been copyrighted and published by Folkstone Music Inc.

Fleming points out that her favorite song in this current gospel collection is "I See God's Love." The song tells about people demonstrating God's love in their words and actions, she said. "This song is about many of Garrett County's wonderful people," she added.

Other local residents participated in Fleming's new project. Lynn Beckman served as producer and guitarists Tim Beckman and Rick Beckman were among the musicians who accompanied Fleming.

She said she had ventured into this project to share the message of her words and music with friends and family members.

"For His Name's Sake" is available at the Lamplighter Christian Bookstore, Oakland; The Christian Bookstore at Country Club Mall, LaVale; Yoder's and Penn Alps, Grantsville; Buckel's Store, Bittinger; and Swanton Grocery.

Too Much Coverage?...

We are certainly not above taking shots at our own industry, especially when the media is engaged in behavior that could ultimately be deadly. We refer to the handling by the media, particularly television media, of yet another tragedy in one of our schools. The shooting deaths of four students and a teacher this week at Westside Middle School in Jonesboro, Ark., by two children ages 13 and 11 has sent shock waves through the nation, and while this is an event that certainly deserves major coverage, we wonder if there is such a thing as too much coverage for our own good.

Within hours of the crime, the networks were scurrying to make the event the focal point of one or more of their prime time news programs. We note that there is at least one, and sometimes several, such news programs on the screen every evening of the week now — 60 Minutes, Dateline, Primetime Live, 20/20, 48 Hours, various CNN news shows, etc. Over the next month each one of these will engage in one-upmanship to see who can delve the deepest into this incident. It's a competition, with big bucks involved, and they will interview everyone from teachers to students to elected officials to emergency service workers to the school janitor, all of which will bring great attention to the two young boys allegedly responsible for the act. Their photos are on the front page of many major newspapers. Everyone in the country will know who they are. They will become infamous.

One of the primary causes for misbehavior by young people is a great craving for attention. Just ask any classroom teacher. There are so many children in our society who are so severely damaged because of the dysfunctional nature of their families. The attention they so desperately need they will readily accept in any form.

There is no doubt that there are many such children out there right now who are quite capable of committing similar, horrible acts. Our great fear is, with all of the notoriety being generated by the media around these two children in Arkansas, how many others might select a comparable course of action to bring themselves such overwhelming attention?

Yes, this was a major news event, and yes, the media has a responsibility to cover it. But somewhere along the line, it seems that the coverage of a news event goes well beyond the public's right to know into what we believe could be extremely dangerous waters. The media should report the news, not create the news.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Several times a week I drive to Oakland, and lately I have noticed a church sign proclaiming: "Tolerate isn't in the Bible."

Somehow I always feel saddened when I see this sign. I hope it will soon be replaced by a more loving and tolerant message.

Sincerely,
Eileen Schlossnagle

To the Editor:

I would like to thank you for providing readers with the wonderful "Outdoors" column written by Bob Yonke. It is very well written, always timely, and a credit to your newspaper. We are certainly lucky to have someone with his skills locally to write such an erudite piece.

I wonder if it would be possible to provide this column as a weekly feature rather than every other week as is now?

Sincerely,
Tom Scannell
Pittsburgh

Dear Mr. Scannell,

Bob may not have the time, and we don't always have the space. But thanks for your nice letter.

Editor

To the Editor:

It is great to have a newspaper that is willing to allow people to express feelings and opinions, such as your newspaper.

I am writing to express that your editorial staff does a great job of helping to correct spelling and typing errors, but last week's publishing of my letter was incorrect in correcting the word "Republicrats"!

I was trying to express that both the Democrats and Republicans do not face off in races in this county. They more or less decide who should get into office without any opposition from the other party. Thus, the word "Republicrats."

Example: Cas Taylor's statement last year "Senator Hafer is unbeatable." Maybe he is, but that is an expression that the Democrats should not have any one to run against him.

Example: A Republican campaign manager told me that they "did not want to support anyone or encourage anyone to run in opposition to Cas Taylor."

Therefore remember the saying "Houston, we have a problem." We need independent candidates.

We have a "union hall" in Grantsville for the so-called leaders in the north end of the county to decide on who will be supported. Remember: if you want more of the same, then support the so-called "trustworthy candidate."

We need to replace all elected local representatives. They have too much baggage from outside influences that affect all local residents.

Thank you,

To the Editor,

Many people are the victims of harmless, practical jokes on April Fool's Day. Unfortunately, for at least 1.4 million Americans, every day seems like April Fool's Day. They are the victims of lupus, a devastating auto-immune disease that fools everyone.

The Maryland Lupus Foundation designated April 1 as Lupus Alert Day because too few people know about this confusing disease. Lupus causes the immune system to attack the body's own tissue. Most victims are women and lupus disproportionately affects minorities.

Lupus fools its victims because symptoms mimic less serious illnesses or it can go into periods of remission. Lupus fools family members because victims don't appear sick. Some lupus victims are accused of being hypochondriacs.

Lupus can fool doctors too. There is no definitive test that can tell if a person has lupus. It is not uncommon for victims to suffer several years before they are diagnosed. Lupus even fools medical researchers! Scientists don't know what causes lupus. A cure remains elusive. Fortunately, treatments are available.

Don't be fooled by lupus! Take the Lupus Self-Test. Take five minutes to answer 11 screening questions that can save your life! Call the Maryland Lupus Foundation at 410-337-9000 or 800-777-0934 and ask for your free copy.

Sincerely,
Jeri L. Falk

To the Editor:

As you know, April 3, 1998, marks Equal Pay Day. Women in the Greater Oakland area will be joining other women in 42 different states and hundreds of cities all across the country to raise awareness about unequal pay.

According to the Census Bureau, a woman only earns 74 cents for each dollar earned by a man. Sixty million women worked in the paid labor force in 1997. Women comprise nearly half of all workers, so why are they getting less than three-fourths of a paycheck? Unfortunately, U.S. Census figures are backed up by additional research documenting the wage gap across professional fields.

In 1997 male social workers made more money than female social workers—even though women outnumber men in social work by two to one! The same is true for clerical workers and administrative support personnel, where women outnumber men three-to-one.

According to the January 1997 issue of Working Woman, pay disparities exist across all industries. In 92 direct job comparisons, where pay should have been equal, men earned more in 86 of the jobs.

Study after study has proven what women already know: even when women have the same levels of education, job experience, and skills as men, they are paid less.

• According to the Council on Graduate Medical Education, when assessing salaries in terms of the number of years in practice, women earned less than men did across the board. For instance, women with 1-4 years of practice earn an average of $92,800 per year while men with 1-4 years of practice earn $153,600 per year—a yearly difference of $60,800!

• A study by the American Bar Association Commission on Women found female lawyers with 10-20 years of experience earned 25% less than their male counterparts.

• Even recent graduates experience the wage gap. A Department of Education study showed that recent female graduates earned 16% less than the male graduates, even though the women had higher GPAs.

Working women deserve equal pay. Unfair pay is a bankrupt policy. But more than that, it's against the law. In this country we espouse the notion that if you work hard and play by the rules, you can get ahead. But too often, although women play by the rules, employers do not.

We are determined that our voices be heard on this issue. All of us need to join together to close the wage gap.

Donna McClintock

HOW TO FARM?

I have a backyard flock of hens and would like to put a sign at the end of my lane which says, "Fresh Brown Eggs For Sale." That is surely a violation of the county sign code, but I was prepared to take that risk. Of greater concern to me was the state statute governing the sale of eggs.

I telephoned the Cooperative Extension agent, who is a good man and sincerely dedicated to helping farmers stay in business—and get in business, too—whether large or small. He had a synopsis of the Maryland egg law which he very kindly sent to me.

Once the synopsis arrived, I understood very well why he hadn't just told me over the phone what it said. The synopsis doesn't say I am forbidden to sell eggs, but it does advise me that I am not allowed to do so.

First of all, there is a $15 state registration fee (in my case, two weeks' worth of potential egg sales), then there are the requirements for labeling and sizing, then there are the paperwork requirements (extensive recordkeeping). I didn't read any further. In other words, for the risk of selling something illegally it might as well be a barrel of moonshine as a dozen fresh, brown eggs.

The Maryland law says in effect, "You have to be BIG to sell eggs." Of course, there are good reasons for every stipulation of the code. In fact, I support the code for those who are BIG, but there ought to be an exemption for those who have fewer than a certain number of hens (pick a number: 12, 25, 50, 100).

I couldn't sell in a year what the average grocery store sells in an afternoon. Killing flies with sledgehammers may be effective, but it is overdoing things a bit. Besides, if someone didn't like my eggs, he or she wouldn't come back. If someone got sick from my eggs, he or she would not need a bushel basket of paper to figure that the eggs had come from me (or, at least, from my hens).

A full-time farmer or two may be smiling by this time, thinking "Now he knows how it feels." And indeed, I do know how it feels. The average family farmer is in precisely the predicament that I am in trying to raise a little cash from my spring excess of eggs.

The local dairy farmer, for example, who says, "I have the perfect location for an on-farm dairy store," is prohibited by law from operating a bottling plant and retail store on his farm.

Maryland dairy farmers have found out two years in a row how much the grocery store chains want to keep them from trying to open on-farm dairy stores or even to keep them from getting a fair price for milk. They have found out that even when the business reporters of the big-city newspapers get the story straight, the editorial boards still have an eye to who pays for an awful lot of Wednesday advertising.

The full-time farmer has more in common with me and other part-timers than they do with BIG chicken or BIG beef or BIG grocery chains or BIG anything. For too long the full-time farmer has thought of himself as a "real farmer," meaning the rest of us aren't for real.

This foolish and petty conceit has deprived the mainline and traditional farming community of a tremendous body of potential supporters and allies. It is a conceit which may well make the traditional, full-time family farmer as extinct as the brontosaurus.

The typical farmer may be the last vestige of the rugged individualist in our society. For him to continue to be anything at all, he needs to learn how to be a cooperative individualist as well.

WELFARE REFORM IS WORKING IN MARYLAND

From the Eastern Shore to Western Maryland, thousands of families are moving from welfare to the workplace. Maryland, due to its early efforts, has enjoyed a jump start on the rest of the nation in implementing welfare reform. In fact, 97,336 individuals have moved to independence. That is a 42.7 percent reduction!

But more important than the numbers, Maryland's welfare success is improving people's lives. Single mothers who thought they would never be able to care for their children without the state's help are now employed and proudly supporting their families.

A recent study by Dr. Catherine Born of the University of Maryland School of Social Work shows that most Maryland families leaving welfare to go to work do not return to welfare and are able to preserve their families. Maryland is the first state in the country to methodically study and report what happens to families after leaving welfare. Such evaluation is essential if we are going to meet our goal of moving as many people as possible off welfare in a caring, sensitive manner that is effective over the long term. Dr. Born's results make it clear that our approach is working.

For example, Dr. Born found that just 23 percent of families who left welfare returned for benefits one year later. Also, less then one half of one percent of the children whose families left welfare after October 1996 entered the foster care system. As encouraging as these results are, we must keep trying to do better.

Welfare reform in Maryland works because we use multiple strategies. Knowing that recipients with the strongest work history leave the welfare rolls first, we reinvested our initial savings in programs focused on harder to serve cases. We also adopted a "one size does not fit all" philosophy that offered local jurisdictions the flexibility to operate their programs in a manner appropriate to their needs. As a result, welfare reform programs in Salisbury may differ from those in Cumberland.

Our vision for welfare reform in Maryland, called the Family Investment Program, is that everybody works, families are strengthened, and children receive the care they require. It focuses on protecting children by assisting families to become more independent through work, personal and family responsibility, and community involvement. We can do all of this because Maryland has been blessed with a surging economy, which has fueled job growth and created opportunities for those seeking to leave welfare.

Challenges do remain, but we must reach our goal—to reduce the welfare rolls as much as possible and increase work productivity.

Three years ago, we were confident the welfare rolls could be reduced, but we could not have predicted the dramatic decline of 42.7 percent. This success allows us to take new and bold initiatives to continue to make Maryland families stronger. Welfare reform will continue to succeed from the Eastern Shore to Western Maryland by using the same sensitive, supportive, regional approach that has served us so well since 1995.

Social Work Marks 100 Years Of Helping People Help Themselves

by David Foster

Am I my brother's keeper? Cain's question from the opening pages of the Bible is the very first question asked of God by a human being, and although it did not receive a direct response, it is quite possible that God's answer has come to us through countless human hands. Across the millennia people have pitched in to help their neighbors when needed, and the age-old question is one that many people strive to answer each day in Garrett County as well.

Some of these people are professional social workers. As local radio spots have been announcing this month, the centennial observance of the social work profession has been observed throughout March. "100 Years of Professional Social Work," the anniversary's theme, marks the offering of the first classes in social work in 1898.

For the first part of this nation's history, the extent of social work was limited basically to neighbors helping neighbors; but in the 19th century the growing U.S. population led to greater and greater numbers of people needing aid and assistance, and government found itself reaching out to pick up where neighbors couldn't help.

According to the National Association of Social Workers, organized social work began to develop in those decades as a response to grievous injustices -- the mistreatment of prisoners, the plight of widows and orphans, the despair of homeless and poor people. In trying to help individuals, social workers came to recognize the need for systematic remedies and sought acknowlegement of a public responsibility to serve those who lacked the means or opportunity to secure minimum care for themselves.

In adapting to society's problems, social work itself began to evolve over the years. Children's advocacy, and services to individuals in hospitals, mental institutions, and schools were just a few of the areas where social workers began serving those in need.

The evolution of social work in Garrett County serves as a case in point to illustrate the changing focus of the profession, and our society's ways of dealing with problems over the past several decades.

By 1959, when Perry Shaffer joined the Garrett County Welfare Board as a caseworker, social work in this area was in the midst of transformation, as it was around the nation, from a helping profession to an empowerment profession. Shaffer, who retired as director of the Garrett County Department of Social Services in 1984, recalled recently, "When I started, everything had to do with eligibility. Caseworkers were in the business of interviewing people in order to determine eligibility for federal assistance, and calculating the grants made to families based on number of members, among other factors.

"Our major thrust in those days," Shaffer continued, "was to see that taxpayers' money was being spent properly and that no one was pulling the wool over our eyes. We weren't expected to be too concerned with the overall situation of a given family, why they were in need of assistance, problems in the home, and so forth," he said.

Not long after beginning with the local welfare board, Shaffer left to study for his master's in social work (MSW) at West Virginia University. "The school's program trained us to be social workers instead of case workers. We had coursework in psychology in order to understand people and their motivations; we began to look at people's individual and family situations in their own environment; and when we applied these lessons with our clients we began examining all aspects of a family's life and discussing possible strategies for improvement with them.

"The main thrust of our department became people-oriented," Shaffer said of the mid 1960s, after he returned as a full-time supervisor. He pointed to July 1, 1968, as a watershed moment for social work in Garrett County, as the philosophy of the field had shifted so much that the name "Welfare Board" and its emphasis on determining eligibility for assistance was changed to "Department of Social Services (DSS.)"

Shaffer recalled that the change in philosophy involved "starting to work with families to convince them that it was possible to improve their lives in all aspects and help them to move themselves off the welfare rolls towards independence, and therefore see that their children didn't fall into the trap of relying on the system.

"You can't gauge the value of social work immediately," was one of the lessons Shaffer said he learned over his long career. "It can take generations — time has to pass to show the difference in a child's life whose parents and grandparents only knew of public assistance. It's hard to be critical of programs because you can't see immediate results."

Tamara Kelly agrees wholeheartedly. "When you're dealing with parenting problems, for example," the current foster care program supervisor of the county's DSS observed, "It's often a cyclical pattern; the way a mother treats her children is the way she was treated by her parents as she was growing up. She may be harming her children, not out of spite or malice, but simply because it's the only way she ever learned how to cope with the pressures of family life.

"What we try to do is help the family unlearn their patterns of behavior, which can take a very long time," the six-year DSS veteran continued. "It's like asking someone to change their beliefs, thinking, and actions; it's bigger than asking someone to quit smoking, it's asking someone to change their life." She said that if social workers can help a family break an unhealthy cycle, a healthy pattern may be able to take its place, and in that way social workers could have an effect on a family for generations to come.

Kelly graduated from Southern High School in 1987 and eventually obtained her MSW from WVU. Her love for her field is apparent when she says "social workers are often thought of as starry-eyed, bleeding-heart types; that's not so, because we probably have more of an impact on people's lives than most other professions. We get involved in crisis situations, helping people build or rebuild their lives from the ground up. We don't take control of their lives, we help people take control of and responsibility for their own lives by helping them make their own educated choices and make their own decisions."

A recent television discussion forum on changing the future for children provided a quote that Kelly cites in encouraging people who are interested in pursuing social work as a career. "A participant on the panel said, 'If we can get more people to choose professions that tug at the heart strings rather than the purse strings, the world would be a better place'."

Social work has developed over the past 100 years to grow into a field that promotes two sides of a coin — societal interdependence and individual responsibility. Perhaps over the next century, as the profession continues to help meet the needs of a growing elderly population, the AIDS epidemic, welfare reform, child abuse and neglect, violence, and economic insecurity, the influence of social work will develop within us all a stronger appreciation for "heart strings rather than purse strings." If so, the answer to Cain's question may become clearer and clearer.

What's new in salad? Greens chopped up fine, tossed in a simple vinaigrette or lemon-based dressing.
Leftover risotto gets soggy if you just reheat it. Better: chill and combine with egg into patties and fry until golden. Or dip spoonfuls of the mixture into bread crumbs and form into logs (maybe with some cheese inside). Dip in bread crumbs again and fry.
For safety's sake, cook home-made mayonnaise or aioli in the microwave on medium high about a minute and a half, then whisk again until smooth. It's safer than raw egg yolks.
Make a fast sauce for broiled swordfish or tuna with a jar of roasted peppers buzzed in the processor. Just add salt and pepper.
If you like the pre-peeled baby carrots you find at the grocer's, you'll love them steamed, then cooked in a glaze of garlic, ginger and green onions sauteed in butter and enriched with apricot jam and balsamic vinegar. Wow!

THE APOSTLE

Once in a while, you run across an experience like no other in cinema. When an actor gets his teeth into a role, so you can feel him being the character--you can feel the blood flowing through the character's veins and see the deep recesses of the character's soul, then you cannot help being awestruck by the performance. This happened to me when I saw Mrs. Brown, and that's why I know Judi Dench should have won the Oscar for Best Actress. And now I know who should have won for Best Actor. Robert Duvall, writer, director, producer, and star of The Apostle, absolutely seethes with the character of Sonny Dewey (alias Apostle E.F.) in this, perhaps the best performance of his career.

In his spiritual, emotionally charged screenplay, Duvall creates every sense of the old-time religion of the deep South. He is Sonny, the shouting, sweating, jumping, fire-and-brimstone preacher in a large Pentecostal church in Texas. In Leap of Faith (1992), Steve Martin was faking this kind of behavior. But here, Duvall feels it in every fiber of his being, and so do we.

Like all of Jesus' children, Sonny is not without sin. He and his wife Jessie (Farrah Fawcett) have had their troubles, and she decides she wants a divorce. After he strikes her lover with a baseball bat, putting him in a coma, Sonny must leave town--leave his church, his children, his congregation--and hit the road. As he destroys all his identification, he adopts a new persona: "Apostle E.F."

He drifts into a small town in Louisiana and gets a job as an auto mechanic. His boss also owns a radio station, and E.F. establishes a radio ministry whose quickly growing popularity leads to a small church on a forgotten highway. And there he is, back in his element, with another devoted congregation. But despite all his successes, he knows that the Lord is going to come looking for him.

What an experience. Duvall is talking with the Lord in every moment, whether verbally or not. He is steeped in it; he walks, talks, and breathes sprituality. With excellent supporting performances by John Beasley as a retired black preacher who helps E.F. establish his church, Walt Goggins as his friend and fellow mechanic, and Miranda Richardson as the girl who works at the radio station, Duvall was able to craft his deeply textured character, an intense individual surrounded by people ready to bask in his reflected light. The powerful conversion scenes of Goggins and Billy Bob Thornton, whose character starts out as a belligerent racist, put this film over the top. What an astonishingly moving performance by all.

However you feel about the fundamentalist brand of spirituality, or about religion in general, take it from me, this film will make you feel the Power of the Lord. Or perhaps more accurately, the power of the Lord over Man. ★★★★★

GREASE

Ever since George Lucas's highly profitable re-release of 1977's Star Wars last year, all the big movie companies have been flipping through their records to see what great films they might have on hand to make some quick, trouble-free cash. It's that Baby-Boomer phenomenon: whatever was cool then is cool again, except now it can yield big bucks. What's interesting about Randal Kleiser's Grease, however, is that it was a nostalgia film to begin with. So here we have a re-release in 1998 of a film from 1978 about a story set in 1958. Kind of like a hypercube.

What does this say about the movie industry? It seems like it would be crazy to spend millions on a new film, risking a flop, when you've got shelves full of sure-fire classics. Will this lucrative practice of re-releasing old films become a regular occurrence? Will the expensive new products be able to compete with the relatively cost-free oldies? And consider this: should the re-releases be nominated for Oscars? Imagine if Titanic had been beaten out Monday night by, say, Casablanca or Gone With The Wind. Who knows, maybe the best movie of 2001 will be 2001.

Grease is great, of course; do I really need to do a plot summary? The class of 1958 meets back at Rydell High in the fall of its senior year. Danny (John Travolta) and Sandy (Olivia Newton-John), who had a romantic fling over the summer, are now classmates. But Danny can't be lovey-dovey in front of his tough friends, the T-Birds (Jeff Conaway, Barry Pearl, Michael Tucci, and Kelly Ward), so he gives Sandy the cold shoulder, even though he really still cares. Meanwhile, Rizzo (Stockard Channing) and the rest of the Pink Ladies (Didi Conn, Jamie Donnelly, and Dinah Manoff) make fun of Sandy for being a goody-two-shoes while Danny and his friends work on their muscle car.

Danny and Sandy get together, break up, get back together, break up again, and get back together, all in less than two hours. Everybody sings and dances their way through such teenage problems as flunking out of beauty school, being challenged to drag race, and possibly being "PG" after a few intense moments in the back of a '57 Chevy. Aaaah, the good old days.

The songs, most of which are taken from the 1972 Broadway musical, are eminently fun and energetic. So are the performances, and though this movie doesn't pretend to be a classical work of cinema, it still makes for a heck of a lot of fun. I remember seeing it several times with my 8th-grade friends and memorizing the entire soundtrack. Travolta and Newton-John were riding high in popularity 20 years ago, he from his recent success in Saturday Night Fever (1977), and she from her never-ending string of pop music hits (and I'm not talking about "Let's Get Physical").

Of course, everything turns out okay, and our friends literally sail off into the sky together in their convertible on graduation day. Grease wraps up with a sentimental message extracted from Sandy's saga: if you want to make friends, take up smoking and dress like a hooker. Now, that's family values. ★★★★

PRIMARY COLORS

Rated R - Running time: 2:23

At the end of Primary Colors, there is a credit that says, "Based on a novel by Anonymous." How telling. It would only be fitting that a crass, sophomoric opus like this, designed to malign a president and his party, would be penned by someone who hasn't the guts to own up. But I'm not at all convinced that this movie is what it seems. The script is so heavy handed, I can't imagine its writer expecting to be taken seriously.

Not that it doesn't have good performances. John Travolta continues to establish himself as one of the best actors of the younger generation, and this may be his best job yet. There is no doubt that his character is supposed to resemble Bill Clinton. Two sex scandals and a shady real estate deal prove that. And his impression of the president is better than Darrell Hammond's. But he isn't just doing an imitation act here. He allows the character to breathe, to be part of himself. He gives him a life separate from the reigning commander in chief.

The main character and protagonist of this movie is really not southern Governor Jack Stanton (Travolta), who is running for the Democratic nomination. It is Henry Burton (Adrian Lester), a young black man enlisted to help with the campaign. He is at first portrayed as a conscientious idealist who wants to take part in something meaningful. And for some reason, despite the infantile behavior of Stanton and the rude cynicism of everyone else involved in the campaign, he decides that Stanton is "the real thing." Lester is the one weak link in the otherwise excellent cast; he's obviously out of his league here. But it may be that he's just confused about how to play such a conflicting role--his lines don't make sense in the context. If you or I were to witness the behavior that Henry does in the first half hour of the movie, we'd be out of there. But he becomes a disciple.

This screenplay, by Joe Klein (formerly "Anonymous") and Elaine May, is supposed to portray Stanton as a down-home country boy who occasionally shows an inner light, and there are a few moments where we see that, but it's usually dampened by some rude remark or stupid statement. His tough-as-nails wife Susan (played by Emma Thompson, who comfortably dons an American accent), is obviously Hillary, and Thompson does her usual impeccable job. Again, it's the script that lets her down.

Another excellent actress saddled with a stupid role is Kathy Bates, who plays a family friend Susan hires to track down possible weaknesses that could be exploited by the other side. Bates's delivery is good, and her emotion is genuine, but her ultimate statement is ridiculously melodramatic. Supporting performances by people like Billy Bob Thornton, Maura Tierney (NewsRadio) and Robert Klein add to the quality, but the silliness of the script shows through.

I think we're being hoodwinked here. Maybe this movie was actually produced by Democrats, trying to make us think it was done by Republicans, trying to make the president look bad. Getting complicated, eh? Well, it comes down to this: it depends on which party thinks the American public is more stupid, and to what depths that party is prepared to go to malign the other side. Yeah, it's definitely a poser. ★★★½

Food, Nutrition Advisory Group Looks At Grant

The Food and Nutrition Advisory Council for Garrett County schools met with a representative from the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) this week to discuss a grant.

Carolyn Thompson, a nutritionist with MSDE working with school systems in Western Maryland, presented information to the advisory group on a grant for Team Nutrition. This program, made possible by funding from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to MSDE, proposes to increase good nutrition through education.

Grants to schools for the Team Nutrition program will provide materials and additional resources for use in existing curriculum. "The purpose of Team Nutrition is not to add something extra to the curriculum. It is to provide resources to be used in the curriculum where nutrition is already taught," Thompson said.

Other schools across the state are already signed up for the Team Nutrition program. "It is a two-year program. We would be applying for a grant for the second year," said Don Knode, who administers the food and nutrition program in Garrett County schools.

"HEALTHY EATING HELPS YOU MAKE THE GRADE" is a motto of the Team Nutrition program that is being introduced into schools across the state. Carolyn Thompson, a nutritionist with the Maryland State Department of Education, is pictured during a recent visit with children at Grantsville Elementary School. She also met with members of the Food and Nutrition Advisory Council to discuss the Team Nutrition grants program.

Knode sits on the Food and Nutrition Advisory Committee. The group, which was organized in 1988, also consists of three parents representing elementary, middle, and high schools; one or two registered dietitians; three school staff members; and a member of the board of education. The group meets monthly to review issues related to nutrition In the schools.

Applications for membership to the advisory group are currently being accepted. For information on joining the committee, persons may contact the committee chair, Jennifer Thorn, at 301-334-6960.

Folklife Center Organizing On Grantsville Farm

Puzzley Run Folklife Center, a new non-profit group in Grantsville, is moving forward with plans for program development. Housed at Beitchchoff Farm, the center will join other county groups in efforts to preserve the Appalachian culture in the region.

Jean and Bill Durst, owners of the farm and co-founders and directors of Puzzley Run, said they saw the opportunity to add another dimension to cultural preservation in the Casselman Valley. Puzzley Run Folklife Center will focus on interactive educational programs and recreational opportunities centered on 19th century farmlife, they explained.

The barn provides a perfect setting for music and square dances. We want to introduce some classes in round and contra dancing, too, Bill said.

The farm animals will offer opportunities to teach agricultural history, Jean pointed out. "Farm animals have differed in type and size," she said. Jean is actively involved in Heifer International and said she wants to offer young people some insights into farming traditions.

Among the activities planned for the spring and summer are family square dances, gospel sings, and a festival of music, historical reenactments, games, and entertainment.

Anyone interested in learning more about this organization may contact the Dursts at 301-895-3742.

Planning Meeting Slated For SHS 10-Year Reunion

Members of Southern High School's Class of 1988 are being sought to assist with the planning of the upcoming 10-year reunion, and a meeting has been scheduled for Sunday, April 5, at 1 p.m. in the downstairs section of Uno's Restaurant at Deep Creek Lake. The date and other specifics of the reunion will be discussed at this planning meeting. Person interested in further information may call Greta (Younkin) Taylor at 301-334-1705.

"Learning Links" Program Slated At Yough Glades

Yough Glades Elementary School will hold an after-school program for parents and their children, with the first session slated for next Tuesday, March 31. The program, titled Learning Links, is open to children from age 3 to those in the fifth grade.

The sessions will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. on six consecutive Tuesdays, beginning March 31. According to Barbara Taylor, coordinator of the program, the sessions will offer "a great opportunity for the children to meet with others and make new friends, and it will give parents a chance to share their ideas and work out solutions together."

The sessions are organized into three blocks of time. From 5 to 5:45, parents and students will work together on a variety of activities, such as computers, arts and crafts, music, and homework tips. From 5:45 to 6, refreshments will be served. From 6 to 7 p.m., younger children will have physical development activities and art, while the older children will work on skill games and fitness. It is during this time that parents will work with the parent facilitator on topics such as discipline, budgeting, book reviews, and strategies for helping with homework and preparing for tests. A family activity will also be provided for those families that attend regularly.

Persons who wish to register for the free program and/or desire more information may contact Ms. Taylor at 301-334-3334.

Start Time For Ram, Preston Game Changed

After having games postponed this week because of weather conditions, the Southern High School varsity baseball team is slated to play at Preston this Saturday; however, Coach Jim Bosley announced that the start time for that contest, originally set for 1 p.m., has been changed to 2:30 p.m.

Bosley also announced that the game slated for next Monday at Hampshire has been postponed until mid-April.

The Rams were slated to open their season last week against Fort Hill, but that was among the contests that had to be postponed.

Ram Net Team Opens Campaign With Hampshire

The boys' and girls' tennis teams of Southern High School opened their seasons Tuesday afternoon by splitting a match with host Hampshire, as the Southern boys coasted to a 7-1 win and the girls were edged, 4-3.

The Ram boys swept the singles matches, with Brandon Ferguson, Melvin Rexrode, Justin Stephens, and Mike Pamepinto all earning victories. The doubles teams of Ferguson and Rexrode, and Bryson Paugh and Dustin Slider were also winners.

The Trojans' lone point was recorded by the doubles team of Travis Alt and David Cunningham.

Meghan Mou and Desiree Spadey were singles winners for the Southern girls, and Spadey teamed with Laura Friend to win in doubles.

Winning in singles for the Hampshire girls were Jennifer Brewster and Gabriela Gruamiaes, and in doubles, the teams of Brewster and Tricia Oates, and Gruamiaes and Angela Buckley.

Lakers Edged By Pitt In Final Roadtrip Game

The weather played havoc with this week's schedule for the Garrett Community College baseball team, as the Lakers had games with both Essex CC and Potomac State College postponed. However, they were able to play the final game of their North Carolina trip on Saturday, which ended as a 7-6 loss to Pitt Community College in Greenville. The defeat dropped the Lakers' overall mark to 5-2.

Former Southern High standout Jeremy Fitzwater led the Lakers' five-hit effort by going 3-for-3 and driving in three runs. Andy Blackwell scored two runs for Garrett, while Chris Powell finished with one hit and a pair of RBI.

Despite having to take the loss on the mound, Mike Maravich allowed only four hits in going the distance. Both teams capitalized on errors — four by Pitt and two by the Lakers — to put runs on the board. The Lakers never led in the contest, but tied the score at 2-2 in the top of the second and 4-4 in the top of the sixth before Pitt recorded three runs in the bottom of the sixth to take the lead for good. Garrett rallied for two runs in the seventh, but could get no closer.

Coach Ed Wildesen and the Lakers have a busy week ahead of them, as they are slated to play a single game today at Frederick CC, travel to Hagerstown Junior College on Saturday for a doubleheader, host Westmoreland CC on Sunday in a home-opener doubleheader, and then travel to Anne Arundel CC next Tuesday for a twinbill.

Fishing Boosters Bet Public Will Bite On Brochure

A coalition of Garrett County fishing enthusiasts, tourism promoters, and businesses recently published a new brochure detailing the many fly fishing opportunities on local waterways that they hope will hook more angler dollars for the county.

"Fly Fishing in Western Maryland — Garrett County and the Deep Creek Lake Region" is a full color fold-out brochure that provides a wide variety of information about the sport, including local guide services, fishing packages, insect hatches, stream information, special fishing management areas, and a map of the county. The map highlights fishing information specific to each of the county's four major trout streams, the Casselman, Youghiogheny, Savage, and North Branch of the Potomac rivers, as well as providing the locations and phone numbers of the brochure's advertisers.

The brochure, which had a first printing of 50,000 copies, will become a staple at Visitor and Information centers throughout Maryland, and will also be available at special events across the country. "It was well received at the Canadian and American Sport Show last week in Cleveland," Chamber of Commerce Promotion director Diane Wolfe said, "and it will be a feature of all trade and tourism events that the Promotion Council participates in from now on, and will be a draw for the county's tourism-related industry."

Gary Yoder of the Department of Natural Resources concurred. "'Fly Fishing in Western Maryland' represents part of an overall effort in Garrett County combining tourism, government, and business to best utilize the unique situation we have here. The county has four unique rivers, each having distinct characteristics, that present different fishing challenges. From beginners to experienced fly fishers, everyone can find a river to suit their fishing desires here in Garrett County.

"The bottom line is that the tourism industry is coming together to provide dollars for the county," Yoder said, "and this fly fishing brochure is part of the puzzle."

"Fly Fishing in Western Maryland" is a cooperative venture between the Chamber of Commerce, the Department of Natural Resources, and the Garrett County Economic Development. For a free copy of the brochure, interested persons may contact the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce at 301-334-1948 or via e-mail at info@garrettchamber.com.

Huskies Open Season With Big Victory Over Campers

A 4-1, Western Maryland Scholastic League victory over Allegany High School is a great way to begin a high school baseball season in Garrett County, and that's what Coach Phil Carr and the Northern High Huskies did Monday afternoon on the Campers' diamond.

Scott Sisler pitched the first five innings for Northern, and also knocked in the first run of the game, as the Huskies took a 3-0 lead in the top of the first. Sisler's run-producing single was followed by two more by Jeremy Reed and Chris Herman.

The Campers responded with a run in the bottom of the same inning, after Adam Schmidt singled, Mike Thomas doubled to send Schmidt to third, and Sam Long followed with an RBI ground out to plate Schmidt.

The Huskies added an insurance run in the top of the fourth on an RBI single by Adam Bach.

Sisler was relieved by Matt Fritz in the sixth inning. The two allowed a total of eight hits, as did Clint Panuska and Matt Zealand for Allegany.

Bach and Herman led Northern's offense with two singles apiece, while Thomas finished with a double and two singles to pace the Campers. Steve Eirich added two singles.

The Huskies are slated to play again this afternoon in Lonaconing against Westmar, and at Hancock next Monday.

Northern Girls Open Campaign With 8-5 Loss

Girls' high school softball is underway for the 1998 season, and the Northern High Huskies started their campaign with an 8-5 Western Maryland Interscholastic League defeat by Allegany Tuesday afternoon in Cumberland.

Stacy Walton and freshman Heather Laffey combined for a four-hitter for the Campers, while Northern pitcher Jenny Thomas was tagged for eight hits.

The Huskies held a 1-0 lead in the top of the first, were on top 4-1 after an inning and a half, and were up 5-3 after two and one-half, but Allegany rallied for two runs in the bottom of the third to tie the score at 5-5. They took the lead for good with a run in the bottom of the fourth and added two insurance runs in the sixth.

Andrea McRobie had a triple and three RBI for the Huskies, while Kim Twigg and Cassie Murray each singled twice for the Campers and Lori Winebrenner added a triple.

The Huskies will play again this Friday at Mt. Savage, travel to Salisbury on Monday, host Beall on Tuesday, and entertain Southern next Thursday.

SEASON OUTLOOK

The Huskies will try to improve upon last season's 12-8 overall record (9-5 WMIL), and Coach Lynn Brenneman will rely heavily upon a number of veterans, including his daughter, All-Area senior infielder/catcher Brooke Brenneman, who hit .373 last season with 15 RBI and scored 21 runs.

Thomas returns to pace the pitching staff after being named an All-Area honorable mention pick last year with a 7-2 record. Also back are starting catcher Erin Butner, senior pitcher Arissa Kenner, and senior outfielder Kista Knox.

Players who saw considerable experience in 1997 include juniors Kanya Knox, Melissa McKeever, Andrea McRobie, Jackie Brenneman, and Kerri Brantner.

Coach Brenneman is also impressed by a strong group of sophomores, which include returning starters Mimi Harvey and Heidi Frazee, plus Jennifer Murray and Heather Nugent. Other sophomores who will probably see action are Alison Martinez and Heather Umbel.

The biggest shoes for Brenneman to try to fill will be those of All-Area infielder Kristin Heslop, who hit an outstanding .510 and recorded 40 runs, 10 doubles, and 30 stolen bases.

The Huskies' first home game will be next Thursday's meeting with Southern.

Trout Ready For Anglers As Season Opens Saturday

The early fly might get the fish as Maryland's 1998 trout season opens across the state at 5:30 a.m. on this Saturday, March 28. Opening in Garrett County that morning will be the Savage and the Little Youghiogheny rivers; Bear, Herrington, Muddy, and Mill Run creeks; and New Germany lake and Accident pond. Many other waterways in the county have been open for several weeks already.

Garrett County's waters are a destination for some of the 80,000-plus anglers who take to Maryland's freshwaters annually, many of whom will be out on the first day of the season. "On opening day, your chance of success is quite high," said Bob Lunsford, director of restoration and enhancement for the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Fisheries Service. "It's great fun, you get to enjoy the outdoors, and there's nothing as tasty as a fresh pan-fried trout."

Over the past several weeks approximately 200,000 trout have been stocked in streams and ponds across the state in preparation for opening day. By later in the spring over half a million brown and rainbow trout will have been stocked.

DNR's trout stocking program is funded entirely by the sale of freshwater fishing licenses and trout stamps, and federal Sportfish Restoration Program (Wallop-Breaux) funds which are generated by anglers' and boaters' tax dollars.

"DNR's trout stocking program and commitment to improving the water quality of Maryland's streams and rivers has helped Maryland develop one of the best trout fisheries on the East Coast," DNR Secretary John R. Griffin said. "The department is also working to bring quality fishing opportunities closer to the metropolitan areas of the state."

Since 1990 the state has added 30 lakes and rivers, most close to metropolitan anglers, to the list of areas stocked across the state. Over the same time period, the number of fish stocked has almost doubled, going from 255,000 in 1990 to over 500,000 this year. A stocking schedule, including a list of rivers, streams, and lakes that are stocked, the number of trout stocked, and the weeks in which stocking will take place, is available at locally at the Mt. Nebo fisheries office, through private fishing guide services, and DNR's Internet site at http://www.dnr.state.md.us.

Filming Feats

ing culminated in a gathering of all ASI students at Silver Tree Restaurant, where Mannix said they were filmed "lifting a beverage of their choice to toast their accomplishments."

Local historian John Grant was included in the taping, providing background information about Garrett County. His interview was taped Thursday (March 12) near the historic Oakland Train Station and the Garrett County Courthouse.

Later that day, the crew and students went to Swallow Falls State Park, where student Chris Walton, spotted by student Walter Augustine, kayaked over the falls. Ice-climbing was also filmed, with Taylor engaging in this event. Students showing their skills in this area again included Lyons, as well as Jason Powell (Md.), Janet Amelio (Calif.), and Scott Hrabar (Pa.). Instructor Tomb also led the students in this segment.

On this last day of taping, Logsdon was interviewed and filming was done at the Lake Pointe Inn, where the Britons had lodged during their stay. The crew also got "some last minute shots" of Wisp, Mannix said.

Apparently the English visitors left with one disappointment: that they had not had the time to go skiing "or even buy a postcard for friends and family," Mannix reported. Logsdon said the event was a "great experience" for his students and staff, as the group enjoyed the time together and gained valuable knowledge.

"They had such a good time with these people, and I think the Brits had just as much fun. The students learned a lot about what it takes to make a film like this, too, and I think that's important," Logsdon said. He extended his thanks to Mannix, whom he said worked hard at the state level to bring the project to fruition. He also expressed gratitude to Diane Wolfe of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

"She did much of the local coordination of non-adventure places to go and people to see, including the interview with John Grant," he said. "She did a lot of work."

The segment, which will probably be about 10 to 15 minutes in length, will air on April 10 at 8 p.m. Central European Time. Local residents who have a satellite dish should be able to receive it. Logsdon said that he is to get a copy of the segment as well, and it will be kept at GCC. For more information about the show, persons can view the station's website at <www.nbceurope.com>.

In Loving Memory Of
who passed away three years ago on March 28th
(1922-1995)

Have you ever lost a husband, dad, or grandfather who meant everything to you? One who is loved so very much and missed, like we do? Have you ever known a heartache or felt a bitter pain and wiped away the tears that drop like falling rain?

It's hard to believe that three years have passed since you went to be with the Lord. Although we know you have no more pain, there is not a day that goes by that we are not thinking of you in our hearts.

Sadly missed and deeply loved.

Girl Scout Troop #5569 met after school Friday, March 20. The girls finished their clay sculptures.

The troop went swimming at the B&R Resort in McHenry on Saturday afternoon. There were 24 children and 12 adults attending the party. Refreshments were served.

The next meeting is scheduled for April 3 after school.

KIDS CHORUS PREPARES TO PERFORM - Children from around the area come together each year to form the Kids Chorus. This will be the fifth consecutive year that the youngsters have learned, rehearsed, and performed the spring concert. The younger members of the group work on a separate presentation for the program from that offered by the older members. This year the younger children will sing selections from "Kids Praise." The older ones will perform a combination choral/drama presentation titled "The Secret of My Success." The Kids Chorus will perform at Cherry Glade Mennonite Church on Accident/Bittinger Road on April 3 and 4 at 7:30 p.m. The children will also visit Goodwill Mennonite Home to perform. The young members from left to right in row one in the picture above are Daniel Beitzel, Chelsie Custer, and Kelsey Bender. In row two are Tim Bender, director, Dylan Beitzel, Mallory Brenneman, Ryan Beller, Erin Beller, Megan Mast, Joshua Maust, Bethany Butler, Melanie Graber, and Kris Graber. In row three are Nathan Maust, Alecia Bender, Zachary Yoder, Amber Hershberger, Andrew Beitzel, Kara Graber, and Colby Hershberger. In row four are Amber Kling, Clinton Maust, and Ryan Yoder. Absent were Jessica Bender, Chelsi Kling, Adrienne Maust, Charisse Maust, Savylla Yoder, Cody Dice, and Eric Moser. Older members in the photo below left to right in row one are Devyn Bender, Danita Paugh, Erin Beller, Tessa Beitzel, Allyson Yoder, Justin Beitzel, Carrie Maust, Andrea Maust, Loren Yoder, and Stephanie Lee. In row two are Ryan Graber, Micah Beller, Jesse Storey, Michael Bender, Nicole Bender, Erin Brenneman, Jade Klavuhn, Krista Beller, Derek Butler, Hannah Tice, Amber Yoder, Brittany George, Tara Brenneman, and Shaina Custer. In row three are Amanda Grasser, Esther Schmuck, Erica Maust, Markell Klavuhn, Terah Sines, Jacquetta Brenneman, Amy Brenneman, Max Beitzel, and Michelle Bender. Wayne Tiemersma, director, is standing behind the children. Absent from the photo are Tamra Beller, Amy Brenneman, Laura Maust, Lydia Maust, Victoria Moser, and Micah Beller.

Doris Knox and Audrey Brenneman visited Neil and Bertha Rodamer and Olis Brenneman on Thursday afternoon.

The traditional first-week-of-spring snow has come. I recall at least three years when it has arrived. In my junior year of high school, some of my friends and my brother were planning to go to Pittsburgh to see a Led Zepplin concert and we got about three feet of snow that caused us to have to cancel our trip. The next year the ski season was saved by a big dump of snow. I was overjoyed. Now I'm happy to see the snow rather than all the rain we have been getting.

A voice from the past caused some rejoicing at our house. My favorite former student of all time from GCC got in touch with me this week. Jimmy Ragler, a former point guard at college, was like a son to Lloyd and me. He used to spend much of his free time at our home playing with our baby and helping around the farm. I never forget the time I took him on a long, different horseback ride. It was quite an event for an African-American kid from Baltimore. He served in the U.S. Army for some time, but now is back in the U.S. and plans to bring his wife and family for a visit to the mountains. He can cheer me up better than anyone. I look forward to Jimmy giving my girls some basketball coaching.

If any are familiar with the GCC basketball pool, both Lloyd and I narrowly missed the indignation of the back page. However, I was at the very bottom of the first. Unfortunately, my sister, uncle, cousin, Lesa, Janet, and Courtney ended up near the end. My mother was doing pretty well, as she picked some very big upsets.

Speaking of an early exit, the Maryland Terps lost their game on Thursday evening. Some of the Rock Lodge Terp fans were at Sam and Ellen Housley's to watch the game. Carol Bass, Ruth DiPaolo, Margaret Wagner, and Greg Whittemore, along with Brent and the Housleys, tried to root the Terps on to victory. Rodney Glotfelty also had Lloyd Sussman and Courtney Englar at his home for the game. The same evening, Bill Southerly and family were dismayed when their W.Va. Mountaineers fell to defeat.

Each spring I look eagerly for new lambs at Jimmy Glotfelty's, but they haven't arrived yet. The good news is that my cactus, which had refused to bloom at Christmas in spite of all I tried to do, now looks like it may well bloom at Easter. It happens my Aunt Helen in Westminster has had trouble with hers blooming.

CELEBRATES 93RD

Ida Reckner celebrated her 93rd birthday with dinner at Penn Alps Restaurant, Grantsville, Saturday evening. Others joining her for the occasion were Julius, Karmen, and Tony Carey, and Evie Morris of near Frostburg; Dwaine, Lisa, Adam, and Amanda Platter, Smithsburg; Tom, Cheryl, Taylor, and Timmy Glotfelty; and Jim and Donna Glotfelty. Ida was also served a birthday luncheon Friday at her home, where other guests were Jim and Donna Glotfelty, Tom Glotfelty, and Olive Bender. Sunday callers were Charee Smith, Allentown, Pa., and Lillian Reckner, McHenry.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

One of our community's favorite ladies was honored Saturday morning at the Will O'the Wisp as one of the inductees in Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame. Martha Glotfelty was present and everyone loved her remarks. She has especially been active in her church, community, county, and state affairs. She served as the first and only woman delegate from Garrett County in the state legislature. Martha is still able to get out to church on Sundays and is 89 years young. Congratulations to one of Bittinger's favorites.

About 75 members of Emmanuel Lutheran Church enjoyed a soup, salad, bread, and dessert luncheon following worship services on Sunday. The event was sponsored by the youth group and was just great.

Emmanuel Lutheran Women's Group entertained the residents of Goodwill Mennonite Home on Monday with entertainment and food. Eleven members participated.

Cindy and Sam Stanton entertained Sam's mother, Lucretia Stanton, in celebration of her 89th birthday this week. Also attending the dinner were Ferne Beachy and Lea Stanton. Lea Stanton spent the weekend at home with her family.

Kandi and Leslie, students at Frostburg State University, spent the weekend with their parents, Gary and Sharon Buckel.

Ann McLister and children, Frederick, were guests of her mother, Margaret Wagner, over the weekend. Colleen spent Saturday night as a guest of Emma Bass.

Bill Southerly and Kenneth Buckel met on Tuesday at the home of Ruth DiPaolo. They are exploring ways of raising money for the building of the new Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

Musical Debut Slated To Raise Funds For Show

The original musical, "Everyone Needs a Friend," will be performed at Friendsville Elementary School, Monday, March 30 at 7 p.m. This presentation has been scheduled as a fund-raising event to help put the "show on the road" to Annapolis.

The musical was written by music teacher Dan Taylor, who directs a cast composed of students from Crellin and Friendsville elementary schools. They will travel to Annapolis April 2 to perform for Gov. Parris Gleadening at the Governor's Mansion on April 3.

TAKING CENTER STAGE - The cast of the new musical "Everyone Needs a Friend" is rehearsing for the show's Garrett County debut and the performance at the Governor's Mansion in Annapolis on April 3. The students of Crellin and Friendsville elementary schools have teamed up for this all-star original production written by music and chorus teacher Dan Taylor. In the foreground of the photo above, Jennie, played by Summer Sines, questions Buster Bully, played by Jimmie Friend, about a stolen bike. In the photo below, Buster is not too pleased by what the chorus members have to say to him.

Approximately 50 students will make the two-day trip. In addition to funds needed for travel and accommodations, some equipment expenses have arisen that must be handled prior to the special Annapolis performance.

According to a spokesperson at Friendsville Elementary, the sound equipment and microphones are in need of repair or upgrade. The problem is marked by muffling and distortion of the sound, she said.

Donations will be accepted at the performance and can also be directed to Friendsville School, 841 First Ave., Friendsville, MD 21531.

"NO EXCUSE SUNDAY" AT MAPLE GROVE

Sunday, March 29, has been named "No Excuse Sunday" at the Maple Grove Assembly of God, Horse Shoe Run (Accident) and all are invited to come, to bring along a friend, and to join in the 10:30 a.m. services. There will be gifts for all.

At 6 p.m. on Sunday evening, March 29, a monthly sing-along is being held and everyone is welcome, either to sing or to listen.

APRIL 4 SPRING CRAFT SHOW, BAZAAR

From 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Saturday, March 4, numerous crafters will display their wares for sale at the Union Ambulance Service squad hall in Aurora. There will be crafters from surrounding West Virginia and Maryland counties, as well as a few from the local area. Easter candy, wooden items, homegrown peanuts in a variety of forms, ceramics, woven rugs, handmade note cards, crocheted items, jewelry made from polished stone, special entertainment for kids, as well as food to consume on the premises or to take home will be available.

QUILT EXHIBIT

The Aurora Extension Homemakers are planning a quilt show for June 6 and 7 at the Aurora Community Building. Persons in Union District who have old or unusual quilts, something that would be interesting either for its story or design, its quilting or perhaps another feature, are invited to contact either Virginia Martin at 735-3402 or Delores Douglas at 735-5228. The club is seeking entries for its exhibit which will serve as a fund-raiser for the upkeep of the community building.

AURORA PTO

The Aurora PTO met Thursday, March 19, at the school. It was announced that the Stanford testing will be accomplished during the March 31-April 3 time period.

The playground needs draining materials installed before the equipment can be installed.

The school recently sent in both Campbell product labels and General Mills Boxtops for Education, and Little Debbie UPCs for redemption. Residents are asked to continue to save the Campbell, Swanson and other related product labels. General Mills boxtops are dated, and persons are asked to check the dates. The Little Debbie effort has also been discontinued.

Spring pictures will be taken April 8. A book fair and parent-teacher conferences are planned for April 29. A guest speaker is scheduled to appear at the next PTO meeting.

An effort is underway to save soda can pull-ups for the WVU Children's Hospital.

AURORA HOMEMAKERS

The Aurora Homemakers met March 17 in the Union Ambulance squad hall with 15 members present. Opening devotions were presented by Wilda Stemple who used a meditation, "Jesus Explains Why He Must Die," and closed with prayer.

"Beating Burnout" was the study topic led by Ressie Conrad. The members then took a quiz to ascertain their level of stress. Mrs. Conrad also suggested ways to prevent or relieve stress.

Martha Bolyard reported that the Preston County Family Life Committee is planning educational classes on health and other topics of interest. The local Continuing Education committee is planning instruction in heritage crafts at local schools, both Terra Alta and Aurora.

A public program is planned at the Kingwood library on April 19. The club is sponsoring a quilt show on June 6 and 7 at the Aurora Community Building. A donation of $25 was made to the Preston County 4-H Foundation. Ressie Conrad asked for information concerning the hours spent reading aloud to children. David Toothman, Aurora principal, is planning to prepare a calendar of summer events. Those who have a community event they wish to include are asked to call the school.

A nominating committee was appointed composed of Fern Jamison, Dorothy Spaid and Virginia Martin. The decision was made that meetings November through April will be held at 1 p.m., meetings during May to October will meet at 7 p.m. and meetings are being held at the squad hall. Virginia Martin distributed literature listing the events to be held at the Creative Arts Center at WVU and those at Garrett Community College. Members are asked to make a decision concerning the July event at the next meeting.

Martha Bolyard displayed a Jesus cross, a wooden wall hanging with the word "Jesus" inscribed upon the crossarm. These are handmade by an out-of-work man. Delores Douglas was winner of the pig-in-the-poke. The vice president's special feature consisted of cleaning tips.

Wilda Stemple will have the April lesson, Virginia Martin will present the devotions, and Kathy Hardesty will show the special feature.

The class will focus on techniques to assess and strengthen assertiveness skills and motivational communication techniques, including listening for comprehension and giving positive feedback.

"It is designed to help participants build confidence, personal power, and supervisory effectiveness by learning to communicate effectively," Yoder said.

The class will meet on three consecutive Mondays, March 30, and April 4 and 13, 6:30-9:45 p.m. Space is limited and registration is necessary.

To obtain more information on this or any other business class, persons may contact Alyce McDowell, Cathy Fazenbaker, or Julie Yoder at GCC Small Business Development Center at 301-387-3080.

Middle School Students Tour Local Colleges

Students from Northern and Southern middle schools recently toured local colleges as part of the Garrett County school system's career development program.

The field trips to Allegany College of Maryland and Frostburg State University were arranged and sponsored for eighth grade students by the Office of Career and Technology.

Kurt Lear, director of the Early College Intervention Program, scheduled the college exploration to include transportation, tours of facilities, and lunch at each campus. Deb Hoover of Allegany College and Edge Duel of FSU arranged student tour guides for the middle school students.

The Garrett County visitors were able to see math and language departments, athletic facilities, health programs, a college dormitory, and the Lane Center at FSU.

One of the goals of this type of field trip is to familiarize young students with colleges that are nearby, Lear explained. "We felt that it was an extremely worthwhile tour of each institution," he said.

Another purpose of the college exploration field trip is to encourage students to attend college. "These tours will hopefully provide students with the needed knowledge, in hopes that they will attend college some day," he concluded.

YOU PLACE YOUR LIFE IN OUR HANDS

Every time you bring pharmacists a prescription to compound, you place your health and your very life in our care. Among the thousands of different drugs in a pharmacy, we must dispense the exact medicine prescribed.

Accuracy in compounding proper dosage is important. Everything must be doubly checked, for an error unthinkable. It might cost a life. We willingly accept the responsibility for which our professional schooling and experience has qualified us.

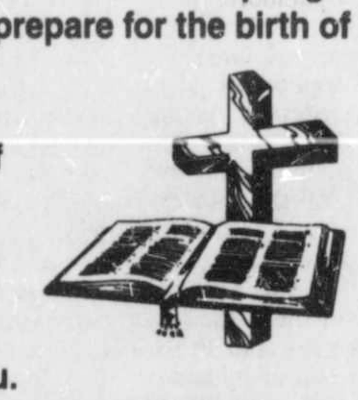
Preparations

What do you see when you look at this scene? The snow has stopped. The sun is shining. Icicles form from the roof. "Not much going on," you might say.

Actually, quite a bit is happening here. God's plan is being carried out before us. The melted snow gives drink to a now invisible springtime. As tiny bulbs containing the blueprint of brilliant tulips and sunny daffodils seem to sleep beneath the frozen earth, they are actually making preparations for a springtime debut. The nearly invisible buds on black frozen limbs prepare for the birth of tiny tender foliage soon to fan us on summer days.

Neither do we see God. Yet, our Heavenly Father prepares for our present and our future each second of the day and night. In Psalm 23:3 we are assured, "He preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies..." God cares for us in all circumstances. He never sleeps.



Prepare to worship this week. He is prepared for you.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WAS JESUS A 'WINNER'?
March 29, 1998

Background Scripture:
Mark 8:27 through 9:13
Devotional Reading:
Isaiah 43:10-21

We all want to be winners, don't we? If we cannot win personally—the lottery, the CEO's chair, the best salary—then we want to identify with one—a winning politician, a championship sports team, a celebrity personality.

The problem is the term "winning." How can you know when you have really "won"?

A few years ago, on the basis of Super Bowl victories, the Dallas Cowboys were regarded as the pro football "class of the 90's." The last two pro seasons have been a sad reminder to us that many victories are of very shot duration. Yesterday's athletic "Super Power" may be next year's "over-the-hill gang." Political, business, and social victories are often just as fleeting.

So, if we are going to answer the questions as to whether Jesus was a "winner" or a "loser," we have to decide first of all what it means to really "win" or "lose." And, if it's not over until it's over, how do we know when it's over? Winning on the battlefield, the playing field, the management ladder or the polls may turn all too quickly into eventual defeat. Similarly, to "lose" in any of these situations could quite possibly eventuate in victory.

SUFFERING & LOSING

I call this to your attention simply because what Jesus told his disciples at Caesarea Philippi smacks of "losing" in the popular understanding of today. "And he began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and the chief priests and the scribes, and be killed" (8:31). Apparently Peter thought so too, for he turned to Jesus and "began to rebuke him."

I can appreciate now Peter felt. All of his life he had had to eke out a meager living as a fisherman. Capernaum was a backwater town. He was uneducated. He belonged to a socioeconomic class that had no share in the political process. If, in responding to Jesus' call he had thought he was throwing in his lot with a winner, these words of Jesus certainly have been a letdown. Besides, until now, Jesus' role was increasingly that of the strong, Son of God, a powerful man of divine authority. How could a man who could cast out demons become so powerless?

Peter's reaction was an understandable human reaction not at all unlike our own desire to in some way "be a winner." Nevertheless, it was not in harmony with God's will and Jesus' rebuke to Peter is among the sharpest retorts of Jesus ever recorded: "Get behind me, Satan! For you are not on the side of God, but of men" (8:33).

LINGERING DOUBTS

Why did Jesus react so angrily? First, although Jesus spoke with certainty of the passion that lay before him, it doesn't mean that he came to that conviction without vigorous soul-searching and inner deliberation. So, Peter's words to him were particularly unsettling in that his disciple voiced some of the very arguments which Jesus himself had had to resolve.

Secondly, I believe he addressed Peter as "Satan" because he was really responding to Satan, not Peter. The words were Peter's, but Jesus knew this was simply the voice of the tempter whom he had initially vanquished in the 40 days and nights in the wilderness.

Not only would Jesus take on the roll of a suffering servant, that was what he expected of his followers as well: "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. For whoever would save his life will lose it; and whoever loses his life for my sake and the gospel's will save it" (8:34,35). Is that what it means to follow Jesus as the Christ: to take on a roll that the world interprets as that of a loser?

So, if it's not over until it's over, when is it over? According to Jesus, "For whoever is ashamed of me and my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him will the Son of man also be shamed, when he comes in the glory of his Father with the holy angels" (8:38, my italics).

Then, and only then, is it over.

Piano Festival Slated At FSU

Frostburg State University will host its 1998 Piano Festival from June 15 to 19 in the university's Performing Arts Center. The festival will be directed by Dr. Joan DeVee Dixon, FSU piano faculty. Festival staff will include FSU faculty, area music teachers, and FSU music students.

The festival is open to piano students entering grades 4 through 12 and will feature master classes, small group instruction, and guest recitals. Classes will be conducted in music composition, computer music, jazz, folk music, harpsichord, pipe organs, and duets. Each weekday will begin and end with a short recital by a special guest artist.

Two recitals will be held in Pealer Recital Hall on Sunday afternoon, June 21. All participants will be invited to perform in one of these recitals, which are open to the public.

Students should have two pieces learned, memorized, and ready to perform. The cost is $65. Participants and their families will receive free tickets to all festival events. The registration deadline is May 15. Early registrations are encouraged, since space will be limited to 50 students.

This event is made possible, in part, by the Allegany Arts Council. For further information or to request an application, persons should call 301-687-4115.

Stephens Earns Maryland Real Estate License

Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty Broker Robert Huebner recently announced that Stephanie Stephens has completed the educational and testing requirements for her Maryland real estate license. Stephens is employed by Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty as a property manager. The company currently manages six homeowners and condominium associations, an individual home, and Accident Townview Village, a subsidized housing development administered by the United States Department of Agriculture.

As property manager, Stephens helps associations formulate and administer annual budgets, procure bids for maintenance, collect dues, and send notices and updates to association members. She is available to oversee maintenance work and property improvements, and as a single-point of contact for association members. She is also responsible for marketing Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty's property management services to other local associations and individuals who may be in need of management services.

"Our goal is to make it easy for out-of-town owners and association members to enjoy their properties here in Garrett County," said Stephens. "We work with our clients to come up with customized management plans and services to best meet their needs."

One of the management tools at Stephens' disposal is Deep Creek Property Services, a general maintenance service headquartered in the Coldwell Banker building. "Because Deep Creek Property Services is able to handle a large variety of maintenance services, it is sometimes possible for associations to consolidate many of their ongoing maintenance needs with a single company and a single point of contact," explained Stephens. "This can save associations money and time."

"We are proud to be able to offer Stephanie's background and expertise to our management clients," said Huebner. "She is committed to pursuing additional specialized education in property management through the National Association of Realtors. We support her in this, because we want to offer the best possible property management."

Stephens, a native of Garrett County, lives near Oakland with her husband Bradley and their sons Nathan and A.J.

Maryland Fire Deaths Second Lowest Since '75

Fire fatalities in Maryland in 1997 reached the second lowest total in 23 years, according to a report released this week by Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele. Seventy-four persons died as a result of fire in Maryland in 1997, 60 percent fewer than the 184 fire deaths reported in 1975.

Thirty-two percent of the fire deaths in 1997 occurred in Baltimore City, where 24 fire fatalities occurred in 14 fires. Baltimore County reported 11 fire deaths, Montgomery County reported 8 fatalities, and Prince George's County reported 7 fatalities in 1997.

Careless smoking caused 25 fatal fires in 1997, while 12 fire deaths were attributed to electrical fires. Combustible materials too close to a heat source was the third leading cause of fatal fires, with six fatalities. Smoke inhalation continued to be the number one cause of death in 1997. Forty-one persons died from smoke inhalation, while another 17 died from the combination of smoke inhalation and burns. Sixteen fire fatalities were attributed to burns alone.

Almost 25 percent of fire death victims in 1997 were younger than 15 years old, while 30 percent were 65 or older. The 18 children and 22 elderly victims continue a trend where those age groups are most vulnerable to fire, not only in Maryland, but also nationwide.

Commenting on the 1997 totals, Gabriele stated, "It is clear that the widespread use of smoke detectors has made a great difference over the past 23 years, but we must continue to work toward the goal of having adequate smoke detectors in every Maryland home."

FSU's Roundabout Theatre Presents Alice in Wonder

Roundabout Theatre at Frostburg State University will present the children's play Alice in Wonder on Saturday, April 4, and Sunday, April 5. Curtain time is 2 p.m. in the Studio Theatre of the campus Performing Arts Center. Written by Virginia Koste, Alice in Wonder is being directed by theatre major Shay Mace, under the supervision of Linda McCulloch. The ticket price is $1 for children of all ages.

This classic tale begins with Alice meeting the White Rabbit (who is late for a very important date). Alice then falls into a make-believe world of Wonderland filled with off-the-wall characters. The major conflict with the Queen of Hearts sends Alice into a "curious game of croquet" that eventually lands her on trial.

For more information, persons may call the FSU Theatre Department at 301-687-4145.

Glass-hess Is National Merit Program Finalist

Laura Glass-hess, granddaughter of Dale and Jean Glass, Grantsville, and a senior at Landmark Christian High School in Fairburn, Ga., recently won finalist status in the 1998 National Merit Scholarship Program. Only about 14,000 students nationwide, representing less than 1% of all U.S. high school graduating seniors, attain this honor. The award recognizes academic achievement as measured by the PSAT (given during the junior year) and takes into account the student's extracurricular activities and long-term goals, as detailed by an essay and by the principal's recommendation.

Laura says she attributes her achievement to family background, acknowledging her parents' emphasis on reading and education, and to her four years of international living and travel in Asia. Besides lettering in track (four years) and volleyball (one year), she teaches Sunday School, volunteers occasionally for a local Habitat for Humanity project, participates in her school's annual mission trip to Belize (two years), helps disadvantaged inner-city children during Benteen Day (three years), and has part-time jobs lifeguarding and waitressing.

Miss Glass-hess lives with her parents, Dale and Karen Glass-hess, in Palmetto, Ga., where they currently work as group foster parents for the Georgia Baptist Children's Home. Laura intends to pursue a degree in graphic design at either Samford University in Birmingham, Ala., or Asbury College in Wilmore, Ky.

Withrow, Dixon To Speak At FSU Leadership Forum

Frostburg State University will host a forum, "Women Making History Through Leadership," on Tuesday, March 31, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the FSU Lane Center Multi-Use Room. Guest speakers will include Mary Ellen Withrow, treasurer of the United States, and Dazon Dixon, national program director for the Center for Human Rights Education.

Withrow is the first person to have held a position as treasurer at all three levels of government—local, state, and national. As treasurer of the United States, she is responsible for the operations of the U.S. Mint and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. She is also the national honorary director of the U.S. Savings Bond program, and in that capacity, represents the treasury secretary nationwide to promote the sale of savings bonds.

In addition to her work with the Center for Human Rights Education, Dixon is founder and president of "SisterLove Inc.," the first and largest women's AIDS organization in the southeast, according to a spokesperson. She is known as a community organizer, activist, and advocate for the advancement of women's health and status throughout the world, and has recently coordinated visits of African American women to Uganda, Egypt, and China.

The forum will emphasize women of all ages embarking on career and leadership paths. Both speakers will offer discussion on developing leadership skills while progressing professionally and on how their current positions impact women's lives. A discussion period will follow the presentations.

This event, which is free and open to the public, is being sponsored by the FSU Faculty Development Subcommittee, the FSU Women's Studies program, and Garrett Community College.

Western Maryland AHEC Prepares Area Students For Health Careers

by Mary Edgerly, AHEC Staff

A young person considering a future in health care may hesitate today because of the rapid changes in the field. It's true that hospital jobs have become more difficult to attain; however, it is also true that people will always need health care. As hospital stays shorten, care is being delivered in community-based settings and at patients' homes through home health services. Jobs are becoming more plentiful in those settings, and the trend promises to grow.

Learning about the trends and opportunities in health care is only one aspect of two summer programs offered by the Western Maryland Area Health Education Center (AHEC) for high school and college students interested in health careers. Students receive academic and personal enrichment to help ensure their success in college and beyond and may also tour health sites, meet with and shadow health professionals, learn preclinical skills, and participate in other activities designed to familiarize them with health careers. Students interested in either the Central Appalachian Health Careers Opportunity Network (CAHCON) or the Eastern Alleghenies Nursing Education Opportunities Program (NEOP) should apply as soon as possible. Deadlines have been extended.

Under CAHCON, the Western Maryland AHEC collaborates with West Virginia University (WVU) to provide several Health Careers Opportunity Programs (HCOP) on the campuses of WVU and FSU. Area students interested in medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, or allied health careers may be eligible.

The preliminary education program, conducted on the campuses of FSU and WVU from June 21 through July 31, prepares graduating high school students for the rigors of college study and introduces them to health careers. In the facilitating entry program, college students who plan to apply to a health professions school will receive admissions test review and academic support. Those who have already applied for or been accepted to a health professions school may be eligible for the retention program, which includes a rigorous interdisciplinary curriculum and problem-based learning. The facilitating entry and retention programs will be conducted at WVU from May 18 through June 26. Students participating in the HCOP programs will receive a daily stipend to offset food and housing costs.

Funding for the Central Appalachian Health Career Opportunity Network comes from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Bureau of Health Professions, Division of Disadvantaged Assistance. For more information, contact Dr. Beth Eubanks, 301-777-9150, Ext. 141.

The emphasis of the AHEC's Eastern Alleghenies Nursing Education Opportunities Program is to provide academic enrichment and facilitate entry of the region's students into baccalaureate nursing programs and beyond. Through NEOP, the AHEC will offer a summer preliminary education program from July 7 through July 31 to better prepare college freshmen and sophomores for nursing education leading to a BSN degree. The University of Maryland School of Nursing's Clinical Simulation Laboratories in Baltimore will be the site for preclinical learning experiences. Students who complete the preliminary education program and proceed satisfactorily toward a BSN degree may be eligible for a stipend of $200 per month for 10 months. A one-week nursing careers recruitment program will also be offered to current high school juniors from July 7-10.

Funds for NEOP are awarded to the Western Maryland AHEC by the Bureau of Health Professions, Division of Nursing. For more information, contact Amy Lynn Robison, 301-777-9150, Ext. 106.

Health career recruitment activities are one of the many services provided by the Western Maryland AHEC. For 20 years, the AHEC has worked to improve access to and promote quality in health care in the three westernmost Appalachian counties of Maryland and its neighboring West Virginia and Pennsylvania communities. The AHEC's health personnel development efforts are accomplished through an extensive network of over 300 regional health care professionals, who are actively involved in the organization.

COVER STORY

Mom, son battle booze in No Laughing Matter

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

A teen-ager fights to save his alcoholic mother from her life-threatening condition even as his own dreams collapse in No Laughing Matter, an original USA Network movie premiering Wednesday, April 1.

Suzanne Somers, who has written eloquently about her own early years in an alcoholic household, stars as Emma, whose dependence on alcohol has steadily increased since her policeman husband was killed several years before.

Her son, 17-year-old Charlie (newcomer Chad Christ), has raised himself, running the house and covering up his mother's drinking. Now, as he dreams of Yale Law School, he learns that his girlfriend (Selma Blair) is pregnant.

Charlie confronts Emma and forces her to quit drinking, cold turkey. Her newfound sobriety, however, taps the deep well-spring of resentment he has built up over the years.

The teleplay by Ted Kristian and Michael Elias is a little uneven – certainly the teen pregnancy aspect of the story covers familiar ground – but the scenes involving Emma's alcoholism and its effects on Charlie have a real sting, and both Somers and Christ rise to the challenge. The actors say this TV movie presents the issue of alcoholism in a new light.

"Normally, (TV movies are) focused on the alcoholic," Somers explains. "This time, we're focused on the relationship between the child and the mother, and her desire to be a good mother.

"Chad and I had a really incredible experience together, (exploring) how much shame is involved," she says. "I think people watching this movie ... will see (maybe for the first time) how painful it is to live as a child of this disease."

Christ adds that he felt a strong personal identification with his character as well.

Chad Christ

"I don't think I really need to go into it too much, but my father had a lot of problems," he says. "He was a Vietnam vet. ... But I've always loved my father, and I never, in a sense, held (his problems) against him. There was never a wall there (blocking) my love for him.

"That's something else that was different about this movie. Charlie didn't shut off, he didn't stray away from his mother, but he continued to push, and continued to give love, and continued to endure in the relationship."

Portions of No Laughing Matter are not easy to watch, especially the extended sequence depicting Emma's weekend of withdrawal hell. The very graphic nature of this scene points out minor areas of "cheating" in which the movie indulges.

We see Emma drinking on a near-lethal level – a concerned friend calls Charlie at one point and asks him to check his mother's breathing while she is passed out – yet Somers for the most part looks fit and trim. No bloating here!

In fact, it seems hard to believe Emma would not have wound up in the hospital after going off alcohol completely. But these are mainly technical issues. In other respects, No Laughing Matter is a sobering TV drama that deserves to be taken seriously.

IN FOCUS

Vicki Lawrence kicks up her heels as the forgetful Sister Amnesia, who dreams of becoming a country music star, in Nunsense III: The Jamboree. It premieres Tuesday, March 31, on The Nashville Network.

Amnesia heads out on a promotional tour of her debut album with the help of a few fellow sisters in this third in a series of Nunsense plays by Dan Goggin.

Nancy Johnston, Jennifer Smith and Deborah Del Mastro also star.

Addiction is Close to Home for Moyers family

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

"I don't think journalists should become the story, or use television to tell their stories," says TV journalist Bill Moyers. Yet there is no denying personal experience provided valuable insight into the topic of his most recent series.

Ten years after Moyers and his wife, producer Judith Davidson Moyers, discovered their son had a drug problem, they share what they have learned in Moyers on Addiction: Close to Home, a miniseries airing Sunday, March 29, through Tuesday, March 31, on PBS (check local listings).

Defining addiction to alcohol or drugs as "a chronic, relapsing disease," Moyers notes that "something like 88 million Americans either are chemically addicted or live in a relationship with someone who is.

"There are many paths to addiction," Moyers says. "Each life is a particular life." As a result, Close to Home focuses on individuals, with each segment addressing a different aspect of addiction.

The first hour puts a face on the disease with firsthand accounts of how addiction begins, builds and, if caught, is arrested. The next installment shows how high-tech medicine is used to study the disease's effects on the brain.

The remaining segments look at treatment programs for adult addicts and intervention plans that target at-risk minors, and examine how public policy can adapt to improve approaches to prevention and treatment.

Full of lively, pertinent and occasionally technical information, the series is tempered by the Moyerses' empathy for their distressed subjects. Close to Home is a report from the battlefront by veterans of a war that continues to claim new victims every day.

Bill Moyers delves into his own family experience in the miniseries Moyers on Addiction: Close to Home, airing Sunday through Tuesday on PBS (check local listings).

Anti-Drug Performer Gives New Meaning To Poe's "Nevermore"

by David Foster

Edgar Allan Poe graced the stages at Northern and Southern middle schools last week, delivering an anti-drug/anti-alcohol message to students, who must face the hard choices now and throughout their lives of deciding to avoid drug and alcohol abuse. Funded by the Garrett County Health Department through a "Zero Tolerance for Underage Drinking Grant" secured from the Governor's Commission for Crime Control, touring actor Mel Harold personified Poe for a total of nearly 1,000 local students at the two schools.

"Everyone, students and staff alike, seemed to get something out it," said SMS teacher Paul Pacella. "Harold delivered a strong, unique message by combining history and literature of the last century with an anti-drug/anti-alcohol message aimed at all of us today."

Harold, a native of Hillsboro, Mass., wrote the play "In Search of Poe" in 1988. He told Pacella that he had been studying Poe for several years, and that a one-man portrayal of the author's life evolved into its current message following the untimely death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias from a drug overdose. "He said he was struck by how many lives are snuffed out early because of drugs," according to Pacella. "All the kids know that people like Jimi Hendrix, Janis Joplin, John Belushi, and Chris Farley died early because of drug abuse. He told me that as he's traveled the country performing at schools he's crossed paths with Lenny Bias's mother several times because she tours delivering anti-drug messages too. They've talked extensively about the damage drugs can do to young lives."

Poe was Harold's choice to deliver the educational message because he was an figure whose life embodied two sides of chemical abuse. Poe struggled with alcoholism for many years, a battle that took its toll physically and emotionally; then a suspected one-time experiment with opium is thought to have killed him, much in the way Bias died from a single encounter with crack cocaine.

The timing of Harold's performance meshed with his audience's classroom studies. "It was a culminating activity for the 8th graders," Pacella said, "who have been studying Poe this year. It's also a good preview for the 7th graders, who will be introduced to Poe in the classroom next year. Harold's performance was a great combination of history and language arts with a real message for kids — one that affects them where they are in their lives today.

"We strongly appreciate the efforts of David Hauger and the Garrett County Health Department in getting this performance for our school," Pacella said.

Hauger commented before the performances that the health department "felt that Harold had a good program and could make a good impression on middle school students by showing them the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse through the eyes of someone who lived and died with it. The Poe performance is part of a multi-faceted effort of drug education outreach, which includes the activities of local community planning groups, public service announcements, and advertising, among other avenues. Anything that gets the message across is important to the lives of the kids," said Hauger.

THE MASTER OF THE MACABRE, Edgar Allan Poe, delivered an anti-drug/anti-alcohol message on the stages of Northern and Southern middle schools last week. Above, touring actor Mel Harold of Massachusetts brings the 19th-century author to life as he comes face to face with the muse of one of his famous poems, "The Raven." At right, Harold tips his hat to another audience that viewed his performance that portrayed Poe's long struggle with alcoholism and his one suspected dalliance with narcotic drugs, which is believed by some historians to have caused his death at a relatively young age. Harold wrote the one-man play "In Search of Poe" 10 years ago, and has performed the educational drama for thousands of middle and high school students across the country.

Quality Employee of the Quarter

Mark Alexander, Westernport, has been named the Quality Employee of the Quarter for 1st Quarter 1998 at the Luke mill.

Mark Alexander

Mark, who works as a Backtender on No. 5 Paper Machine, is a quality-oriented employee who is always striving to improve the product produced on that paper machine. Several of his Total Quality Suggestions to improve No. 5 PM's process and to enhance quality have been implemented, including his suggestion to install guarding and shields around the size press area of the machine to prevent contamination of the product. By keeping contamination off of the sheet, market complaints for size press starch related picking and contamination will be minimized.

A 17-year Luke mill employee, Mark meticulously scans paper samples for defects and continuously looks for ways to correct them. Together with his shift, Mark works to optimize sheet formation properties and to eliminate problems affecting quality.

Congratulations, Mark!

Have you ever wondered how decorations are added to glass?

Frederick Carder, the famous artist at the Steuben Glass Works, established an etching room about 1906. He had worked at Stevens & Williams in England.

To make cameo glass, Carder sandwiched together several layers of different colored glass, and formed a bowl. A design was then acid-etched into the outer layer, leaving a design of one colored glass exposed over another colored glass.

The design was "inked" on a paper and transferred to the glass bowl. The bowl was dipped in acid, which ate away at the glass in all places not covered by the waxy ink.

A second, similar etching was done to add details.

The process is known as "acid-etching" or "double-etching."

Many of the patterns were inspired by Oriental designs. The finished glass resembled the older Chinese cameo glass called "Peking glass."

Steuben acid-etched pieces were expensive when new and still sell for high prices.

Q. I always get a kick out of the beds that folded into the wall in the old movies. Do they still exist?

A. The Murphy Bed Co. was founded in 1908 in San Francisco. It moved to new York in 1926. Clark Murphy, grandson of the founder, now runs the company in Farmingdale, N.Y.

Murphy beds are mounted on the floor. They can be folded into a storage closet, freeing up space during the day. They were — and still are — especially popular in small, city apartments.

Home Tips

BE KIND TO FIDO — I have taken my cats and dogs many times to the veterinarian, where they are put on the examining table. Most of the tables are stainless steel or some form of countertop.

When my pets are on this table, they are nervous and have a tendency to slip all over even though I am trying to hold them. I came up with this idea: I purchased a bath mat and on my last visit to the veterinarian with my dog, I unrolled it and put it on the examining table.

The doctor looked a little surprised until I explained that this will keep her from sliding and being so nervous. He then gave his nurse instructions to buy two bath mats to make his patients more comfortable when they come to visit! Nancy K., Apache Junction, Ariz.

ON THE ROAD — Regarding a tip about taking pictures of luggage and baby equipment before a plane trip, I would suggest going a step further and photographing not only the luggage but the contents of the luggage as you pack.

Returning from a European vacation five years ago, my suitcase was lost. How much easier it would have been to show a picture than try to describe some of my clothing, much less remembering what I had taken.

Now whenever I pack a suitcase, I photograph everything. It's easy and film is inexpensive. Hannah R., Centreville, Va.

DICTION, PLEASE! — Often when I get phone messages, the person leaving the message says the phone number so fast I can't understand it, much less write it down in time.

To avoid doing the same thing myself, when leaving my phone number or address on someone else's answering machine or voice mail, I write it out while I'm saying it so that I'm sure I'm speaking slowly enough. Janie C., Hamshire, Texas

DREW BARRYMORE: ESCAPING THE FAMILY CURSE?

At 7, Drew Barrymore captured the nation's heart as Gertie, the apple-cheeked little sister in "E.T." "Be good!" the extraterrestrial warned her. She wasn't.

She was smoking cigarettes and drinking at 9, smoking marijuana at 10, using cocaine at 12, bouncing in and out of rehab centers between 13 and 14 (including a failed suicide attempt), dropping out of school at 14, becoming emancipated from parental control at 15, getting married and divorced at 19 and posing for Playboy at 20.

Featured on the cover of April's Biography magazine, Drew is the only child of actress Jaid Mako and John Barrymore Jr. Jaid split from the drunken, abusive Barrymore before Drew was even born and had her working in commercials by 11 months. Drew remembers her father occasionally appearing in a drunken rage to beat her and her mother. Made famous by "E.T.", she was a desirable face at nightclubs and parties by 8 1/2. Her mother accompanied her in a futile attempt at control.

Surprisingly, she seems to have come out the other side intact and flourishing. At 23, Drew is a well-regarded actress who apparently has come to terms with herself and the Barrymore legacy of self-destructiveness. A committed vegetarian who won't even wear leather shoes, she threatened to walk off a set if the crew killed a wasp. She currently considers her worst addiction "Melrose Place", and works for the Pediatric AIDS and Female Health Foundations. Not that she's ready to take novitiate vows. Two years ago, she flashed her breasts nationwide for David Letterman, and rarely is without a partner of either gender. Her philosophy: "If you're going to be alive and on this planet, you have to ... suck the marrow out of every day and get the most out of it."

Glendale Bridge Engineers Up For National Award

The Towson engineering firm of Wallace, Montgomery & Associates (WM&A) is a finalist in the American Consulting Engineers Council's 32nd annual Engineering Excellence Awards competition for its work on the Glendale Road Bridge over Deep Creek Lake.

The project was completed for the Garrett County Roads Department and was funded by the Maryland SHA, special state grants and county funds.

The project, which consisted of the replacement of the existing single-lane truss bridge with a new two-lane steel girder bridge, involved removal of the existing superstructure, construction of new abutments, rehabilitation and re-use of the existing pier, and construction of a new steel girder superstructure. The new bridge has two spans of 251 feet each, an overall length of 507 feet and an overall width of 31 feet. The project also included construction of approximately 1,000 feet of approach roadways.

WM&A was the prime consultant and was responsible for project management, structural engineering, and civil engineering. McNeill & Baldwin Inc., Morgan C. France, LS, PE, William F. Kirwin Inc., and P.A.C. Spero & Co. were engaged as subconsultants.

WM&A faced two major challenges in the design of the project. First, the construction budget was limited to $3,700,000. Second, the county did not want to disrupt tourist traffic around the lake during the busy summer months, thus requiring construction over the winter months.

Construction of a new parallel bridge was estimated to be $5,500,000, and was not a feasible alternative. WM&A's solution was to set the new bridge on the same alignment as the existing bridge.

This solution also enabled the existing pier to be rehabilitated and modified to support the new superstructure. The existing pier was originally built in 1927, and despite its age, was in good condition. The existing pier is a massive structure with an overall height of 70 feet and standing in 50 feet of water. WM&A performed detailed structural analysis and non-destructive testing on the existing pier and foundations to assure that it was capable of safely supporting the new superstructure.

The 140 finalists were judged this past weekend by a panel of judges with backgrounds in engineering, architecture, government, media, academia, and the military. The winners will be announced at ACEC's annual convention in May in Hawaii.

ACEC is a national professional association representing more than 5,500 private practice consulting engineering firms. ACEC members annually design more than $100 billion in constructed public and private works.

RECYCLING WITH SPIRIT - The residents of Cuppett and Weeks Nursing Home found an original way to recycle their Christmas tree. The process simply requires leaving the tree in place and redecorating it with valentines for the February holiday, with shamrocks for St. Patrick's Day in March, and with bunnies, chicks, and eggs for the Easter season. This festive recycling is good for the spirits as well as for the environment. Visiting guests, as well as residents, can enjoy the changing and colorful decorations on this tree-for-all-seasons.

Farming In Maryland.....

FQPA Is Top Funding Priority Says Farm Group

As work on the 1999 federal budget gears up on Capitol Hill, Farm Bureau last week outlined its agriculture budget priorities to lawmakers. The organization told the House Appropriations agriculture subcommittee that implementation of the Food Quality Protection Act, farm programs, risk management, conservation programs, food safety, agricultural research, trade, animal and plant health, agricultural credit, and Agriculture Department administration deserve adequate funding and attention from Congress.

To ensure the continued availability of essential crop protection products, Farm Bureau urged that the USDA Office of Pesticide Programs be fully funded. Because implementation of the FQPA is the top Farm Bureau priority, the organization said the USDA-run office should act as the farmers' advocate under the FQPA umbrella in the effort to guarantee crop protection product availability. Highest priority should be given to fund efforts to implement the FQPA properly.

"Key functions of the office must include assisting the Environmental Protection Agency in establishing accurate data for risk assessments where current data is inaccurate or incomplete," said Richard Newpher, executive director of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington, D.C., office. "USDA must be a full partner with EPA in all key implementation policy decisions."

Because the government effectively inked a contract with America's farmers and ranchers through the 1996 farm law, Farm Bureau urged lawmakers not to make any substantive changes to the law. Farm Bureau said in order for the government to analyze the benefits of the 1996 farm law effectively, sufficient funding should be provided to USDA's Commission on 21st Century Production Agriculture.

The 1996 farm law also made international trade a more important component of farmers' and ranchers' incomes, so lawmakers should ensure USDA's market development programs also are adequately funded, the organization said. Those programs include the market access program, the foreign market development program, the export enhancement program, and the dairy export incentive program.

Farm Bureau also told the panel that high priority should be given to the development of risk management tools to help supplement or provide producers with an alternative to traditional crop insurance. Innovative tools to manage risk, including private sector programs, are needed, Farm Bureau said.

The organization asked lawmakers to emphasize voluntary, incentive-based conservation programs in their deliberations. Conservation programs that emphasize education, technical assistance, training, and financial assistance to accomplish farm and resource policy objectives are supported by the organization. Farm Bureau urged lawmakers to support full funding for conservation efforts, without user fees, while maintaining adequate USDA staff support to assist producers.

"We oppose all user fees for conservation programs," Newpher said. "Conservation programs are often costly to implement and benefit everyone, not just farmers and ranchers. Public policy should encourage producers to increase conservation efforts, not place additional impediments to their efforts."

No group is more concerned about food safety than farmers and ranchers, Farm Bureau told the lawmakers. Food safety programs are critical to the welfare of all Americans and, as with conservation programs, the government—not private companies or individuals—should bear the burden of the costs.

To continue America's farm production leadership, agricultural research, education, and Extension activities that focus on food and agricultural production should be a priority, Farm Bureau said. The organization told lawmakers that agricultural research programs benefit both producers and the general public.

Farm Bureau also opposes an administration proposal to increase funding for direct operating and farm ownership loans.

Farm Bureau Examines New Species Bill

The American Farm Bureau Federation board of directors said its support for an Endangered Species Act reauthorization measure (S. 1180) sponsored by Sen. DirkKempthorne (R-Idaho) would be contingent on improvements to the bill.

At its recent meeting, the board acknowledged Kempthorne's hard work to find a politically acceptable solution to the endangered species reauthorization effort. The farm leaders also said Farm Bureau will urge Kempthorne and other lawmakers to attain an acceptable measure that encompasses Farm Bureau policies and concerns.

The directors said the Kempthorne bill should move federal endangered species policies toward greater consideration of landowner interests. The measure, the board said, should include landowner incentives, reduced red tape, and creative measures to solve endangered species habitat dilemmas. Farm Bureau said the reauthorization measure should begin to acknowledge the high costs landowners must pay for endangered species habitat protection.

Farm Bureau praised Kempthorne for including a critical habitat reserve program in the measure. The idea, which would operate similarly to the Agriculture Department's conservation reserve program, has been championed by Farm Bureau for years, and is also supported by a number of national environmental groups. The organization also endorsed the measure's language to improve scientific standards used to determine species status.

The Endangered Species Act was signed into law in 1972, with the original intent to protect such species as the bald eagle and the manatee. More than 1,000 species are protected under federal law.

Farmers and ranchers face fines for even the most basic farm practices if federal regulators believe such actions would disturb endangered species. Unlike when government acquires land for a school or road, a landowner who loses the use of land under the ESA is not compensated.

Maryland's Poultry Web Is A First On The Internet

The new Maryland Poultry Web made its debut last month during the annual Delmarva Corn & Soybean Technology Conference/ Delmarva Poultry Industry Grower Educational Seminar at the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center in Salisbury.

The web site offers users a choice among 13 components, ranging from new information to lists of organizations, universities, and U.S. government programs associated with poultry. There also is a fun component of poultry-related sites.

The URL for Maryland Poultry Web is http://poultry.umd.edu.

Its poultry problem-solving resources component is the first of its kind on the Internet. This component offers a set of search tools for poultry growers and their advising professionals who are trying to solve a problem. Among other things, these tools allow users to:

- find relevant publications and identify researchers;
- link to Consultant, an on-line diagnostic decision tool available at the Cornell College of Veterinary Medicine; and
- locate e-mail addresses of experts.

Why a World Wide Web project?

Maryland's Poultry Web designers note that the U.S. poultry industry has evolved into the No. 1 supplier of meat protein for consumers. This success has been based on the industry's ability to adopt new technology rapidly for enhanced bird health, nutrition, management, genetics, processing, and food safety. The Maryland Extension specialists see their web site as a tool that will permit the transfer of new technology to proceed at an even faster pace. It also will provide useful information to consumers and youth.

A new technique called "precision farming" boosts crop yields and reduces waste by using satellite maps and computers to match seed, fertilizer, and crop protector applications to local soil conditions.

MLE Approves Merger With Southern States

Delegates to the annual stockholders' meeting of Michigan Livestock Exchange voted overwhelmingly March 14 to approve merger of their farmer-owned cooperative with Southern States, effective April 1. The action combines the livestock marketing strengths of MLE with the farm supply system strengths of Southern States.

MLE will become the Livestock Marketing Division of Southern States, which will be a separate allocation unit for purposes of patronage refunds. A producer board, made up of beef, swine and sheep growers, will be established for the new division to assist in identifying new opportunities.

Michigan Livestock Credit Corporation, an MLE subsidiary, will be merged into a subsidiary of Statesman Financial Corporation, which is owned in part by Southern States. The MLCC's programs for financing facilities and livestock will be maintained and expanded as opportunities occur.

MLE is an innovator in developing alliances with processors and cattle feeders, order buying and video marketing, as well as operating buying stations and auction facilities in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Last year, MLE marketed some 3 million hogs, 600,000 beef cattle and 140,000 sheep, with a total market value of nearly $700 million for its farmer-members. This makes MLE the largest livestock marketing cooperative in the nation.

With headquarters in Richmond, Va., Southern States now serves farmers in Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia with their feed, seed, fertilizer, energy, and farm supply needs. In its fiscal year ended last June 30, it had savings before income taxes of $33.5 million on volume of $1.216 billion. Some $17.5 million is flowing back to members this month in the form of patronage refunds.

"Clearly, the directors and management of both organizations see the opportunity for synergies that will be good for their members," said Wayne A. Boutwell, Southern States' president and CEO. "We believe it will create a system to allow independent beef, pork and sheep producers to grow and market a premium product that will please consumers and enhance farmers' incomes."

Thomas H. Reed, president and CEO of MLE, who will become vice president of livestock marketing at Southern States, said, "Joining together with another producer-owned and controlled cooperative strengthens our farmers' ability to assure that this and future generations will have the continuing opportunity to provide wholesome and abundant food for the world."

Report Shows Young Farmers Are Optimistic, Innovative

America's young farmers and ranchers are embracing new technology, adopting new farming methods and investing in business services to help them excel in an ever-competitive and environmentally sensitive world.

Those were among the findings of this year's annual survey of young farmers and ranchers, ages 18-35, conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Despite concerns about government regulations, profitability, and the availability of resources, America's young farmers and ranchers are increasingly optimistic about their futures in agriculture. Overall, AFBF's sixth annual informal YF&R survey found that the future of America's farms and ranches is in able hands.

This year's survey of 296 young farmers and ranchers tracked respondents' attitudes and choices on topics ranging from conservation to the public's opinion of their profession.

Ranking challenges

According to the survey, 26.5 percent of the young farmers said their top challenge was government regulations, followed by a related topic—overall profitability—selected by 18.6 percent of the respondents. Those two challenges also were the top-ranked items on last year's survey. Over the survey's history, regulation and overall profitability each have topped the list three times.

The third largest challenge this year was the availability of land and facilities, selected by 16.7 percent. Fourth on this year's list of challenges was tax burdens, cited by 11 percent. Fifth was the challenge of competition from established or larger farms, followed closely by urban encroachment on prime farmland at 6.3 percent. Other challenges, in descending order, were: gaining more control over the operation from parents; health care availability and cost; availability of agricultural financing; and inadequate rural support services.

Boosting exports

Asked what government could do to help them and their farm, 21 percent said government should do more to boost U.S. agricultural exports. Obtaining additional tax reform at the federal level was second with 18.4 percent. Following closely was strengthening property rights at 18 percent. Prior to this year, protecting property rights had ranked first for four consecutive years.

Fourth was balancing the federal budget through spending cuts (10.6 percent). Regulatory reform was fifth with 9.4 percent. Providing more financial help to beginning farmers was sixth with 8.4 percent.

Other recommendations with less than 5 percent were: strengthening agriculture's financial safety net; ensuring the availability of crop protectants; supporting public agricultural research; developing better risk management methods; and increasing voluntary environmental incentives.

When asked their opinion regarding the source of agricultural income once the current farm program expires, 66.8 percent said farm income should come totally from the marketplace, while 33.2 percent said farm income should continue to be supplemented to some degree by farm program payments. Last year, those numbers were 71.7 percent and 28.3 percent, respectively.

Environment

The group reported a strong commitment to conservation and the use of environmentally beneficial farming practices. More than two-thirds (67.6 percent) employ conservation tillage on the farm. Nearly 60 percent (59.8 percent) said they regularly test soil or crop tissue prior to nutrient application and 55.7 percent practice crop rotation with three or more crops. Nearly a third (31.8 percent) use integrated pest management techniques such as field scouting to reduce crop protectant use.

Regarding other farming practices, 26 percent said they regularly test their well water; 23.3 percent have land enrolled in the conservation reserve program; 18.9 percent leave buffer strips to benefit wildlife; 17.6 percent use contour farming or stripcropping; and 14.5 percent actively manage wetland resources.

Approximately 93 percent of the young farmers surveyed said they select farming practices based on both the environment and economics: 70.1 percent said both with an emphasis on economics, while 22.7 percent said both with an emphasis on the environment. Those results generally mirror the findings of past surveys.

Management and marketing

Young farmers employ a number of business management and marketing practices and services to gain a competitive edge. Professional accounting services are used by 43 percent of respondents, marketing information services by 41.2 percent, and crop consultants by 40.9 percent.

Nearly one-third (32.4 percent) said they use futures and options to market their commodities, and 26.7 percent said they are involved in contract production. Marketing and management specialists are consulted by 26.4 percent of those surveyed. Just over 12 percent of the young farmers said they use global positioning systems and global information services, where satellite technology is used to plot precise field activities.

Nearly half (47.1 percent) of those responding said they currently plant biotech crop varieties or plan to do so within the next two years.

Technology use

Overall, young farmers and ranchers remain on the cutting edge when it comes to the use of electronic and communications technology. Computers are used by 76.7 percent of those surveyed. More than seven of 10 (71.3 percent) reported owning cellular telephones and 40.2 percent said they communicate by fax.

Internet use continues to rise sharply. More than one-third (36.2 percent) reported having access to the Interact. That's up from 32.2 percent last year and 10.5 percent two years ago. E-mail is used by 31.8 percent (22.7 percent last year) and 31.4 percent use computer online services. Two percent of the respondents reported having home pages on the Internet.

Home satellite reception is also on the rise, with 39.9 percent of those surveyed reporting use of that technology, compared with 28.9 percent last year. Small dish technology appears to be running away with the rural market, with 82.2 percent of dish owners using small dishes. That's up 20 percent from last year's survey.

Farming for life

Nearly all of the young farmers surveyed (96.9 percent) said they planned to be lifelong farmers. On a similar note, 93.3 percent said they would like to see their children follow in their footsteps as farmers.

When asked their attitude regarding agriculture's future, 76.5 percent said they were more optimistic than five years ago, and 89 percent said they were "better off" than they were five years ago.

Optimism, however, is also tempered by reality. More than two-thirds (67.2 percent) of the young farmers and ranchers said they, their spouse, or both work off the farm. Wives are the sole source of off-farm income in 69.7 percent of those instances, and husbands are the sole source in 9.6 percent of the surveyed families. Both spouses work off the farm in 20.7 percent of the cases. Of the young farmers reporting off-farm employment, 44 percent said the availability of health insurance is the primary reason.

According to the survey, 52 percent of the respondents started farming or ranching as a member of a family partnership, while 26.3 percent started farming on their own. Nearly 15 percent (14.6) said marriage led them to farm, and 7.1 percent reported that they inherited their farm or ranch.

When quizzed about their opinions regarding the public's attitude toward farmers and ranchers, 36.4 percent said they thought the public would weigh in positively, 29 percent said the public would think negatively, and 34.6 percent said they thought members of the public generally didn't think about them at all.

This year's survey was conducted in February during AFBF's Young Farmers and Ranchers Leaders Conference in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The efficiency of U.S. farmers benefits the United States consumer in the pocketbook. U.S. consumers spend approximately 9 percent of their income on food, compared with 11 percent in the United Kingdom, 17 percent in Japan, 27 percent in South Africa, and 53 percent in India.

Farming In Maryland.....

FQPA Is Top Funding Priority Says Farm Group

As work on the 1999 federal budget gears up on Capitol Hill, Farm Bureau last week outlined its agriculture budget priorities to lawmakers. The organization told the House Appropriations agriculture subcommittee that implementation of the Food Quality Protection Act, farm programs, risk management, conservation programs, food safety, agricultural research, trade, animal and plant health, agricultural credit, and Agriculture Department administration deserve adequate funding and attention from Congress.

To ensure the continued availability of essential crop protection products, Farm Bureau urged that the USDA Office of Pesticide Programs be fully funded. Because implementation of the FQPA is the top Farm Bureau priority, the organization said the USDA-run office should act as the farmers' advocate under the FQPA umbrella in the effort to guarantee crop protection product availability. Highest priority should be given to fund efforts to implement the FQPA properly.

"Key functions of the office must include assisting the Environmental Protection Agency in establishing accurate data for risk assessments where current data is inaccurate or incomplete," said Richard Newpher, executive director of the American Farm Bureau Federation's Washington, D.C., office. "USDA must be a full partner with EPA in all key implementation policy decisions."

Because the government effectively inked a contract with America's farmers and ranchers through the 1996 farm law, Farm Bureau urged lawmakers not to make any substantive changes to the law. Farm Bureau said in order for the government to analyze the benefits of the 1996 farm law effectively, sufficient funding should be provided to USDA's Commission on 21st Century Production Agriculture.

The 1996 farm law also made international trade a more important component of farmers' and ranchers' incomes, so lawmakers should ensure USDA's market development programs also are adequately funded, the organization said. Those programs include the market access program, the foreign market development program, the export enhancement program, and the dairy export incentive program.

Farm Bureau also told the panel that high priority should be given to the development of risk management tools to help supplement or provide producers with an alternative to traditional crop insurance. Innovative tools to manage risk, including private sector programs, are needed, Farm Bureau said.

The organization asked lawmakers to emphasize voluntary, incentive-based conservation programs in their deliberations. Conservation programs that emphasize education, technical assistance, training, and financial assistance to accomplish farm and resource policy objectives are supported by the organization. Farm Bureau urged lawmakers to support full funding for conservation efforts, without user fees, while maintaining adequate USDA staff support to assist producers.

"We oppose all user fees for conservation programs," Newpher said. "Conservation programs are often costly to implement and benefit everyone, not just farmers and ranchers. Public policy should encourage producers to increase conservation efforts, not place additional impediments to their efforts."

No group is more concerned about food safety than farmers and ranchers, Farm Bureau told the lawmakers. Food safety programs are critical to the welfare of all Americans and, as with conservation programs, the government—not private companies or individuals—should bear the burden of the costs.

To continue America's farm production leadership, agricultural research, education, and Extension activities that focus on food and agricultural production should be a priority, Farm Bureau said. The organization told lawmakers that agricultural research programs benefit both producers and the general public.

Farm Bureau also opposes an administration proposal to increase funding for direct operating and farm ownership loans.

Farm Bureau Examines New Species Bill

The American Farm Bureau Federation board of directors said its support for an Endangered Species Act reauthorization measure (S. 1180) sponsored by Sen. DirkKempthorne (R-Idaho) would be contingent on improvements to the bill.

At its recent meeting, the board acknowledged Kempthorne's hard work to find a politically acceptable solution to the endangered species reauthorization effort. The farm leaders also said Farm Bureau will urge Kempthorne and other lawmakers to attain an acceptable measure that encompasses Farm Bureau policies and concerns.

The directors said the Kempthorne bill should move federal endangered species policies toward greater consideration of landowner interests. The measure, the board said, should include landowner incentives, reduced red tape, and creative measures to solve endangered species habitat dilemmas. Farm Bureau said the reauthorization measure should begin to acknowledge the high costs landowners must pay for endangered species habitat protection.

Farm Bureau praised Kempthorne for including a critical habitat reserve program in the measure. The idea, which would operate similarly to the Agriculture Department's conservation reserve program, has been championed by Farm Bureau for years, and is also supported by a number of national environmental groups. The organization also endorsed the measure's language to improve scientific standards used to determine species status.

The Endangered Species Act was signed into law in 1972, with the original intent to protect such species as the bald eagle and the manatee. More than 1,000 species are protected under federal law.

Farmers and ranchers face fines for even the most basic farm practices if federal regulators believe such actions would disturb endangered species. Unlike when government acquires land for a school or road, a landowner who loses the use of land under the ESA is not compensated.

Maryland's Poultry Web Is A First On The Internet

The new Maryland Poultry Web made its debut last month during the annual Delmarva Corn & Soybean Technology Conference/ Delmarva Poultry Industry Grower Educational Seminar at the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center in Salisbury.

The web site offers users a choice among 13 components, ranging from new information to lists of organizations, universities, and U.S. government programs associated with poultry. There also is a fun component of poultry-related sites.

The URL for Maryland Poultry Web is http://poultry.umd.edu.

Its poultry problem-solving resources component is the first of its kind on the Internet. This component offers a set of search tools for poultry growers and their advising professionals who are trying to solve a problem. Among other things, these tools allow users to:

- find relevant publications and identify researchers;
- link to Consultant, an on-line diagnostic decision tool available at the Cornell College of Veterinary Medicine; and
- locate e-mail addresses of experts.

Why a World Wide Web project?

Maryland's Poultry Web designers note that the U.S. poultry industry has evolved into the No. 1 supplier of meat protein for consumers. This success has been based on the industry's ability to adopt new technology rapidly for enhanced bird health, nutrition, management, genetics, processing, and food safety. The Maryland Extension specialists see their web site as a tool that will permit the transfer of new technology to proceed at an even faster pace. It also will provide useful information to consumers and youth.

A new technique called "precision farming" boosts crop yields and reduces waste by using satellite maps and computers to match seed, fertilizer, and crop protector applications to local soil conditions.

MLE Approves Merger With Southern States

Delegates to the annual stockholders' meeting of Michigan Livestock Exchange voted overwhelmingly March 14 to approve merger of their farmer-owned cooperative with Southern States, effective April 1. The action combines the livestock marketing strengths of MLE with the farm supply system strengths of Southern States.

MLE will become the Livestock Marketing Division of Southern States, which will be a separate allocation unit for purposes of patronage refunds. A producer board, made up of beef, swine and sheep growers, will be established for the new division to assist in identifying new opportunities.

Michigan Livestock Credit Corporation, an MLE subsidiary, will be merged into a subsidiary of Statesman Financial Corporation, which is owned in part by Southern States. The MLCC's programs for financing facilities and livestock will be maintained and expanded as opportunities occur.

MLE is an innovator in developing alliances with processors and cattle feeders, order buying and video marketing, as well as operating buying stations and auction faciiities in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Last year, MLE marketed some 3 million hogs, 600,000 beef cattle and 140,000 sheep, with a total market value of nearly $700 million for its farmer-members. This makes MLE the largest livestock marketing cooperative in the nation.

With headquarters in Richmond, Va., Southern States now serves farmers in Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia with their feed, seed, fertilizer, energy, and farm supply needs. In its fiscal year ended last June 30, it had savings before income taxes of $33.5 million on volume of $1.216 billion. Some $17.5 million is flowing back to members this month in the form of patronage refunds.

"Clearly, the directors and management of both organizations see the opportunity for synergies that will be good for their members," said Wayne A. Boutwell, Southern States' president and CEO. "We believe it will create a system to allow independent beef, pork and sheep producers to grow and market a premium product that will please consumers and enhance farmers' incomes."

Thomas H. Reed, president and CEO of MLE, who will become vice president of livestock marketing at Southern States, said, "Joining together with another producer-owned and controlled cooperative strengthens our farmers' ability to assure that this and future generations will have the continuing opportunity to provide wholesome and abundant food for the world."

Report Shows Young Farmers Are Optimistic, Innovative

America's young farmers and ranchers are embracing new technology, adopting new farming methods and investing in business services to help them excel in an ever-competitive and environmentally sensitive world.

Those were among the findings of this year's annual survey of young farmers and ranchers, ages 18-35, conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Despite concerns about government regulations, profitability, and the availability of resources, America's young farmers and ranchers are increasingly optimistic about their futures in agriculture. Overall, AFBF's sixth annual informal YF&R survey found that the future of America's farms and ranches is in able hands.

This year's survey of 296 young farmers and ranchers tracked respondents' attitudes and choices on topics ranging from conservation to the public's opinion of their profession.

Ranking challenges

According to the survey, 26.5 percent of the young farmers said their top challenge was government regulations, followed by a related topic—overall profitability—selected by 18.6 percent of the respondents. Those two challenges also were the top-ranked items on last year's survey. Over the survey's history, regulation and overall profitability each have topped the list three times.

The third largest challenge this year was the availability of land and facilities, selected by 16.7 percent. Fourth on this year's list of challenges was tax burdens, cited by 11 percent. Fifth was the challenge of competition from established or larger farms, followed closely by urban encroachment on prime farmland at 6.3 percent. Other challenges, in descending order, were: gaining more control over the operation from parents; health care availability and cost; availability of agricultural financing; and inadequate rural support services.

Boosting exports

Asked what government could do to help them and their farm, 21 percent said government should do more to boost U.S. agricultural exports. Obtaining additional tax reform at the federal level was second with 18.4 percent. Following closely was strengthening property rights at 18 percent. Prior to this year, protecting property rights had ranked first for four consecutive years.

Fourth was balancing the federal budget through spending cuts (10.6 percent). Regulatory reform was fifth with 9.4 percent. Providing more financial help to beginning farmers was sixth with 8.4 percent.

Other recommendations with less than 5 percent were: strengthening agriculture's financial safety net; ensuring the availability of crop protectants; supporting public agricultural research; developing better risk management methods; and increasing voluntary environmental incentives.

When asked their opinion regarding the source of agricultural income once the current farm program expires, 66.8 percent said farm income should come totally from the marketplace, while 33.2 percent said farm income should continue to be supplemented to some degree by farm program payments. Last year, those numbers were 71.7 percent and 28.3 percent, respectively.

Environment

The group reported a strong commitment to conservation and the use of environmentally beneficial farming practices. More than two-thirds (67.6 percent) employ conservation tillage on the farm. Nearly 60 percent (59.8 percent) said they regularly test soil or crop tissue prior to nutrient application and 55.7 percent practice crop rotation with three or more crops. Nearly a third (31.8 percent) use integrated pest management techniques such as field scouting to reduce crop protectant use.

Regarding other farming practices, 26 percent said they regularly test their well water; 23.3 percent have land enrolled in the conservation reserve program; 18.9 percent leave buffer strips to benefit wildlife; 17.6 percent use contour farming or stripcropping; and 14.5 percent actively manage wetland resources.

Approximately 93 percent of the young farmers surveyed said they select farming practices based on both the environment and economics: 70.1 percent said both with an emphasis on economics, while 22.7 percent said both with an emphasis on the environment. Those results generally mirror the findings of past surveys.

Management and marketing

Young farmers employ a number of business management and marketing practices and services to gain a competitive edge. Professional accounting services are used by 43 percent of respondents, marketing information services by 41.2 percent, and crop consultants by 40.9 percent.

Nearly one-third (32.4 percent) said they use futures and options to market their commodities, and 26.7 percent said they are involved in contract production. Marketing and management specialists are consulted by 26.4 percent of those surveyed. Just over 12 percent of the young farmers said they use global positioning systems and global information services, where satellite technology is used to plot precise field activities.

Nearly half (47.1 percent) of those responding said they currently plant biotech crop varieties or plan to do so within the next two years.

Technology use

Overall, young farmers and ranchers remain on the cutting edge when it comes to the use of electronic and communications technology. Computers are used by 76.7 percent of those surveyed. More than seven of 10 (71.3 percent) reported owning cellular telephones and 40.2 percent said they communicate by fax.

Internet use continues to rise sharply. More than one-third (36.2 percent) reported having access to the Internet. That's up from 32.2 percent last year and 10.5 percent two years ago. E-mail is used by 31.8 percent (22.7 percent last year) and 31.4 percent use computer online services. Two percent of the respondents reported having home pages on the Internet.

Home satellite reception is also on the rise, with 39.9 percent of those surveyed reporting use of that technology, compared with 28.9 percent last year. Small dish technology appears to be running away with the rural market, with 82.2 percent of dish owners using small dishes. That's up 20 percent from last year's survey.

Farming for life

Nearly all of the young farmers surveyed (96.9 percent) said they planned to be lifelong farmers. On a similar note, 93.3 percent said they would like to see their children follow in their footsteps as farmers.

When asked their attitude regarding agriculture's future, 76.5 percent said they were more optimistic than five years ago, and 89 percent said they were "better off" than they were five years ago.

Optimism, however, is also tempered by reality. More than two-thirds (67.2 percent) of the young farmers and ranchers said they, their spouse, or both work off the farm. Wives are the sole source of off-farm income in 69.7 percent of those instances, and husbands are the sole source in 9.6 percent of the surveyed families. Both spouses work off the farm in 20.7 percent of the cases. Of the young farmers reporting off-farm employment, 44 percent said the availability of health insurance is the primary reason.

According to the survey, 52 percent of the respondents started farming or ranching as a member of a family partnership, while 26.3 percent started farming on their own. Nearly 15 percent (14.6) said marriage led them to farm, and 7.1 percent reported that they inherited their farm or ranch.

When quizzed about their opinions regarding the public's attitude toward farmers and ranchers, 36.4 percent said they thought the public would weigh in positively, 29 percent said the public would think negatively, and 34.6 percent said they thought members of the public generally didn't think about them at all.

This year's survey was conducted in February during AFBF's Young Farmers and Ranchers Leaders Conference in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The efficiency of U.S. farmers benefits the United States consumer in the pocketbook. U.S. consumers spend approximately 9 percent of their income on food, compared with 11 percent in the United Kingdom, 17 percent in Japan, 27 percent in South Africa, and 53 percent in India.

Ms. Deal Becomes Bride Of Mr. Nazelrod In March Event

Sandra Kaye Deal and Sidney Ray Nazelrod were united in marriage on Saturday, March 14, 1998, at The Deer Park Church of God of Prophecy Family Worship Center. Pastor Billy Vanhoosier and Reverend Beulah Tasker officiated the double-ring ceremony. Esther Clemons was the pianist and Lily Vanhoosier was the soloist, singing "To God Be The Glory."

The bride is the daughter of Alice Deal, Accident, and the late Clarence "Bud" Deal. The bride is the mother of two daughters, Cassondra Sukow, Grantsville, and Mrs. Vicki Kight, Mountain Lake Park. The groom is the son of Paul F. Nazelrod Sr., Oakland, and Joyce K. Nazelrod, Mountain Lake Park.

Given in marriage and escorted to the altar by her brother, Edward Deal, the bride wore an ivory mid-length lace dress embellished with pearls and lace. She carried a white Bible and one white rose, gifts from her uncle and aunt, Frank and Mary Herring. The bride's jewelry consisted of a pearl necklace with matching earrings, a gift from her mother. She also wore a gold and pearl bracelet, a gift from her daughter Vicki, and a diamond ring given to her by the bridegroom.

Serving as matron of honor was the bride's mother, Alice Deal. Serving as best man was Richard E. Jordan, Mountain Lake Park.

The bride's mother and the groom's father each lit a candle before the ceremony. These candles were then used by the bride and groom to light the unity candle, symbolizing the joining of the two families and the merging of the couple.

All of the candle holders, flowers, programs, and the wedding veil were made by the bride.

A reception was held at Flowery Vale Center in Accident, with the hostess being Ruth Paugh, sister of the bride. Roger Paugh, brother-in-law of the bride, also served as a host. Assisting at the gift table were Cassondra Sukow, daughter of the bride, and Amber Brown, granddaughter of the bride.

Following a honeymoon trip to Washington, D.C., the couple established residence in Loch Lynn.

The bride and groom operate Stop N Go U-Haul in Loch Lynn Heights, and the groom is owner and broker of Keller-Stonebraker Real Estate, also in Loch Lynn Heights.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Parker, Boardman, Ohio, and of Patricia Parker, Lewis Center, Ohio. The groom is the son of Richard and Marjorie Clever, Oakland.

They wore above-the-knee burgundy velvet dresses and carried wicker fans accented with burgundy and white roses with baby's breath and burgundy velvet ribbon, hand-made by Heather Healy. The flower girl, Darian Clever, daughter of the bride and groom, wore a toddler's bride dress and veil.

Carrie Clever, sister of the groom, attended the guest book.

The best man was Mike Slagle, Oakland, friend of the bride and groom. The groomsmen were Robbie Johnson, Lakeland, Fla., Brent Hendricks, Worthington, Ohio, and LeRoy Virts, Oakland, all friends of the bride and groom. The groomsmen all wore black tuxedos with burgundy and black satin vests with button covers. The ushers were Allen Uphole, Oakland, and Bobby Evans, Hagerstown, also friends of the bride and groom. They wore black tuxedos with burgundy and black satin vests with matching bow ties. The ringbearer was Michael Karabin, Youngstown, Ohio, nephew of the bride. He wore a black tuxedo with a black satin vest and button covers matching the groom's attire.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mark Weeks, who sang "I Will Go There With You" and "I Will Be Here." The organist for the ceremony was Sue Peterson, Oakland.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Elk's Lodge in Oakland. Paul Mullen of WKHJ provided the music.

A three-tier heart-shaped wedding cake was decorated with draped garland, swirls, and cascading burgundy sweetheart roses. The main cake was accented with matching side cakes. The table was decorated with greenery and mini burgundy and white carnations. The cake was baked and decorated by Alice Wilt of Oakland.

Following the reception, the bride and groom honeymooned at Couples Resort in Ochos Rios, Jamaica.

Daddy, God called you home, it's been one year,
To a better place, free from pain and fear.
We all miss you so very much,
But rely on our memories that are so dear.
Some things never change with time.
They last a lifetime through.
The happiness, pride, guidance, and love that you added to our lives still remains,
And from your quiet example of patience and trust we can find the strength to face almost anything.
We think of you always and it's with all our love because you still have that special place in our hearts and always will.
We didn't have to let go because we know the "SWEET SECRET" of giving you a new lifetime to live in our HEARTS!
We love you, Daddy!!

Fikes Celebrate 40th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Fike, Accident, were honored recently on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary. The celebration took place at the home of Darius "Buzz" and Ruth Fike in Accident. The party was hosted by their children: Linda Meyers and her husband Earl, Friendsville; Allen Fike, Accident; and Gary Fike and his wife Candi, Friendsville.

James and Helen Fike were married February 16, 1958, at Zion Lutheran Church in Accident. Rev. Carl F. Dauphin was the officiating clergyman.

Invocations at the anniversary celebration were done by Buzz Fike and Maude Fike. A traditional red and white color scheme was used in the decorations. The food was prepared by Linda Meyers, Ruth Fike, Allen Fike, and Candi Fike.

The two-tiered double layered heart cake was baked by Linda Meyers and featured red and white roses in a basket weave with cupids and tiny hearts, and was topped with a 40th anniversary cake top. The anniversary toast was given by Hazel Haenftling, the maid of honor during the Fike's wedding ceremony in 1958. A dozen red roses was given by Linda Meyers. Pictures were taken by Allen, Gary, and Ruth Fike, and camcorder filming was done by Earl Meyers.

The couple also received a congratulatory letter from the President and Mrs. Clinton. Approximately 25 friends and relatives attended the celebration.
